First - Ballot Nomination Predicted for Goldwater

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rank-and-file Republican convention delegates swarmed into town Saturday and into caucuses that should all but wrap up and deliver the party presidential nomination to Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Unless there's another San Francisco earthquake along political lines this week, Goldwater is going to become the nominee on the first ballot on Wednesday. The convention opens Monday.

Undaunted by Goldwater's enormous lead in delegate strength, Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania fought tirelessly if futilely on.

Evidently the senator will be running on a platform built to Goldwater specifications. The 100 red-eyed members of the platform committee toiled Friday night and again Saturday.

They finally came through with half their campaign document, accusing the Johnson administration of "weakness before communism" and exploiting interracial tensions.

This was the first time in a century, since Abraham Lincoln insisted on one in 1864, that the Republicans nailed a point-by-point castigation of the opposition into their platform.

The first half of the platform won't stir up much trouble in the Republican legions, but the second half, due Sunday, may lead to a fight on the convention floor over civil rights and other bones of contention between Goldwater and Scranton forces.

The convention votes on the platform Tuesday.

Goldwater and Scranton whirled through conferences with delegates, held strategy sessions with lieutenants, and scurried around trying to corral the last stray delegate votes not yet committed.

Scranton was counting on pressure from the people to produce an eleventh hour surge of delegates away from Goldwater and into his camp. He contends that the average Republican doesn't want Goldwater for president, regardless of how

Barry Charts No-Holds Barred Drive; Rep. Miller Predicted as Running Mate

By JACK BELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater has charted a no-holds-barred campaign against President Johnson if the Republican convention gives him its presidential nomination next Wednesday.

As a part of this strategy Goldwater has made the all-but-final decision to tab Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the GOP national chairman, as his vice-presidential running mate.

Goldwater considers Miller a "gut fighter." This assessment fits the pattern of the kind of strenuous attack on the President that the Arizona senator believes offers him his best chance of overturning the incumbent's present long odds of winning a first executive term.

The fact that Miller is a Roman Catholic from upstate New York, where the Republicans have to win big in order to carry the Empire State, has figured very little in Goldwater's calculations.

What he likes about Miller is the latter's ability to handle himself with aplomb on television, and to slug hard at the opposition.

Miller's attack on the popular Jacqueline Kennedy for vacationing aboard a Greek millionaire's yacht and his assertions that the Kennedys were demeaning the dignity of the presidency by permitting their kin to be pushed into swimming pools are examples in point.

With Miller as his political slugger, Goldwater could take a statesmanlike attitude toward the issues of the day. The senator finds it distasteful to deal in personalities although he is no mean infighter when he feels compelled to it.

The expected selection of Miller involves a Goldwater decision to ignore the protests of Republican liberals and to conduct a campaign geared toward arousing the country's conservatives to a fever pitch.

He has brushed aside suggestions of some of his advisers that he ought to balance the ticket by trying to get his beleaguered rival, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, to take second place on the ticket. Goldwater's view of the matter is that Scranton, a liberal or

Washington, D.C. Negro Educator Killed in Georgia

By HUGH SCHUTTE

COLBERT, Ga. (AP)—A Negro educator from Washington, D.C., was mysteriously shot to death in early morning quietness Saturday as he drove through rural north Georgia.

Lemuel A. Penn, 49, director of Washington's five vocational high schools and a lieutenant colonel in the Army reserve, was shot in the head as he drove along Georgia 172 about 10 miles northeast of here. The killing brought swift action in Washington and Atlanta, the state capital.

President Johnson called Gov. Carl E. Sanders to seek federal-state cooperation in the hunt for the killer. And the Justice Department announced that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy had ordered the FBI into the case.

In Atlanta Sanders quickly issued one of the strongest statements he has made since taking office.

"I am ashamed for myself and for the responsible citizens of Georgia that this occurrence took place in our state," he said. "This unfortunate nonsensical occurrence today represents the inflammatory reaction of a person with a demented mind.

"If we want to see our state destroyed, our citizens demoralized and the very foundation of our nation undermined, we have only to let this type of individual assume greater prominence and eventually take over and this will be the end of America."

The slain educator completed two weeks of summer training at Ft. Benning, Ga., Friday and was on his way back to Washington with two other Negro officers, Maj. Charles E. Brown, 44, and Lt. Col. John D. Howard.

GT's Large Press Motor Burns Out

The Gazette Telegraph newspaper press had to be run twice as long as usual to print the Gazette Telegraph thick Sunday edition for its subscribers, because of mechanical difficulty.

The 125 h.p. motor which drives four units of the press, was burned out, Saturday, and the 100 h.p. motor which drives the other three units of the press was used in order to print the edition.

The 100 h.p. motor will be used until the 125 h.p. motor is repaired.

Until the repairs are completed, double press runs will be printed for the thick editions of the Gazette Telegraph.

Possible Sabotage by ITU Hinted in Toronto Strike

TORONTO (AP) — Hints of possible sabotage were expressed Saturday by the publishers of three Toronto newspapers, who are publishing their daily editions despite a walkout of 680 printers.

The strike has not stopped the publication of the papers. For instance, on Friday, the two evening papers, the Star and the Telegram, brought out their first edition on time. The morning Globe and Mail printed two of its customary six editions. Members of the International Typographical Union (ITU) which has its headquarters in Colorado Springs, walked off the papers last Thursday in what they described as a lockout, but which the newspapers called a strike.

While picketing printers paraded before the three buildings of the newspapers, executives helped man the composing rooms to get out somewhat slimmed-down versions of the big dailies.

But they claimed that some linotype machines, which cast lead into type, had been altered to a degree that left them unusable without considerable work.

They charged that sticky substances had been poured into some working parts, clogging them, and that others had wires pulled out or pins reversed to alter the timing.

This, the executives of the papers said, increased the difficulties of publishing the papers, because of the damage to the typesetting machines. The reports of damage to machines were made by all three papers.

Spokesmen for the union claimed that the dispute was triggered over use of automatic typesetting tape, and that the main issue in the dispute is the jurisdiction of newly installed computers. Spokesmen for the publishers and local 91 of the International Typographical Union said their groups were prepared to meet for negotiations Monday or earlier.

Answering charges of possible sabotage, Robert McCormack, president of ITU local 91 claimed the union had no knowledge of any damage. "Certainly it is not like our people to indulge in sabotage." He claimed the composing room machinery is highly intricate and requires servicing by expert craftsmen.

Another American Soldier Dies In Viet Nam War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. enlisted man died of wounds inflicted by Communist Viet Cong bullets that tore through the helicopter he was riding Friday, an American spokesman said.

He was the second American killed Friday in scattered action in the Duc Hoa region west of Saigon. Two other Americans were wounded in the area.

The total of Americans killed in combat since December 1961, is now 154. Another 96 Americans have died in training accidents or from other causes unrelated to combat and 890 have been wounded.

One American killed Friday was aboard an armored troop carrier that ran over a Viet Cong mine.

State Demos Name Evans To Oppose Rep. Chenoweth

By GLENN URBAN

Hugh J. Ross, Colorado Springs attorney and former county Democratic chairman, was knocked out of the race for Congress in Pueblo Saturday.

Ross failed to get designation as a candidate for congressman from the Third Congressional District at the district assembly held in Pueblo Saturday.

He lost to Pueblo attorney Frank Evans, who has served four years in the State House of Representatives.

A total of 285 delegates attended, and to be designated, a man had to have 20 per cent of the vote — 57 votes.

When the roll of counties was called, Ross had 36½ and Evans had 248½ votes. In El Paso County the vote was Ross 17, Evans 46.

Henry John Oleshaw, once an independent, once a Republican, most recently a Democrat and apparently an independent again now, failed to get a single vote, and was only nominated through the grace and generous spirit of the chairman, the convention and a delegate who didn't even mention Oleshaw by name.

In other action at the assembly and convention, the Third District Democrats:

— Named six delegates with three delegate votes to the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City, beginning Aug. 24, and three alternates.

Included in the list of delegates were Paul Bechtol, Colorado College economics professor, and Third District chairman, as well as past president of the Colorado Young Democrats, and

Dr. George Dwire, member of the State Board of Health, was named an alternate.

— Named Atty. John Bennett, Democratic Party chairman in El Paso County, as the elector from the district. He thus becomes one of the members of the 1964 Electoral College, the official group that reports the vote of the states and thus names the president, or sends selection of the president to the House of Representatives — an unlikely event.

Ross and Evans were both in the race early as candidates and were joined later by Oleshaw, who apparently never really was a candidate within the party.

Evans set up a chairman for his drive in each of the 21 coun-

Negro Baptist Church Burned In Mississippi

By MIKE SMITH

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A Negro Baptist church building was destroyed by fire Saturday in what civil rights workers hinted was the latest racially inspired incident in Mississippi.

The latest fire occurred near Greenwood, 90 miles north of here, after the FBI had beefed up its forces in race-troubled Mississippi.

Greenwood fire officials said there was no reason to suspect arson.

Edward Rudd, staff member of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, said a white man previously had sought to buy the Pleasant Plain Missionary Baptist Church.

Republican Platform Demands Clear Superiority Over Soviets

By STERLING F. GREEN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Republican platform on Saturday accused the Democratic administration of weakness before communism and of fostering "a potentially fatal parity" of military power instead of clear superiority over the Soviets.

The GOP platform writers, torn among themselves over the writing of a civil rights plank, issued the first half of their platform — the half on which agreement came relatively easily—in the form of an "indictment" of the Kennedy-Johnson administration.

The campaign document:

—Charged that "federal extremists" in Washington have burdened the nation with $26 billion in deficits in four years with "still more debt to come," and have curbed individual freedom and creative enterprise.

—Made the Bobby Baker case a campaign issue by accusing the administration of impeding "investigations of suspected wrongdoing which might implicate public officials in the highest offices in the land."

—Accused the administration of having "exploited interracial tensions by extravagant campaign promises, without fulfillment, playing on the just aspirations of the minority groups, encouraging disorderly and lawless elements, and ineffectually administering the laws."

—Blamed the White House for having fostered "discord and distrust" in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and for opening "a hot line first with a sworn enemy rather than with a proven friend."

By delaying development of advanced weapons systems, the platform charged, the Democrats have "confronted the American people with the fearsome possibility that Soviet advances, in the decade of the 1970s, may surpass America's present lead."

The half-portion platform was released with a promise that the rest, containing the specific planks by which Republicans hope to unseat President Johnson, would come Sunday.

But the 100-member Platform Committee was embroiled in battle behind closed doors between the majority forces backing Sen. Barry Goldwater and the outgunned but still scrapping backers of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton.

The Goldwater forces, it was disclosed, beat down an attempt by the Scranton men to insert in Saturday's installment a favorable reference to Dwight D. Eisenhower, the last GOP pres-

Zoning Danger To Owners Editorial Says

An article entitled, "Zoned or Owned," by John C. Sparks, from the Freeman Magazine, is printed opposite today's editorial page, dealing with the threat of zoning, which is seen as a step towards the abolition of private property.

Speaking about zoning, the author declares, "An abuse may appear in a form that seems to be very respectable, even praiseworthy. It may receive the unqualified support of leading citizens who sincerely attempt to achieve a desirable goal through its use. One manifestation of this kind is zoning."

But, he pointed out, "by definition, zoning is an interference with the right of ownership. Zoning and owning are different systems of determining land use. Either the land will be privately owned and its use determined by the owner to his greatest satisfaction from the choices available to him in the market place, or the land will be used as directed by government."

For a full discussion of the issue of zoning versus owning, see page 3-C opposite today's editorial page.

German Unity Realistic Goal Scientist Says

By CARL HARTMAN

MUNICH, Germany, (AP) — A political scientist told a nationalistic wing of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democratic party Saturday that reunification of Germany now is not a realistic goal.

The remarks from Golo Mann, son of the late novelist Thomas Mann, were regarded as rare for a West German political meeting. Golo Mann, a professor of political science at Stuttgart Technical University, spoke at the convention of the Christian Social Union, the Bavarian wing of the Social Democrats. The wing's president, Former Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss, wants a tougher line toward Communist East Germany.

Sunday, Erhard will take up another challenge to his foreign policy from Former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Strauss, both demanding closer ties with France as a step toward European unity.

Mann said Germans must work for reconciliation with the Communist countries of Eastern Europe before a discussion could start on whether Germany should regain the borders it had before Adolf Hitler began his conquests.

Parents Rap Post Article On Quadruplets

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Axe, parents of the Lima, Ohio quadruplets, feel the June 6 Saturday Evening Post article on their family is an injustice to the city and people of Lima and to themselves.

The couple's comments on the Post story, "How to Be a Loser With Four Aces," was reported by the Gazette Telegraph's sister Freedom Newspaper, The Lima News.

Axe expressed concern over a statement in the Post article that the quads' first birthday party was ignored by The Lima News.

"Everyone in Lima knows The Lima News printed a fine story and a nice picture on the front page. You couldn't ask for anything better than that," Axe said.

Mrs. Axe added, "The Writer (Myron Cope of the Post) went out and bought a copy of the paper. I saw him."

"There were several inaccuracies for which we definitely are not responsible," Axe said. "In fact, I honestly don't know how the writer got this information."

He was particularly upset by obvious mistakes in the story. Arthur Cope asserted that "montly visits to the pediatrician cost $46 for care of the identical girls."

Axe explained, "This is wrong. We were charged only $55 for a year and that included all seven of the kids (the couple has three older children.) I'm very glad the pediatrician, Dr. C. John Stechschulte, wrote the Post a letter to the editor and the Post printed it."

The Post's implication that Lima and its residents exhibited "little more than curiosity toward the quads" has made Mrs. Axe "literally sick," she said. "In fact, I couldn't even finish the story," she added.

"We have been overwhelmed by Lima's kindness," Axe commented. "We never had to buy any clothes for the quads — except rubber pants — nor milk, bread, baby food, ice cream and a host of other things. They were all given to us. We appreciated very much of other things. They were all given to us. We appreciated very much the car, stove and refrigerator we received and resent the author calling it 'bric-a-brac.'"

Mrs. Axe added, "We had to move from Lima. Phil needed a job and was able to get a good one in Toledo, one that would better provide for us. We did not move because we were mad at the town. This has been our home and we have loved it."

"The 28-year-old father added, "I have enough confidence in myself to believe I can support my family and give my children the care they need."

Axe admitted there was a time "when I actively sought endorsements and sponsors from national companies. And then along came the Fischer quintuplets. Now, we've decided against commercialization of our children. We are not actively soliciting any kind of endorsements."

Wives of Two GOP Candidates Show Contrast

By FRANCES LEWINE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mrs. William W. Scranton, who says she loves campaigning, and Mrs. Barry Goldwater, who shuns it are a study in contrasts at this Republican convention scene.

The senator's wife was getting protection Friday from two private detectives, a Goldwater staff man assigned to her, a new press secretary and two sisters-in-law.

The governor's wife was acting as her own press secretary and virtually going it alone.

Both smiling and exchanging polite chit-chat, the two women met Friday at a fashion luncheon for national committeewomen in a plush hotel.

When reporters asked the two wives what they found hardest about campaigning, Mrs. Goldwater replied frankly:

"Having to appear before television and press people. I'm not used to it."

Tall, slender, energetic Mrs. Scranton, who has been Pennsylvania's first lady for two years, hesitated a bit before she proclaimed: "I love it."

Mrs. Scranton lingered to chat after the luncheon. Mrs. Goldwater exited promptly.

Though they approach the campaign with different attitudes, the two wives have just one aim—"I'll do whatever I can to help my husband."

General Receives Third Legion of Merit Award

Air Force Maj. Gen. William E. Elder, Inspector General for Air Defense Command, received his third award of the Legion of Merit, in a ceremony held at Ent Air Force Base, Colorado Springs, Colo.

The second Oak Leaf Cluster to the nation's second highest peace time award was presented to Gen. Elder by Lt. Gen. Herbert B. Thatcher, commander, Air Defense Command.

The citation which accompanied the award states, "Gen. Elder distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious conduct . . .while serving as the command inspector general from July 5, 1962 to May 20, 1964. . . his achievements in planning, coordinating and directing the inspection system represented a major contribution to the improved aerospace defense posture of the North American Continent."

Previously assigned as commander of the Boston Air Defense Sector, General Elder reported for duty as the command Inspector General in June 1959. He was promoted to the rank of major general in February of this year. He will assume command of the 25th Air Division, McChord Air Force Base, Wash., in August.

His decorations and medals include the Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal of World War Two with two bronze stars, and the Korean Service Medal with two bronze stars.

Gen. Elder is married to the former Lois Hodges. He and his wife and sons, William E. Jr., 20; and Scott H., 15, reside at 1110 Vega Drive.

Maytag Says GOP Indifferent

DENVER (UPI) — Democratic State Chairman Robert Maytag zeroed in here on his favorite target — Republicans.

"Colorado Republicans are preoccupied with the rights of state government and grossly indifferent to the responsibilities of the state," Maytag said.

He referred to "the refusal of the Republican Legislature to ask the State Supreme Court to clarify confusion surrounding the sub-districting under the State Constitution."

The special session of the State Legislature which ended last week passed a reapportionment bill which retained sub-districting provisions of a previous reapportionment law declared unconstitutional.

British Tailor Held On Charges of Spying

LONDON (AP) — Alfred Burchinsaw, a British tailor who worked at a U.S. Air Force base near Munich, has been arrested on suspicion of spying, the British Foreign Office says.

A spokesman said Friday night Burchinsaw was picked up by American detectives March 31 on suspicion of passing information to a Communist intelligence agency.

The spokesman said Burchinsaw has been held in a Munich prison while German police continue investigations. No trial date has been set.

County Council On Alcoholism Names Graduates

The El Paso County Council on Alcoholism announced today the graduation of three members from the University of Utah School of Alcohol Studies, 13th annual session. Those attending the concentrated course during the month of June were: Grayce L. McDougall, director of the Alcoholism Information Center on a scholarship awarded by the Colorado State Dept. of Public Health, Alcoholism Division through grants by the Christopher D. Smithers Foundation of New York City. J. L. Gunther, member of the council's board and active participant of the council's speakers bureau and film presentation team and R. G. McDougall, chairman of public relations for this voluntary health agency.

Recognized authorities and world leaders concerned with the problem of alcoholism were assembled for this session. The outstanding authorities representing professions and disciplines involved presented scientific information relating to the nature, prevention and therapy of one of America's most imposing social and health problems.

General sessions presented orientation in the basic physical, psychological, sociological and other aspects of the problem. Group sessions provided specific information, instruction, demonstration and discussionals on casework, treatment, counseling, teaching methods, industrial problems, organization of community and state programs and other guidance for individuals of special disciplines having specific interests.

Returning from Salt Lake City via Denver, Mrs. McDougall was interviewed for one half hour by news commentator Max Goldberg TV channel 2. Many questions arose concerning the necessity of modern techniques through health education as preventative programs throughout the state.

Local councils, city - county health departments as well as state programs are all working together to provide facts and knowledge by professionally trained personnel.

Purposes of alcoholism information centers and services they provide were described. Unidentified case histories were sighted as examples of inquiry and services rendered.

Knowland Urges Bandwagon For Goldwater

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former Sen. William F. Knowland says here the Goldwater bandwagon is rolling toward victory, and he urged Republican delegates to climb aboard before it's too late.

"Sen. Goldwater will be nominated on the first ballot and certainly no later than the second," he predicted.

It depends, he said, on what a couple of states with favorite son delegations decide to do.

Knowland, the leading force behind Goldwater's pivotal California primary election victory, plans to seek support actively for the Arizona senator among delegates from other states.

He declined to specify which ones. But he said that Goldwater has "a substantial amount of secondary strength" in Ohio (58 votes) and Wisconsin (30). Both are committed to favorite sons.

Knowland, in an interview, said he's confident the delegates wouldn't want to be left behind when Goldwater reaches the 655 votes required at the Republican National Convention for the presidential bid.

The former California senator and Senate GOP leader said his state, fifth on the roll call, will "present a solid phalanx of 86 votes on the first ballot" and Goldwater then "will be well on his way."

The California delegation is pledged to Goldwater by law, as the winner of the primary.

As for Goldwater's opposition, he commented: "With all of Scranton's activity, I have not found that he has made any dent in the senator's strength. Whatever gains Scranton can claim have come from Lodge and Rockefeller supporters."

The host California delegation plans to open its headquarters and hospitality room today at a Nob Hill hotel across the street from Goldwater's hotel.

The delegation will hold its first caucus Sunday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate hearings into the funeral business found an industry where price competition "is deliberately hampered—and in large forbidden," the investigation's chairman, Sen. Philip A. Hart, declared Thursday.

The Michigan Democrat, who heads the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, predicted at the close of the three days of hearings that the Federal Trade Commission "will take a hard look at the situation."

Citing the National Funeral Directors Association which prohibits as unethical the advertising of prices, Hart said in his opinion "no single group in this country—funeral directors or otherwise—has the right to agree among themselves to take any steps to eliminate price competition."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John J .Williams, R-Del., has questioned the propriety of President Johnson's reported action in getting a $60,000 contract settlement for LeRoy Collins.

Collins, former governor of Florida, resigned a $75,000 a year post as president of the National Association of Broadcasters to accept appointment as director of the new Community Relations Service created by the Civil Rights Act.

Collins told the Senate Commerce Committee earlier in the week he would receive the $60,000 settlement, plus some other benefits, from the NAB. His contract with the broadcasters had more than a year to run. His salary from the government will be set by the President, reportedly at about $26,000.

Williams, in a Senate speech, quoted Broadcasting magazine as reporting Collins was released from the contract after Johnson called NAB's executive committee to the White House.

The magazine said after the White House meeting the NAB committee "voted to release their president and give him severance to offset salary sacrifices he will make in taking the government job," Williams declared.

He said he questioned the propriety of the President summoning representatives of an industry "whose future is so dependent upon decisions of regulatory bodies" and demanding they compensate an official for his loss in income as result of taking a government job.

Willard Schroeder, chairman of the NAB board, had no comment on Williams' remarks, saying only "this is a political question. It doesn't involve us (NAB)."

Young Woman Nabbed After Shooting Spree

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A young woman is free on $100 bond following a shooting spree that ended with a tumble downstairs with a police officer.

Alice Phillips, 21, fired several shots from a high powered rifle from a second story apartment Thursday. Miss Phillips was charged with discharging a firearm in the city.

In the apartment when the woman began shooting were two babies and another woman. Police managed to take the babies and other woman out while officers held Miss Phillips in conversation.

Deputy Inspector Donald A. Nelson, wearing a bullet-proof vest, then entered the apartment and disarmed the woman. As Nelson hurried her down outside stairs, Miss Phillips fell and struck her head on concrete. She was treated at a hospital and then taken to jail.

Nelson said Miss Phillips gave no explanation for her actions, and that she apparently did not try to hit anyone.

Cajori Drawings To Be Displayed At Art Center

A selection of drawings by Charles Cajori, noted New York artist and guest artist at the Fine Arts Center summer school is currently on view at the Fine Arts Center.

Cajori, who received his first formal art training at the Fine Arts Center in 1939, is associated with the Howard Wise Gallery in New York and teaches at the Cooper Union School in New York.

He is teaching both beginning and advanced painting to summer art students at the Fine Arts Center.

The exhibition of drawings, all of figures which may be termed "abstract-expressionist" include many which have been shown recently in museums across the country and a number which have been reproduced in national art magazines.

Cajori was described in a March 1963 article in "Art News" as the "leading member of the second genration of the New York School." In the article, Cajori is credited with "revaluing abstract - expressionism in his paintings and drawings of figures which express both orderly structure and the flux of existence.

Cajori's work was most recently exhibited in a one-man show at the Henry Gallery in Seattle and at the Chicago Institute Annual. He has also had one-man shows at the Watkins Gallery in Washington, D.C., the Tanager Gallery in New York (which he helped organize in 1952), at the Oakland Art Museum, Cornell University and the Howerd Wise Gallery.

In addition he has been included in exhibitions at tre Whitney Museum of American Art, the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis, the University of Kentucky and University of Nebraska, the "Festival of Two Worlds" in Spoletto, Italy, the Corcoran Biennial in Washington, and was represented in two traveling shows "100 Works on Paper" by the institute of Contemporary Arts of Boston which toured Europe and the Museum of Modern Art's "American Abstract Drawings."

Cajori was awarded a Fulbright Grant to Italy in 1952-53 and received the Distinction in Arts Award from Yale University in 1959 and the Longview Foundation Purchase Award in 1962.

United Air Lines Crash Being Probed

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP)—Officials continued to search a wooded hill near here today to find out why a United Air Lines plane crashed late Thursday. All 39 persons aboard died.

George R. Baker, Civil Aeronautics Board investigator directing the search, said a body was found more than a mile from the wreckage.

Baker said there was no reason to believe sabotage was involved.

Only six bodies have been identified so far. They include those of two stewardesses, Carol Lynn Berndt, Laurel, Md., and Virginia Vollmer, Alexandria, Va. Passengers were Frank J. Tosca, Avon, Mass., and Paul Pohl, Springfield, Mass.

Names of the other two will be released when next of kin have been notified.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: The Jar Seal.

NEEDED: Two Mason jars with Kerr - type lids, cold water, boiling water, and a pencil.

DO THIS: Fill one jar with cold water, one with hot, and screw the lids on tightly. When the hot water has cooled to room temperature, test the "seal" by tapping the lids with a pencil point. The lid on the cold water will give a dull thud, while the lid on the jar in which the water was formerly hot will give a musical ringing sound.

WHY? As the hot water cools, the steam occupying the space above the hot water level will condense, leaving a partial vacuum. Then the greater pressure of the atmosphere outside the jar will push the lid inward as shown in the right drawing at C.

This is the way housewives who can fruit and vegetables test their jars to see if they are properly sealed. If a jar does not seal properly, air from outside leaks in, and the sound made by the pencil point is a dull thud.

Get the new collection of these science tricks. Look for it in bookstores under the name "Science Circus No. 2." Fleet of New York is the publisher.

Archery Range Complete in School Gym

A new archery range has been completed in the balcony of the Canon City High School gymnasium that will enable the long inactive high school archery club to shoot year around.

The range was constructed through the joint efforts of the Canon City High School Archery Club and the Fremont Bowmen.

The girl's physical education program will use the range with the club and the Bowmen. The archery range in no way interferes with the activities on the regular gym floor.

Target butts are against the back wall of the balcony and are set on the same incline as the seatbacks which serve as supports for the target bases. The walls above, below, and on each end of this area are protected from inaccurate shots by padding.

Six archers will be able to shoot at one time by shooting down the aisles between rows of seats.

Keith Simons, a qualified National Field Archery Association instructor, is sponsor of the high school club.

High school students who helped in constructing the range are: Ed Montgomery, Dennis Orndorff, Ken Paston, John Klaus, and Jerry Bolling, all members of woodshop classes taught by Simons.

CCHS students who are members of Fremont Bowmen, and who helped include Bob Steers, Rocky Bosco, Stanley Rowe, Rex Kohl, and Scot Simons. Adult Fremont Bowmen who helped are: Glenn Bullen, Ernie Kohl, Fred Row, Doyle Templeton, Bryant Payne and Simons.

Wife Runs Against Husband in Vote Race

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — "You can't tell your husband everything, you know," says Mrs. Patricia Milan.

For instance, she didn't tell him she planned to run against him for a seat on Flint's nonpartisan city commission.

To Edward Milan, 40, a jeweler, the news came as a surprise.

The couple say they have disagreed about some local political issues.

Milan found out about his wife's plans when he went to the city clerk's office to obtain nomination petitions. He learned his wife had picked up a set of petitions—but not for him.

1,000-Boat Marina First Of its Kind in New York

By JACK WOLISTON
United Press International

The huge, 1,000-boat Marina at New York's World's Fair boasts one of the most modern marine filling stations ever built.

The six-sided, floating station, said to be the first of its kind, can handle anything from a 10-foot pram to a good-sized yacht.

Seven tanks were built into the steel hull of the floating station and will hold 1,600 barrels of gasoline in two grades and 1,400 barrels of diesel fuel, making a total capacity of 125,000 gallons of marine fuel.

The floating station was designed and engineered by the Sinclair Refining Co., in conjunction with the Bethlehem Steel Co.

Each of the six sides of the main fuel float is 36 feet long with a design depth of 8 feet and 70 feet in diameter from point to point. With all tanks full, the station will draw 5 feet, 3 inches. In light condition, it will draw 9 inches.

Each of the six locations is equipped with two gasoline pumps and one diesel pump. Immediately in front of each "pumping station" and attached to the main fuel float is a fiberglas "service float" 32 feet long by 9½ feet wide.

Boats requiring service will tie up to the "service floats" which are secured to the main fuel float in such a way as to maintain a constant freeboard of about 20 inches, while the main fuel float is free to rise and fall according to its change in draft.

Gangway platforms are provided at each "service float" for access to the main fuel float where vending machines, electricity, fresh water and telephones are located.

The deck of the floating station is covered with a red and white translucent fiberglass paneled canopy 48 feet in diameter and 15 feet high. Under it is an operator's office and display area completely enclosed in transparent plexiglass for 360 degree vision.

The deck of the entire floating station is illuminated to permit night service.

The entire fueling station and "service float" system is permanently moored to fixed pilings at the end of an 800-foot long shore connecting pier.

Although the fueling station receives electrical power and other facilities via shore connections, it also has been designed to be completely self-contained if necessary, with power supplied by a portable diesel generator.

Among the dozen or more boats that will kick off the 1964 schedule of 10 events for unlimited hydroplanes on June 21 is a new entry, "Miss Smirnoff," sponsored by Heublein, Inc., of Hartford, Conn., and owned by W. D. Enterprises, Detroit.

The new boat, with former Indianapolis "500" driver Bill (Wild Bill) Cantrell at the wheel, is entered for the Dixie Cup at Lake Guntersville, Ala., on June 21. She also willl compete in the Gold Cup race, top event of the season, at Detroit on July 5.

Boats, Motors Mismatched, Experts Warn

By JACK WOLISTON
United Press International

A boating expert believes that the industry has been hurt and a great many new boat owners have become disenchanted with boating because of mismatched boat and motor combinations.

He is William E. Pearson, vice president and general manager of the MFG Boat Co., Union City, Pa.

Pearson believes that conservative horsepower rating for outboard-powered boats are important to boating safety.

"Any well made boat serves a useful purpose and the same is true of an outboard motor," Pearson says. "Nevertheless, all boats and all motors were never intended to be put into combination. Suggested horsepower ratings used by some boat manufacturers in an effort to catch every sale are ridiculous and combinations with these power units can only lead to disappointment."

In a statement issued on the eve of Boating Safety Week, which begins June 28, Pearson says that unfortunately many prospective purchasers use horsepower ratings as a comparison of the strength and quality of a boat.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth," he says. "Horsepower capacity, as recommended by the Boating Industry Association, is merely a pencil and paper computation based upon certain dimensions. This is not subject to physical test and has no indication whatsoever of the actual strength, durability or safety of the boat.

"Also confusing the situation is the boat manufacturer who deliberately places his own high horsepower rating on his product, hoping that a certain percentage of boat purchasers will use this rating as a factor in making comparisons between competitive boats. This practice is easier and even less expensive than using superlative advertising claims."

Howard Weiler, a Miami, Fla., businessman and outboard enthusiast, is looking for new worlds to conquer.

In recent months, Weiler has scored a first place in the outboard division of the tough Miami-Nassau race (he was 10th overall), and successfully wrestled his 22-foot runabout from New Orleans to Chicago in 46 hours and 56 minutes.

In 1963, Weiler established the outboard record from Miami to New York.

On the New Orleans - Chicago run through the debris - littered Mississippi, Illinois and Chicago rivers, the 35 year-old Weiler and his co-pilot, John Broz, 34, of Lake Worth, Fla., used the same 22-foot North American boat, powered by twin Johnson 90 horsepower units, with which they won the Miami-Nassau honors.

Their average speed against a current of from 3 to 8 miles per hour as 31.29 miles per hour. The debris chewed up 14 propellers, but otherwise they had no mechanical difficulties.

What's next for the intrepid boarder, president of Chemico Corp. of Miami?

"Maybe the Great Lakes or the Colorado River," says Weiler. "Anything that presents a challenge."

Ratsey & Lapthorn, Inc., one of the world's oldest sailmakers, has come up with a new lightweight nylon, spinnaker fabric.

Known as the "Ghoster," the new three quarter ounce nylon is designed, according to the manufacturer, for maximum performance on light, bobbly days or on soft nighttime ghosting runs.

To Keep Ohio Scranton Fails

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton failed last week to persuade Gov. James A. Rhodes to keep the 58-vote Ohio delegation lined up behind Rhodes and away from Sen. Barry Goldwater on the first ballot for the Republican presidential nomination.

The delegation has been committed to Rhodes as a favorite son. Estimates of Goldwater strength in the Ohio delegation indicate the Arizona senator has about 40 votes.

Scranton attacked Goldwater here for statements attributed to the senator in the German news magazine "Der Spiegel." The governor said the statements have become "a matter of grave national concern."

He called on Goldwater to present a transcript of his interview with the German magazine's reporter to the Republican platform committee today.

"The reckless comments of the senator from Arizona in the area of war and peace have become a matter of grave national concern," Scranton said at a news conference.

Scranton specifically criticized a statement in the magazine transcript of the Goldwater intreview that quoted the senator as saying he would turn the decision for extending the war in South Viet Nam over to his chiefs of staff.

Kentucky, in 1776, was chartered as a county of Virginia.

LICENSE-PLATE BACKFIRE

CHICAGO (AP) — Fabricating a set of license plates because "the show must go on" put Carl Griggs, 45, a musician in a jail cell.

Griggs was seized in his automobile in the parking lot at O'Hare International Airport. He was polishing a saxophone, one of four he had in the car.

The 1963 license plates on Griggs' 1961 automobile had been painted an orchid purple, similar to Illinois' 1964 plates. The "Land of Lincoln" legend had been cut off the bottom of the plate and affixed to the top with tape to conform to the new plates.

"I had a job Saturday night, the first one in quite a few months," Griggs said. "I needed the car. I didn't have any 1964 plates, so I did the next best thing—I made my own."

Fountain Valley Holds Big Parade Saturday

Hundreds of Fountain Valley residents lined streets in Security and Fountain Saturday morning to watch the big parade.

Floats followed the theme of "A United Fountain Valley" in the celebration sponsored by the Fountain Valley Chamber of Commerce.

The parade formed at 9:30 a.m. on Security Boulevard at the north end of the village. The paraders streamed down the street, led by the revolving beacon of a deputy sheriff's car. Also in the vanguard was a Security Volunteer Fire Department car with a wailing siren.

The honor guard included two Ft. Carson soldiers of the 5th Division (Mechanized) and two color bearers of the Security American Legion Post 38. Their flags fluttered in the strong wind.

Riding in a convertible were lovely Marie Ann Bowen, Queen of Fountain Valley, and her aides, Miss Josephine Guzman and Miss Tomma Brizendine.

Ken Burrett, world's champion baton tosser, led baton twirlers. Then came the Widefield High School Band, accompanied by the school cheerleaders. Then the Joan Cowan Twirling Club.

Two Security Volunteer Fire Department trucks rumbled by. The first was driven by Chief Rusty Hart, the second by Rogger Fay, a member of the fire board who seeks the Republican nomination for El Paso County commissioner.

Floats included those sponsored by the Security Art Group, United BYJC, Bank of Fountain Valley, Security Cub Scouts Pack 37, Fountain Valley Fire Department, Widefield Playground, Friends of the Security Public Library, a trailer seller from Fountain, a Security service station, a dressed - up Volkswagen and two floats from Black Forest: the Pine Cone Promenaders (square dance group) and a float on the theme of the recent Black Forest Summer Festival.

The parade disbanded and reformed in Fountain. Some floats were a little battered by now, but more entries were added, mostly horse carts.

Judges declared float winners in three classes: Pine Cone Promenaders, youngster division, Jaycee Wives, adult division; and Security Advertiser and Fountain Valley News, commercial class.

Greased pigs were turned loose after the parade, in Security and Fountain. Richard Paul of Security caught a porker in each town. One agile pig got loose in Fountain and ran through the town and along the railroad tracks until Richard tackled it. Other porkers were caught by John and Edward Mestas (one pig), Jerry McGee and Allen Aiken.

After the pig chase there was a kiddie dress up contest in the Fountain town park. Mike Kelly of Fountain won the working cowboy award, and Marie Mansker, of Colorado Springs, the working cowgirl award.

There was a gymkhana at 1 p.m. in the park. First place winners were: Bonnie McPherson, senior barrel race; Dorrie Williams, junior barrel race; Helen Williams, senior stake race; Daryl Wiltgen, junior stake race; Helen Williams, senior pole bending;; Dorrie Williams, junior pole bending; Bonrace Daryl Wiltgen, junior flag race; Daryl Wiltgen,, junior flag race; Jerry Ratliff, 75-yard up and back race; and Dorrie Williams, the junior 75-yard race. Dorrie Williams was high-point junior; and Bonnie McPherson,, high-point senior.

Hungry persons gathered at 5 p.m. in Fountain park for a barbecue feast. AT 7 p.m. there was a talent show in Fountain-Ft. Carson High School and a dance at 9 p.m. in Fountain Junior High School, featuring the Broadmoor Hotel's House Band.

Burglars Grab $179 From Teamster Hall

City Police Saturday reported a burglary of Teamsters Hall Local 146, sometime Friday night. Fred W. Bierig, president and general manager, discovered the ransacked secretary's office and notified police.

Taken by intruders was $179, most in currency, Bierig told police.

Secretary Luise Freeman told investigating officers that she had secured all doors and windows at about 6 p.m. Friday. Police said that a desk drawer had been pried open and the money removed from a cash box.

Officers said that a door on the north side of the building was possibly used in entering by the intruders.

Washington Negro Educator Killed In Georgia

42, both of Washington, D. C. Neither was hurt. All three had completed the same refresher course at Ft. Benning.

An Army spokesman said Penn left the base, at Columbus, Ga., shortly after midnight Friday. He and the others traveled north in a 1959 Chevrolet owned by Brown.

Sheriff Dewey Seagraves of Madison County said the three were suddenly passed from the rear by a car. One of its occupants fired two blasts into the Negroes' automobile, which was being driven by Penn.

Seagraves said one blast hit Penn under the left jaw and killed him instantly.

The sheriff reported the shotgun was loaded with buckshot. When Penn was shot, he slumped over the steering wheel and Brown said he grabbed the wheel to control the car, which was crossing a bridge over the Winding Hudson River.

The car scraped the side of the bridge, but Brown brought it to a halt.

No racial trouble has been reported in the area where the shooting took place.

The sheriff said the Negroes made only one stop, to buy gasoline at a service station near Atlanta, about 70 miles southwest of here. They had no words with anyone and noticed nothing unusual. They were wearing fatigue, or training uniforms.

Seagraves said there was nothing to indicate the killing was a racial incident.

Professor's Son Departs for Stay In Germany

The son of a Colorado College professor recently departed for a 10 - week stay in Germany.

He was Thomas Christopher Brandt of Princeton University, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas O. Brandt, 3821 Meadow Lane. Dr. Brandt is chairman of the CC German department.

Young Brandt, who is majoring in English and German at Princeton University, has been employed temporarily by Lufthansa German Airlines. He is stationed with the Air Cargo Operations Center in Frankfurt, the hub of most German air traffic.

First- Ballot Nomination Predicted for Goldwater

the delegates stand.

But it is the delegates who do the voting in the convention.

Even Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the former president and the man who will put Scranton's name in nomination Wednesday, was "not too optimistic."

Scranton's big business of the morning was a 1½-hour session with North Carolina's 26-vote delegation. The North Carolinians came out of it offering Scranton high praise but no votes.

Three delegates said the whole package of 26 is Goldwater's on the first ballot.

Goldwater was so supremely confident that he was looking ahead to taking on President Johnson in a hard slugging campaign for which the GOP platform set the tone.

He has just about made up his mind that he wants Rep. William E. Miller of New York as a running mate.

As Republican national chairman, Miller has made his mark as a no-holds-barred battler and he would draw the assignment to keep up the heavy punching as the GOP vice presidential nominee.

Some New York Republican leaders see a Miller candidacy as no help to the state ticket in November.

Another New Yorker, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, intends to let his name be presented to the convention as a presidential candidate in a maneuver to keep from Goldwater the delegates the governor won in the Oregon primary before he withdrew from the race.

But things looked so cut and dried as to candidates and platform that there wasn't much to rouse the delegates.

The Arizona senator is relying mainly now on an Ohio caucus Monday to hand over a batch of votes he says would cinch his first-ballot victory.

Actually, Goldwater reportedly tells friends he already has 80 more than the 655 votes needed to win but wants another 20 to bolster his position against any last-minute raids.

He figures he can get the 20, maybe 30, from Ohio's 58 vote total after Gov. James A. Rhodes formally tells delegation members they are free to abandon him as a favorite son and hop to whomever they please.

Goldwater's count corresponds closely to that of The Associated Press on the number of votes the senator can expect on the first ballot.

The AP tabulation shows that since Scranton plunged into the race against Goldwater on June 12 his first-ballot strength has nearly doubled—and in the same period Goldwater has gained more than twice as many votes as Scranton.

And Goldwater felt safe enough Saturday to start jotting down notes for an acceptance speech—even though Scranton's convention manager, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, predicted the senator "will be stopped short on the first ballot" and Scranton will win on the third or fourth.

The governor didn't go that far at a news conference. But he said he will lead a rebellion against the platform in the convention itself should he disagree with it substantially.

Preliminary planning began Friday night for a fight over planks on civil rights, right-to-work, political extremism and civilian control of nuclear weapons.

Scranton forces hunted desperately for some way to start a backfire against Goldwater. They wanted anything that would give them even a minor victory at this point.

One possibility is an attempt to get a secret ballot on the presidential and vice-presidential nominations so that any Goldwater delegates who might want to jump to Scranton could do so less nervously.

John Roosevelt, the Republican son of the late Democratic president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, arrived at the convention Saturday not as a delegate but to mount the Scranton ramparts.

From behind these ramparts came pot shots at the Goldwater-dominated Platform Committee and at the Republican National Committee.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the 1960 vice-presidential nominee and former ambassador to South Viet Nam accused the national committee of letting its mail remain unopened after learning it was running 3 to 1 for Scranton. William Sprague, director of public relations for the committee, promptly denied it, saying some mail had mistakenly been delivered to the Cow Palace, but now has been distributed.

Lodge and Scott ripped into the Platform Committee, saying it had cut out the first portion of the platform any pointing with pride to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower or even mention of his name.

Lodge said a motion might be made on the convention floor to insert an "I like Ike" declaration in the platform.

Eisenhower may see both Goldwater and Scranton. But he has been saying steadfastly he isn't going to back anybody until after the candidate is picked.

By way of reminding everybody she still is a candidate, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine tapped Betty Horne of Longview, Wash., to make a speech seconding her nomination.

Fawcett Funeral Rite Set for Monday

A resident of Colorado Springs for 29 years, Mrs. Tressa E. Fawcett, 90, of 621 N. Union Blvd., died Thursday at a local hospital.

Mrs. Fawcett was born Nov. 5, 1873 in Monroe County, Ohio. She moved with her parents to Hayes, Kan., in the early 1880's where she married John B. Ellett in 1889. She moved to Okeene, Okla., in 1893, and from there to Mt. View, Mo., in 1922, then to Colorado in 1935.

She was a member of the Methodist Church and the Townsend Club No. 9.

Survivors include three sons, Paul Ellett of Colorado Springs, Ed Ellett of St. John, Kan., and Frank Ellett of Plainville, Kan.; one daughter, Mrs. Anna Dill of Colorado Springs; a stepson, Don Fawcett of Rockville, Utah, 16 grandchildren, 42 great - grandchildren and 16 great - great - grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Swan Drawing Room with the Rev. Harold Knudsen officiating. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Republican Platform Asks Superiority Over Soviets

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin said such an "I-like-Ike" will appear in the second installment.

An open floor fight in the convention became a virtual certainty, as the Scranton men met one reverse after another in trying to insert Goldwater-baiting planks on civil rights, the John Birch Society, civilian control of nuclear weapons, and other controversial issues.

We'll still fight like hell," said Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, leader of Scranton's troops in the Platform Committee.

"Many people in this convention quite obviously prefer not to pay any honor to Gen. Eisenhower and his administration," Scott told reporters.

"They would like to call the party Conservative, not Republican."

The agreed-on first installment of the platform noted that the Democrats for four years have held the White House and have had overwhelming control of Congress.

It asked the voters: "Have these leaders successfully advanced the purposes of this mightiest nation mankind has known?

"Tragically, in each instance, the answer must be, 'No.'

"Let the Democratic party stand accused."

State Demos Name to Oppose Chenoweth

ties in the new congressional district, including El Paso County, and strove hard from the beginning to wrap up his party's designation to avoid a primary election fight.

If Ross had received the necessary 57 votes at the convention, he would have been on the ballot with Evans in the Sept. 8 primary election. This would have meant a primary campaign between the two men.

In his drive for designation earlier, Evans pointed out that primary campaigns drain the party and don't contribute to the winner as much as they take away.

They also are expensive, Evans pointed out, and so he wished to avoid one.

Ross came face to face with the success of this drive at the convention Saturday, and so he and his supporters mounted a short, but unsuccessful, drive to delay the final decision.

George Gibson, Colorado Springs attorney, nominated Ross.

Gibson said "A primary helps a man become well-known."

He added, "I hope that you delegates will nominate more than one man here today." Ross was the first man to be put into nomination.

Ben Fann, a Douglas County attorney, seconded Ross's nomination.

He admitted that J. Edgar Chenoweth, Republican incumbent, would be a hard man to beat, but added that in the process of selecting a man to contest with Chenoweth, that a primary election is very much needed.

"It lets the people know about the candidates," he said, and asked that the delegates designate Ross so that the Democrats in the district could vote on the selection of the man.

Cecil Day of Fremont County, seconded Ross and said that it wasn't fair to select the nominee without a vote of the district. "Let's put Ross on the ticket and see what he can do," he said.

William Hochman, state Democratic secretary, and a history professor at Colorado College, nominated Evans.

He said that the people of the district have waited for a man who would, if elected as representative, work for them. He said that this district needed a good, honest and responsible job done for them in Congress, and that Evans could do the job.

Hochman pointed out that Evans, an attorney, also is chairman of the Arkansas Valley Bank, and thus has an understanding of business.

Two years ago, Evans led the Democratic ticket in Pueblo, Hochman pointed out.

Hochman quoted Thomas Jefferson as saying that the earth belongs to the living, not the dead, and he added, "Frank Evans is devoted to the living."

He said that Evans is not afraid to face change, and that he is able to search for and find answers to tough problems.

Albert J. Frantz of Pueblo, was the first man to second Evans.

He said that Evans is a hard campaigner, and also that he was the man who carried the ball for Southern Colorado State College in the state legislature when it was approved two years ago.

Oleshaw, who was not a delegate or alternate to the assembly and convention, nominated himself.

After Evans and Ross had been nominated and seconded, Bechtol asked if there were any more nominations. He asked a second time, and still had no more nominations.

Just as he was set to bang down the gavel and close nominations, Oleshaw spoke up and said he wanted to make "procedures crystal clear."

Bechtol said that he already explained to Oleshaw once that nominations could only be made by delegates to the convention, unless the convention unanimously voted to allow a non-delegate to make a nomination.

Bechtol then asked for such a move from the floor. None came.

Oleshaw again protested, saying that things were not crystal clear.

At this point, Durito Bonicelli, a delegate from Huerfano County, stood up and said, "Aw, let him get nominated."

Bechtol invited Bonicelli to the microphone to make the nomination.

Bonicelli then said he placed the name of the man in nomination, but didn't bother to use Oleshaw's name.

After Oleshaw failed to get a single vote, he said that he would run as an independent.

In addition to Bechtol and Dwire, these were the delegates named to attend the national convention.

This is the full list of the delegates and alternates from the Third Congressional District elected to attend the national convention:

Delegates — Bechtol, Charles Vigil, Trinidad; Lew John, Pueblo; Fred M. Betz, Lamar; Mrs. Rose Zupan, Pueblo, and Mrs. Frances Carper, Burlington.

Alternates — Dwire; John Ruddy, Castle Rock; Bonicelli.

Bonicelli and Mrs. Josephine Rivera, Fremont County, were tied for third alternate.

To break the tie, Bechtol flipped a Kennedy half dollar provided for the occasion, and Mrs. Rivera lost when she called heads and it came up tails.

The other loser was John Farley, of Pueblo, who got only 67½ votes.

Parson Memorial Rite To Be Held Friday

Mrs. Alice A. Parsons, 1120 E. Columbia St., a resident of Colorado Springs for about 60 years, died Friday at Denver. Mrs. Parsons was a bookkeeper for Cox Shoe Co. for many years.

She was born in Stanton, Iowa, and was a member of First Church of Christ Scientist here and of The Mother Church of Boston, Mass.

Survivors include a son, Wayne A. Parsons of Fort Collins; two grandsons; two brothers, Eugene Anderson of Colorado Springs and Conrad Anderson of Boise, Idaho, and a niece, Mrs. Lawrence Leigh of Colorado Springs.

Memorial services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Law Drawing Room, with burial in Evergreen Cemetery.

Friends are requested to please omit flowers.

moderate doesn't like him any more than he likes Scranton—and that isn't much.

Goldwater's own estimate is that liberals of the Scranton type make up only a tiny portion of the Republicans. His best judgment is that when the chips are down most of them will go along with him because they have little choice.

Although he has been strictly a party organization man in the past, Goldwater expects citizens' committees and groups of Democrats for Goldwater to be formed for him, particularly in the South: He will give them a free hand to operate outside the regular GOP organization.

Implicit in all of this planning—but never mentioned around Goldwater headquarters—is the belief that there will be civil rights disturbances which may force Johnson to call out troops.

Talks Deadlocked On Disarmament

GENEVA (UPI) — U. S. and Soviet negotiators were reported here to have failed to agree in private talks here on the creation of an expert working group to discuss nuclear disarmament problems.

Reliable sources said the deadlock was caused by Soviet Insistence that only Moscow's proposals should be discussed by such a group. The United States maintained that all serious proposals concerning nuclear disarmament be put before the experts.

SAN ISABEL NATIONAL FOREST

This National Forest is located in south-central Colorado. It extends from the Arkansas River to within 15 miles from the Colorado - New Mexico boundary. Pueblo is the headquarters and the forest is divided into three divisions, Wet Mountain, Sangre de Cristo and Spanish Peaks. The area of government owned land within the boundaries of the forest is 613,652 acres. In addition there are 47,119 acres of private state and municipal land within the forest. The Wet Mountains are the nearest to Pueblo and, according to tradition, the Mormon pioneers coming from the east across the dry dust-laden plains saw in the distance the verdure of the wooded mountain slopes and heavy rain clouds hovering above so they rejoicingly named them the Wet Mountains.

To the south rise the two Spanish Peaks, in all probability the first of the Rockies seen by white men. They form a part of the Culebra Range and rise precipitously from an almost level valley. Their snowcapped peaks stand out like beacons, signaling the approach to the rugged grandeur of the rest of the Rockies. Further west, stretching away to the north, heavily timbered slopes and the sharp jagged peaks of the Sangre de Cristo range rise in close succession, forming an awe-inspiring skyline nearly 100 miles in extent. Many of the peaks are more then 14,000 feet high.

The Spanish Peaks and the Sange de Cristo range are easily seen from many points surrounding Colorado Springs. On the Pueblo road, a short distance from town, if the day is clear, they show up distinctly, also on highways east of town and at the Lookout Point in Austin Bluffs you can get splendid views if clear. On the Canon City road, about 15 miles out, you get good views of Wet Mountains and Sangre de Cristo Mountains. On clear days, the Spanish Peaks show up at the Printers Home. Colorado has 14 National Forests. San Juan the largest, covering 1,249,000 acres. These forests were established to assure a perpetual supply of timber, to preserve the forest cover ,which prevents erosion, and to regulate the flow of streams. There are many points of interest in the San Isabel National Forest, both geological and scenic. In the Culebra Range are the strange walls of Cucharras, which displays bizarre shapes and exquisite coloring. Amid these picturesque settings were enacted some of the early chapters of our country's history. On the rocks near Wetmore is to be seen the signature of Kit Carson carved by the famous scout. In the Sangre de Christo Range are 40 crater lakes and south of Westcliffe, in the red sand stone bed are fossils of early sea life which indicate that this great inland range was once a sea bottom. The Medane, a disappearing creek, Marbel cave, the unexplored Bottomless pit, the great Sand Dunes of 36 square miles, the four peaks, Serra Blanca, Crestone Needle, Kit Carson and Humboldt, over 14,000 feet, are within the forest. Pike National Forest is a neighbor of San Isabel, but they vary in plant and animal life.

Army to Roll Welcome Mat for AFA Cadets

The Army will roll out an action-packed welcome mat for members of the Air Force Academy Class of 1967 at Fort Benning, Ga.

As part of "Falcon 1964," field study of the armed forces, the Academy sophomores will pend July 12 through 15 at the Army's Infantry Center and Infantry School.

To provide the future Air Force officers with a detailed look at the Army's capabilities, Benning personnel will parade a cross-section of their "arsenal" for cadets.

Following a welcome by the Infantry School commandant and a lecture on the history and background of that service, the Academy contingent will watch demonstrations of Ranger tactics.

The Army's air arm will also figure in the program. Various aircraft will perform and then land in front of the spectators to allow close inspection.

Many of the basic Infantry weapons will then be demonstrated.

Cadets will get into the act Tuesday as they take part in an airborne orientation. They will learn the fundamentals of parachuting such as landing falls, try out the swing landing trainer, jump from the 43-foot tower and practice quick release techniques while being buffeted by a gargantuan truck-mounted fan.

Instructors will then jump from the 250-foot tower.

All cadets will get a chance to fire three of the Infantry's basic weapons — the M-14 rifle, the M-60 light machine gun, and the 90 mm recoilless rifle.

The final day at the center (Wednesday) will be a busy one. The entire class is scheduled to parade for Benning personnel. Cadets will then observe engineers in a river crossing exercise using helicopters to aid bridge construction, an Infantry company task force in attack supported by tanks, and a night problem showing a rifle company in defense utilizing artillery.

Drug Perspective Gained Through Hopkins Meet

A small group of individuals with diverse backgrounds — historians, legislators, drug manufacturers, legal experts, physicians, economists, pharmacologists, sociologists — met and talked about drugs for four days last November, under the auspices of the Johns Hopkins University. One tangible result of their meeting is "Drugs in Our Society," a book just published by The Johns Hopkins Press.

Perhaps the most unusual aspect of the Hopkins conference is that it brought together for the first time individuals with different and often opposing points of view on drug problems in an environment conducive to frank examination of the issues. As one delves into the 21 essays presented at the conference and now published in "Drugs in Our Society," it becomes evident that each writer sees the problem in a different light. At the same time, each seeking his own solution to problems which directly affect human lives and health.

Clearly, as evidence not only by participation at this conference of people with widely varying professional interests but also by the fact that drugs are consumed by almost everyone at some point in their lives, the production and use of drugs which are both safe and effective must be the concern of every conscientious member of our society.

Drugs have become almost a fad among a surprisingly large number of physicians as well as their patients. How easy it must be, certain of the contributors suggest, to pull out the prescription pad and sign the patient's bill of health. Unfortunately that bill of health often involves a substantial bill of another kind from the local druggist, a bill which can place an intolerable burden on those least able to bear it — the aged and the needy. More serious, many of the complex and powerful new drugs essential to modern therapy can themselves cause dangerous complications. These so-called "diseases of medical progress" are more and more engaging the attention of the medical profession and bringing increasing awareness of the extreme care and skill necessary in the testing and use of drugs today.

Among the important areas of discussion in the book are: the effectiveness of legislation, patents, and the responsibility of the individual physician. Drugs in Our Society also discusses the ethical considerations involved in testing new drugs on human beings, the sociological repercussions of the modern revolution in drug therapy, the legal consequences of drug mishaps — vitually every significant question concerning drugs today. It brings into sharp focus the magnitude of difficulties which confront us in the discovery, testing, manufacture and distribution of drugs.

The book was edited by Dr. Paul Talalay, John Jacob Abel professor and director of the department of pharmacology and experimental therapeutics at The Johns Hopkins University. In his summary, Dr. Talalay points out that ". . . the law is only one of the avenues through which new and sensitive adjustments must constantly be sought to the quickening pace of medical research —adjustments that stimulate to the utmost the creative forces at work to find new and effective drugs for the benefit of all, without sacrificing the rights and safety of the individual members of society.

Involved in this process are many agonizing decisions that affect the future of individuals, their careers, their health, their welfare, and even their lives. Responsibility for these decisions cannot be relegated to any single group within society, but most must be shared by expert and layman alike.

The consumer of drugs is utterly dependent for his safety upon the social conscience of disinterested experts and their willingness to exercise this responsibility."

Airport Workers Strike in London

LONDON (UPI) — A strike by 1,500 London Airport workers in protest against relocation of their automobile parking lot disrupted service at London Airport Friday.

Hundreds of flights were cancelled or delayed for hours, affecting 22,000 passengers of British European Airways (BEA) and causing a loss of revenue of $616,000, a BEA spokesman said.

Walruses can swim down as deep as 200 feet to dig with their tusks for meals of clams or oysters.

Ex-Mayor O'dwyer Notes 74th Birthday

NEW YORK (AP) — William O'Dwyer, mayor of New York City from 1946, to 1950, celebrated his 74th birthday today.

Asked about the current police-corruption and gambling investigation, reminiscent of a similar scandal that rocked his last administration, O'Dwyer said:

"Such scandals will recur all the time. There is no way of stopping them, except one. That is the legalized control of gambling."

Geologists Map West Mountain, Florence Region

Geologists from Ball State College, Muncie, Ind., are busy at work mapping a 156 square mile area of the Florence and Wet Mountain region.

Headed by Henry Kane, assistant professor of geology, who is making his headquarters in Florence until sometime in November, the group of three men are hoping to reconstruct the quaternary history and geomorphology of this area.

Work on the mapping was started in the summer of 1963, Kane noted.

His assistants this year are two undergraduate students at Ball including Jim Watson and Jack Rardin.

Since the geomorphology of the Florence-Wetmore area has never been worked up before, Kane was encouraged in the project by an official of the USGS in Denver.

Concentrating on the task of mapping the alluvial formations laid down in this region by streams and rivers, the geologists were busy this week near the county's gravel pit south of the D&RG tracks in Florence.

During their mapping the three men uncovered the skeletal remains of a horse. The bones were being carefully gathered to be sent to labs for study to determine the age of the bones. The remains were found in the Pleistocene, or recent epoch of man which measured in time could anywehre from one to 1,000,000 years in the era of geology.

Kane, when completed with his study of the valley region, is expected to present his findings in the form of a doctor's thesis.

He noted that Ball State college is in the process of expanding its facilities from a college to a university status. He also indicated that sometime in the future the school might take an interest in the Florence area to send scheduled field study classes here similar to those which used to base in the city from LSU and SLI.

The violet is the official flower of four states—New Jersey, Illinois, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

FACULTY MEMBERS CITED — Brig. Gen. Robert F. McDermott, Air Force Academy dean of faculty, presents the Air Force Commendation Medal to Maj. Roy T. Clark and William F. Goodner. Both officers were cited for outstanding contributions to the Academy curriculum. (Air Force Photo)

AFA Men Cited For Curriculum Contributions

Two members of the Air Force Academy Department of Chemistry and Physiology have been cited for important contributions to the curriculum.

Receiving the Air Force Commendation Medal from Brig. Gen. Robert F. McDermott were Majors William F. Goodner and Roy T. Clark.

Maj. Goodner distinguished himself as an instructor, assistant professor, and associate professor of physiology between April 25, 1958, and May 1, 1964.

During the period, Maj. Goodner demonstated an exceptionally high degree of professional competance and skill in developing the life science program.

Under his direction the life science courses grew from a single summer term training course to a five course academic sequence. Application of fundamental princials of physiology to Air Force weapons systems brought vitality and professionalism to the course.

Maj. Clark served as an instructor, course director, and associate professor of chemistry from Aug. 21, 1961, to May 25, 1964.

Utilizing broad professional technical skills, he developed new and improved methods for presenting the prescribed course in chemistry.

Application of the fundamental principles of chemistry to the professional challenges of the military profession brought vitality to the course, improved its status in the curriculum, and emphasized its role in the overall Academy mission.

A veteran of more than 20 years active service is scheduled to retire Aug. 1 at the Air Force Academy.

CWO David E. Lockwood, management procedures officer in the Base Equipment Management Office, Materiel, will wind up a career which began at Fort Hays, Ohio, Sept. 30, 1940.

Following basic training at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., CWO Lockwood attended the Air Corps Supply School, Fort Logan. He was then transferred to Hq., Southwest Air District, March Field, Calif.

As a member of the Technical Supply Section, CWO Lockwood remained with the Fourth Air Force until discharged in December, 1945.

Following his re-enlistment in the Air Force, March 15, 1949, assignments took him to Ellington AFB, Tex.; Wheelus Field; Tripoli; Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio; Limestone AFB, Maine; and Manzano Base, N.M. ex.

Appointed a warrant officer in 1955, CWO Lockwood then served at Manzano, Sandia Base, N. Mex., and Itazuke AB, Japan.

He joined the Academy staff July 11, 1963.

Argentine Men To Receive AFA Briefing

Five officers from Argentine Air Force, representing the general staff and training command activities, will receive a briefing on Air Force Academy operations Thursday.

Headed by Col. Francisco F. Llerena, member of the General Staff, Hq. Argentina Air Force the five-man team will receive a briefing, tour academic area facilities, and see the Academy movie "At the Ramparts" with a Spanish soundtrack.

The officers will also visit ADC during their stay in the Colorado Springs area.

Other Argentinian officers in the party include: Col. Jorge O. Conca, advisor to the commander, Air Training Command; Col. Roberto E. Ramallo, chief of the Economics Department, Air Force Headquarters; Lt. Col. Roberto F. Costa Martinez, chief, Academic Department, Air Force NCO School; and Lt. Col. Raul A. Kruse, member of the NCO School staff.

By DORA FOSTER

What a lot of familiar names have been brought to our minds in the following article so kindly written for us by Miss Dorothy Smith, curator of the Pioneer Museum.

As children, we listened often to our parents' conversations while these people of which we read today were living and forming the early history of this place.

Miss Smith's Article follows:

EL PASO COUNTY PIONEERS ASSOCIATION
1896 - 1916

The organizing meeting was held at the Opera House in June, 1896. Matt France was chairman, A. Z. Sheldon and M. B. Irvine were the other temporary officers. It was decided that anyone who had come to Colorado before July 31, 1861, was eligible for membership.

At the next meeting in June, 1896, a constitution and by-laws were adopted and a committee on formation of a permanent organization was named: M. A. Foster, Irving Howbert, David McShane, Lizzie Schneider and W. A. Love.

In 1897, Matt France was president and W. B. Irvine, secretary.

A special meeting was held in 1901 to hear Gilbert McClurg and J. G. Shields announce preparations for the Quarto - Centennial. At this time A. Z. Sheldon was vice president and Frank Cotten secretary.

In 1902 the pioneers held a picnic at Stratton Park, then called "Cheyenne Park." At this time Mrs. Charlotte Hill was president and David McShane was vice president and Frank Cotten secretary.

In 1905 Dr. William Strickler was president and Frank Cotten secretary. At the picnic the pioneers sang old songs, "Auld Lang Syne" and "The Old Oaken Bucket" among others.

They had a picnic at Stratton Park in 1906 and the Midland Band played for them as they stood around the bandstand. At this meeting Irving Howbert was elected president and E. J. Eaton secretary and treasurer.

Irving Howbert was still president in 1908 and Mrs. Florence Stote and Henry McAllister gave the program. At this meeting 16 deaths were reported, including that of Matt France, their first president. Also Mrs. Maud McFerran Price became chairman of a committee to start a permanent exhibit of relics of the frontier.

In 1910 Henry A. Wattson was president and E. J. Eaton, secretary. Relics in the collection had increased from 25 to 238 and all were on exhibition at the County Court House where this meeting was held. Mrs. Price was elected president and Jessie Aiken became secretary treasurer.

In 1911 the pioneers had become interested in Cliff Dwelling relics and gave J. Allard Jeancon $300 to find some relics to add to the collection. Mr. McAllister, Mr. Eaton, Mr. Rouse, Frank Cotten, Fred Ege and Mr. Garstin were active in the association at this time.

The next meeting was taken up with business of planning the marking of the Ute Pass Trail. E. E. Nichols of Manitou, Mrs. Irene Seldomridge, Dr. W. L. Bartlett and William Bartlett Jr. took part in the program and the plans for marking the trail.

By May of 1911 the pioneers were concerned with the flower carnival, where they entered in the parade a covered wagon and a Ramona float. Helen Foster was secretary and Mrs. Maud McFerran Price was president. In these days about 500 persons were attending meetings.

In 1912 amendments appeared making it possible for the membership to be increased. M. A. Foster, Mrs. Lawton and Arthur Perkins offered an amendment on membership stating that persons who had lived in the Territory of Colorado prior to Aug. 1, 1876, could be members of the association.

In October, 1912, Irving Howbert, chairman of the committee on marking the Ute Pass Trail, honored H. J. Reid, Mrs. Long, D. N. Heizer and E. E. Nichols for their valuable services. He also said that a long line of 50 mounted Indian Braves, squaws and pappooses, led by Buckskin Charley had taken part in the ceremony of marking the trail.

Mrs. Price continued as president through the years and in 1913 William Garstin became secretary. The building committee was working on plans for a small museum in Monument Park to house the relics. Members of the committee were: Mr. Humphrey, Dr. Bartlett and F. A. Perkins. Also in 1913 new officers of the association were M. A. Foster, first vice president; G. S. Barnes, second vice president; David Spielman, third vice president; William Garstin, secretary, and Helen Foster, treasurer.

By 1914 the pioneers had $545 in their building fund and the lists of deaths of pioneers were becoming longer. At their January meeting they spoke of Eugene Griswold, Edwin W. Giddings, Henry W. Lamb, Giles Crissey, J. D. Turner, Scott Kelley and Adam Hill as having died since the last meeting. 1914 was the date of incorporation with Mrs. Price, Frank Cotten, W. A. Perkins, Van E. Rouse, and William L. Bartlett as trustees.

An early pioneer read reminiscences at nearly every meeting. At the 1914 meeting Dr. Hester Jenkins suggested that Colorado College offer a course in the study of pioneer history based upon these memoirs. Often at pioneer meetings money was voted for aid to pioneers who were in need. Gravestones were placed on graves of pioneers whose families were unable to buy a stone. The pioneers bought a lot at Evergreen Cemetery and needy pioneers buried their dead in this lot.

Twenty years after the founding of the El Paso County Pioneers Association, 1916, some new names appeared on lists of committees such as Rosalie Scott, who was for many years president of the association. Also there were M. S. Beach, Tom Brigham, Anna Faulkner, Mrs. William Dixon, S. M. Buzzard, Dora Foster and Miss Dickerman.

During these years meetings were held in many places in Colorado City and Colorado Springs. The first meeting was held at the old Opera House, then came Exchange Hall at 114 E. Pikes Peak Ave., and the Board of Trade and Mining Exchange Building, the County Court House, rooms in the Chamber of Commerce and the Temple Theatre.

Story of Invasion By Haiti Is Denied

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Dominican Republic denied here that an invasion force crossed into Haitian territory on June 29, as Haiti charged last week.

The Dominican Republic said it had invited the Organization of American States to send a committee to see for itself.

Haiti's accusation said the purpose of the invasion force was to kill the closest associates of President Francois Duvalier of Haiti.

Burma Intends To Campaign Against Rebels

RANGOON,, Burma (AP) — Burma's military government is giving firm indication that it intends to press its campaign against Communist guerrillas and dissident tribesmen despite the monsoon rains.

The government announced here that its forces had killed more than 100 rebels during the first week of July.

It was the second time within a month that the rebel casualty toll for a week passed 100.

In the past, the heavy monsoon rains have slowed down action against the rebels, who have been in arms almost since Burma got its independence from Britain 16 years ago.

This year, however, the regime of Gen. Ne Win appears bent on making the monsoon work for the government.

Under the command of tough Brig. San Yu, chief of the army command, government forces have struck hard at guerrilla strongholds deep in jungles and swamps. Key Communist points in central Burma have been prime targets.

The speed of the army attacks has resulted in the breaching of rebel communication lines, cutting guerrilla commanders off from one another.

Eight new army outposts have been established in former Communist territory. Army commanders have set up a new system of security to form the military, police and villagers into a united front against the guerrillas.

PLEA STUDIED

DENVER (UPI)—An attorney for a 14-year-old boy accused of fatally stabbing a playmate last June 21 said here the youth might plead insanity to a murder charge. The boy, George Theodore Harrison, will be arraigned on the charge July 17. Police said Harrison told them he stabbed 15-year-old Russell R. Rodgers after the older youth came at him with a stick.

Law Restrictions Deter Progress GT Editor Says

Mankind progresses when laws do not restrict the individual, Robert LeFevre, editor of the Gazette Telegraph, told graduates of the Freedom School Friday night.

"Universal divergency seems to be the law for humankind," LeFevre explained.

"Man by his nature always values things in terms of his own personal judgement. Human beings independently always make independent value judgments.

"Any ruling of justice is liable to be arbitrary and is going to be according to value judgments of the judge making the ruling — and this can't be helped.

"He may be guided by law, but the laws themselves will be written by men who have independent value judgments.

"So law will end up injuring persons as much as it may assist from time - to - time."

LeFevre pointed out how law and government can become cohesive:

"So set up a bunch of rules. We spell it out precisely and then we insist that the rules we set up are the precise rules we want in each case. We are demanding that every other person conform to the rules we set up."

"This leads to conformity and then to a compulsive conformity.

"My study of history," the editor said, "shows that the earliest idea of justice is the 'eye for an eye. . .' variety.

"History shows," he added, "that where men learn to put aside dogma of any kind and then to obtain a breakthrough sufficiently large so they do not insist on a new dogma, then they make progress.

"So when we can break out of this shell of believing that we have in our minds a pure concept of justice so we know precisely what the other fellow is supposed to do and we can force him to do it because we're right . . perhaps we've got an open doorway into larger progress than we dream," LeFevre said.

The editor spoke on "Three Vital Factors to Progress — A Possible Fourth." His thesis that there is progress when law does not restrict the individual was advanced for the first time Friday.

He explained the three other factors lasy year, and again Friday:

—First, a philosophy of self-reliance is necessary for progress. Historians and philosophers call this the birth of the "stoic virtues." Prior to this there was "group dependency."

—Second, emergence of private ownership follows the new philosophy. Private ownership replaces group ownership.

—Third, the ability to inherit capital sums. LeFevre explained that if wealth is, destroyed, buried with the owner, or distributed, each new generation could not build on the past.

"We have to be able to inherit or to bequeath capital sums to keep the capital together or it follows. . .that we will simply decline," he said.

"I offer this explanation without wanting to be dogmatic," LeFevre told the graduates.

"I think we have to be able to forgive, to extend mercy, to understand the person who doesn't understand our dogma.

"And even when we think we have the last law in the book, we'd better have an open mind," he ended.

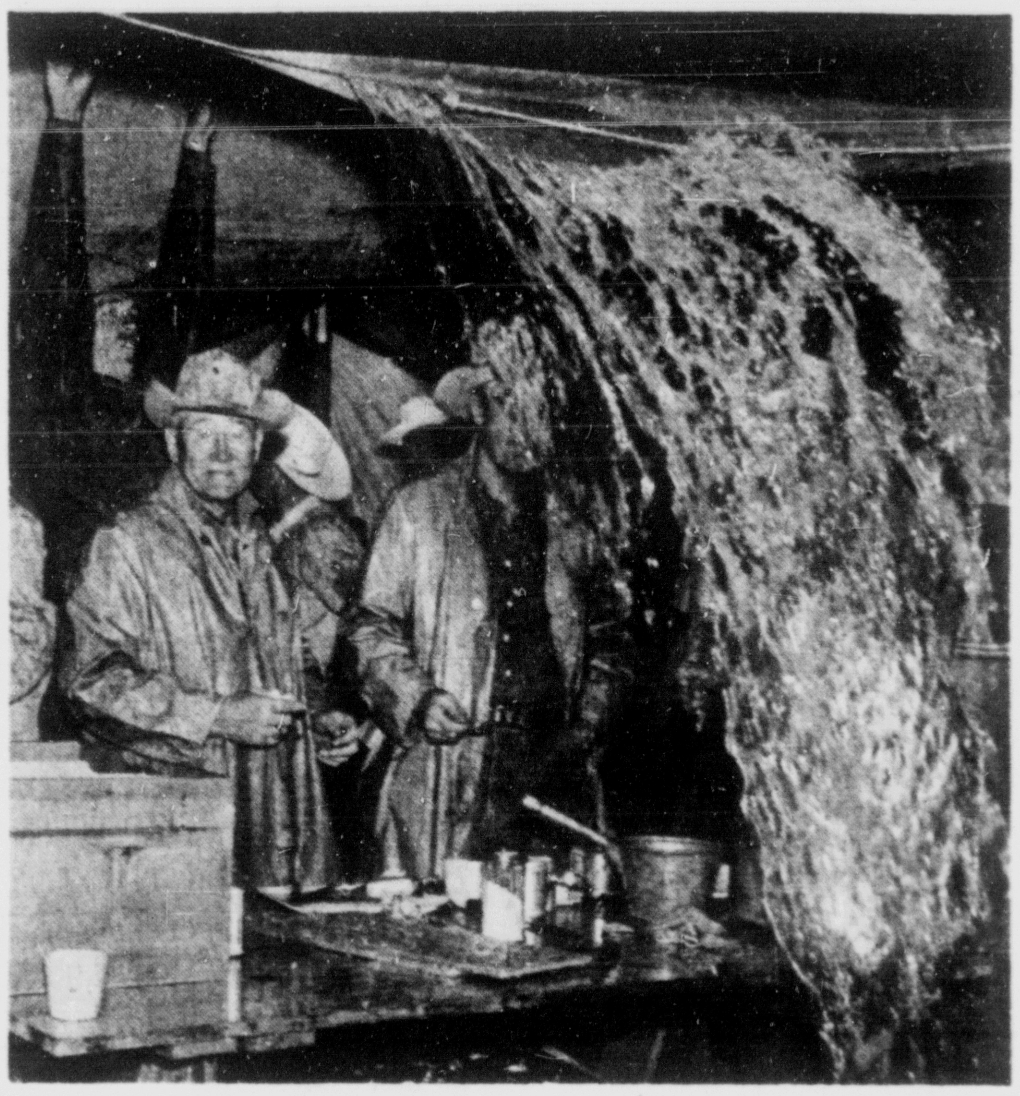
Before his talk, LeFevre joked, saying that perhaps "the commercial approach" was the fifth key to progress.

Bottling Tour Set Up By Fun Club

This week the YMCA Summer Fun Club for Boys and girls offers a half-day trip on Monday to the 7-UP Bottling Company here, and a full day trip on Wednesday to the State Capitol and U. S. Mint in Denver. These trips are open to all boy and girl members of the "Y" and boys and girls who are not now members can join at any time.

In addition to the special trips this week there will be the usual swimming lessons on Monday and Thursday for boys and on Tuesday and Friday for girls.

Other activities offered are roller skating, woodshop, tennis classes, swimming classes, crafts and archery. These activities will continue through the most part of the summer and boys and girls may enroll in them at any time. Information and schedules are available at the main YMCA Building and at the Youth Center.



FORECAST: RAIN! — Charley Casey, the gentleman with the look of resignation, knows what's going to happen this week. Somewhere, sometime between Wednesday and next Sunday, the Pikes Peak Range Riders are going to get wet, as demonstrated here. The riders carry an unofficial title of "Rainmakers" and Casey, chairman of the equipment committee, knows it's going to happen. Casey and 115 Range Riders head for their five day horse and mule junket around Pikes Peak immediately after the 6:30 a.m. Rodeo Street Breakfast in downtown Colorado Springs. The public, at one dollar per head ,is invited to the breakfast and the kickoff of the rodeo season here — all coming to head Aug. 5-8 at the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo at Spencer Penrose Stadium.

Lennox Becomes State Senator Candidate

An announcement has been received by Weldon M. Tarter, chairman of the El Paso County Republican Central Committee and by Clinton M. Cole, Republican chairman for the 12th Senatorial District, from William O. Lennox of his intention to seek designation as a candidate for State Senator from the 12th district.

This district includes north Colorado Springs, north and east El Paso County and is the third senatorial district for El Paso which was created by special session of the Colorado Legislature this past week as directed by a recent United States Supreme Court decision holding the 1963 reapportionment of Colorado's senatorial districts unconstitutional.

WILLIAM O. LENNOX

* * *

El Paso County has two other senatorial districts. District 10, which includes west and southwest Colorado Springs, Broadmoor and Manitou Springs is represented by L. T. Skiffington whose present term expires in two years.

District 11, which has a present encumbant, Vernon A. Cheever, who will stand for election this year, is made up of South and East Colorado Springs, Security and South El Paso County.

Assemblies for these districts to nominate candidates and assemblies for the five representative districts will be held sometime prior to July 25. The exact dates will be announced later. The reapportionment of representative districts remains the same as enacted by the 1963 Colorado Legislature but meetings which were held on May 23 must be held again.

Lennox resides at 44 Friendship Ln., with his family. He is a life long resident of Colorado Springs and attended local schools and is a graduate of Colorado College. He has served in the Colorado House of Representatives continuously since January, 1951 for a total of seven two year terms and his present term expires next January.

Lennox states that his intention to run for the third senate seat was motivated by many friends urging him to do so together with his desire to be of further service to the citizens of El Paso County.

Street Breakfast Will Kickoff Range Rider Trip

One hundred and twelve part-time cowboys and 5,000 other chow hounds have a 6:30 appointment Wednesday morning in downtown Colorado Springs.

The occasion will be a belt tightening Rodeo Street Breakfast with eggs, pancakes, coffee, music, and pretty girls on the menu. Anyone and everyone, be they cowboys, cowgirls, tourists, natives or just plain hungry folks are invited — at one wooden dollar admission per head.

The sunrise dining on Pikes Peak Avenue, between Tejon Street and Nevada Avenue, kicks off the Rodeo season in Colorado Springs.

The Rodeo Ticket Booth will be open to sell tickets to the breakfast, as well as tickets to the five-performance rodeo at Spencer Penrose Stadium, Aug. 5-8.

The "part-time cowboys" will consist of the Pikes Peak Range Riders and their guests. The Rodeo Street Breakfast annually sends the horse and mule cavalary off on a four-and-one-half day fun ride around Pikes Peak.

The Ogalla Sioux Indians from Cheyenne, the Flying W Wranglers and the Rostvit Sisters from Falcon will provide the foot stomping, fiddling-guitar music and the singing at the breakfast. Also present will be Girl of the West Jan Phelps and her aides, Laurel McLeod and Cathy Heyse.

The Range Riders, who include community leaders devoted to publicizing the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, will include in its guest contingent two from New York, two from Illinois, one from Michigan and seven from Arizona.

The Rodeo Breakfast is sponsored by the Centennial Sertoma Club, with off-duty personnel from Ft. Carson manning the 54 stoves and nine coffee urns which will serve the breakfasteers.

Darold Wilkinson and Jake Kunstle, co-chairmen, point out that the Ft. Carson crew will serve anyone and everyone in rapid fashion. The military cooking and serving crew will be under the direction of Maj. Leslie D. Miller and Chief Warrant Officer Jake Wimmer.

Capsuled Culture Offered At Carson Workshop

Capsuled culture with coffee is offered at Ft. Carson's Entertainment Workshop through Sunday evening with talent in music, theater and art on display from 8 p.m. till shortly after 9.

Two concert pianists —Thomas O'Boyle and Terry Wheeler — displayed different techniques opening the Friday night show and making their Pikes Peak regional debuts.

"The Rising of the Moon" staged experimental theater style offers suspense in a one-act play on escape in an Irish rebellion of 1903.

Charles Meyer is available to interpret the realistic impressionism of his oils which provide conversation material in the former Little Theater lobby and adjoining rooms.

All talents, except Wheeler's, are provided by enlisted men of Ft. Carson and Army Air Defense Command.

Director Jerry Hangartner presents "The Rising" as a farewell to Army life since he returns to civilian status soon. The stars, Paul DeCeglie from Brooklyn and Le: Graifman on loan from the New York theater, share the honors in psychological warfare on an Irish waterfront.

DeCeglie struggles realistically between his official duty as a police sergeant and 100 pounds reward and his subconscious allegiance to the rebel cause. Even the comic moments are tense.

Graifman as the fugitive who fools the sergeant and then overwhelms him with Irish emotion is smooth and convincing.

Suspense is in the air from the dim lighting and haunting music built skillfully by the entire production.

Anyone who appreciates live theater should enjoy this hour-long diversion. Admission is free to military, their families and friends.

Pianist O'Boyle is a classical technician alumnus of Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S. D., and St. Thomas College, St. Paul, Minn. He is the new ARADCOM Chorus accompanist but has not appeared locally.

A veteran of symphony solo appearances, all he lacks at Carson is an orchestra to point up his virtuosity.

Wheeler, a newcomer employed at St. Francis Hospital, has a rich, flowing style and real talent that merits a wider audience.

Both played Rachmaninoff and movie themes but indicate a different program each night.

Backstage talents contributing to the whole include Edward Dibeler, technical director; Dan Hines, effective sound effects; John Hughes Jr., a dramatic set; and unusually effective lighting by Dibeler and Warren Sasso.

Supporting actors were Joe Campanella and Azael Galarza as policemen trying to help their nervous sergeant. The brogues were as varied as you'd find in Ireland.

TV Convention Coverage Set for Goldwater Office

The Gold for Goldwater headquarters announced their headquarters building will have a television set tuned to the convention coverage all this week.

The Downtown office is located at 12 S. Tejon St., next door to the Exchange National Bank.

There are plenty of comfortable chairs available for downtown shoppers or others in the downtown area that are interested in watching the convention. There will also be free coffee and cookies for those watching the convention coverage.

SUNRISE SERENADERS — The Rosvit Sisters, recording artists from Falcon, will lend their beauty and singing talents to the festivities at the 6:30 a.m. Wednesday Rodeo Street Breakfast in downtown Colorado Springs. The young ladies recently returned from a California appearance and recording tour. They are currently appearing at the Flying W. Ranch barbeques.

WAKER - UPPERS — If anyone shows up at the Rodeo Street Breakfast in downtown Colorado Springs next Wednesday morning a bit sleepy, this crew will wake-em up pronto. The Flying W. Wranglers will beat the bass, guitars and other instruments and do some real loud singing for the 5,000 breakfast guests — including anyone with a paper dollar to exchange for a wooden breakfast dollar ticket.

GOP Nomination Down To Scranton and Goldwater

(This is the fifth in a series about the forthcoming Republican National Convention—Ed.)

By GLENN URBAN
Gazette Telegraph
Political Writer

William W. Scranton is apparently all that stands between Barry M. Goldwater and the Republican presidential nomination.

Scranton, 47, first term governor of Pennsylvania, didn't enter the race until June 12, after everyone else who had started down that long road months earlier had faded or been beaten by the drive of Ariz. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, 55.

Scranton entered the race in the proverbial last minute, and now stands as sort of a hero-gallant attempting to save the party from Goldwater.

The more important point is — now many delegates are standing with Scranton?

Goldwater says that not too many stand with Scranton, and most analysts and commentators agree. Goldwater claims he has more than enough to win on the first ballot next week at the National Republican Convention in San Francisco's Cow Palace. A total of 655 votes out of a possible 1,308 votes are needed to win the nomination.

Scranton admits he does not have enough votes to win on the first ballot, but he and his supporters are working to prevent a first ballot victory by Goldwater in hopes that from there they can hold him from further gains while on the following ballots they can whittle down his lead and eventually nominate Scranton — or a possible compromise candidate.

The Scranton saga in this race is probably the most amazing of all.

Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, 66, the Maine senator, and Harold Stassen, 57, both announced early for the race, but didn't get very far.

George Romney, 57, first term governor of Michigan and former chairman and president of American Motors, was often talked of as a candidate, and sometimes acted like one. But when the chance was offered in June for him to run as the "Stop Goldwater" candidate, he refused.

Henry Cabot Lodge, 63, former senator, former ambassador to the United Nations, past vice presidential nominee and more recently ambassador to South Viet Nam, never announced for the nomination, but his supporters, including his son, got him off to a fast start by winning the New Hampshire vote on March 10 in a whirlwind write-in campaign.

That was really his high mark, and he ceased to be a top contender after the Oregon primary on May 15, which he was supposed to win, but didn't.

Richard M. Nixon, 51, former U.S. representative, former senator, former vice president, and unsuccessful presidential nominee in 1960, never announced for the candidacy yet always said he was available. He had a high point when a write-in campaign in Nebraska on May 12 gave him almost 32 per cent of the Republican vote against Goldwater. He also faded in Oregon.

New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, 56, was the first man to announce and he battled Goldwater from one side of the continent to the other and from the first primary in New Hampshire to the last one in California, on June 2, while repelling a raid by Goldwater forces on his home state on that same day.

But he lost in the California primary, and while he still contended he was in the race, he certainly looked too far behind to be a threat to Goldwater.

In the lull between Rockefeller's final defeat on June 2 and Scranton's announcement on June 12, Nixon tried to get Romney to run and failed. To all outward appearances, Goldwater was going to sweep the convention without opposition.

All year long Scranton denied he was a candidate and then talked very much like he wanted to be one. Meanwhile enough of an organization existed for him in various states to convince reporters that Scranton was indeed a candidate and make his move when he felt the time was right.

Scranton comes from a wealthy family that founded the town of Scranton, Pa., and is by his own estimate worth eight or nine million dollars.

He graduated from Yale in 1939, got his law degree from there in 1946, served as a pilot in the U.S. Air Corps during World War II, then served in Washington in 1959 and 1960, first as press aide to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and then as special assistant to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

He made his first plunge into political office seeking with great craftiness. He was asked in 1960 if he wanted to seek election to the U.S. House of Representatives from Pennsylvania's Tenth District.

He expressed a willingness to run, but only if all county chairman and other leaders in the district agreed on him so that he would face no opposition in the party.

This was accomplished and he entered the race, defeating the incumbent Democrat by 17,000 votes despite the fact that the Democrats held a 34,000 edge in registration.

His biography released for this campaign states that he was drafted for the race.

In 1962, he was suggested as a governor candidate. Again he agreed if all opposition within the party was quelled. He got the full endorsement from the party leaders and went on to whip his Democratic opponent by almost a half-million votes.

Each time, Scranton had played the part of the reluctant candidate and then when the path had been cleared by other party workers, as good blockers clear a running path for a good ball carrier, he had carried the ball for spectacular victories.

So last year, when Scranton denied he was a candidate and also declared he could not be be drafted, students of American politics took his words for what they were sure they were worth.

Apparently they were right, for when he finally did announce an organization came into being almost overnight.

In the week after his announcement much campaign literature, all from Philadelphia, began arriving at selected addresses in Colorado Springs.

Additionally, the Scranton campaign began mailing out records that can be played on your home record player.

The records had excerpts from Scranton's speeches, recitations in excellent professional voices of facts about Scranton's personal and public life and mixed in with those some lively renditions by a good orchestra of the "Pennsylvania Polka," with words which extolled the virtues of Gov. Scranton and Bill Scranton (one and the same, of course).

The question arose - did Scranton wait too long?

A good ball carrier has to have at least one key block that takes him past the line of scrimmage and the first rush of the line backers. After that, he is on his own and generally makes big gains.

Analysts have written that Scranton apparently was waiting for that key block, and expected to get it from former Pres. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

If the former president would announce his support of Scranton, that would put him off and running, most everyone agreed on that.

Other questions arose - did Scranton have such steel nerves that he would wait until everyone was knocked out and then enter the field to contest with the apparent champion?

Was he a Hamlet, waiting until it was too late because of his own indecision and then taking up the challenge only after defeat faced him?

Someone even suggested that he was more Ophelia than Hamlet.

Was it Eisenhower's fault? Scranton had been expected to make his announcement on June 7, then simply confused his supporters by not making the announcement and looking very confused himself on a nation-wide TV program.

After making his decision on the following Friday, on the next Sunday, June 21, he went on TV again to tell the country he was a candidate and why.

He said the first Republican president, Abraham Lincoln, 1861 to 1865, would "cry out in pain" if the party sold out on its principles, but he would "laugh with scorn if we threw away an election."

"I've come here to offer our party a real choice. I reject the echo we have thus far been handed — the echo of fear and of reaction — the echo from the never - never land that puts our nation on the road backward to a lesser place in the world of free men," he said.

Since that time, he has been a very active, hard-working candidate.

Can he stop Goldwater or can't he? Most observers think not, but only time will tell.

Landlocked Navy Vital Part of NORAD Effort

The active Colorado Springs Naval Reserve Unit is facetiously referred to as the landlocked Navy.

Navy members of the North American Air Defense Command staff often find themselves with that away-from-their-element feeling.

But every member of the Navy realizes that one of their largest installations is protected by both Army and Navy elements of the North American Air Defense Command.

Norfolk — home of the world's largest Naval Base — is one of many places where the Navy joins the Army, under the direction of the North American Air Defense Command, in continental aerospace defense.

Normally concerned with offensive action far from its home shores, the Navy is not usually considered a defensive force unless defending their own carriers at sea from enemy attack.

The mission of the Army Air Defense Command is to provide combat-ready Army air defense forces to Gen. John K. Gerhart, NORAD commander in chief, for the air defense of specified critical locations.

Here in this healthy teamwork situation the key word is "critical." And headquarters for NATO's Supreme Allied Command Atlantic, the Tactical Air Command, and Continental Army Command, Norfolk is definitely a free world critical location.

ARADCOM missiles give NORAD an inner ring of defense around more than 30 target areas which encompass over 100 cities and military bases.

NORAD, through the utilization of its 4th Missile Battalion, 59th Artillery, supplies combat-ready personnel and equipment for the air defense of that important Norfolk area. NORAD has named this organization the Hampton Roads Defense.

The NORAD 4th Missile Group has its headquarters located at Virginia's Hampton Roads Army Terminal. The Nike Hercules batteries run by the battalion are located strategically at Deep Creek, Denbigh and Fort Story. This is that inner ring referred to by NORAD when describing the aerospace defense theory.

In case of an enemy attack on North America, the Hampton Roads Defense would have tactical control of Naval air defense weapons available at the time in the Hampton Roads port. This is another illustration of the joint service aspect of NORAD.

If sufficient warning time was available, Navy guided missile ships would move into position. Their fire power would be directed toward the quarter from which the attack was expected.

Add to the land and sea based missiles and guns of Hampton Roads Defense the NORAD Air Force Bomarc missiles and fighter aircraft in the area, and a picture of NORAD's aerospace defensive power begins to emerge.

The teamwork of NORAD's forces combines to make the Norfolk area an uninviting target for any aggressor. And through the Norfolk NATO headquarters, the NORAD aerospace defense system, headquartered here in Colorado Springs, extends its capabilities and service to the entire free world.

Aspinall Dislikes Apportionment Plan

FORT MORGAN, Colo. (AP) —Rep. Wayne Aspinall, veteran Palisade Democrat, says he dislikes the federal reapportionment plan approved by the Colorado Legislature at its special session last spring for two reasons:

1. It combines the Western Slope with eastern counties in one district.

2. It mixes eastern counties with metropolitan counties.

Aspinall, seeking re-election to Congress, addressed a rally Thursday night during which he severely criticized the administration of former Republican President Eisenhower.

He said "experience is necessary to politics and if you don't believe it, look at Eisenhower's record."

Aspinall said Eisenhower had described himself as a "Jeffersonian Republican."

"This is one of the most asinine statements I've ever heard," Aspinall said. He said a Jeffersonian Republican "is a liberal Democrat."

Pathet Lao Getting New AA Artillery

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops are bringing in new antiaircraft defenses as result of the pounding inflicted by royal Laotian air force T28 fighter-bombers, military sources reported Friday.

The sources said four 37-millimeter antiaircraft guns had been spotted in the Phou Kout area just west of the Plaine des Jarres and 13 miles east of the neutralist strongpoint of Muong Sout. The sources also reported that Communist China had sent antiaircraft batteries totaling "about 10 guns of small caliber" to Phong Saly, capital of the northernmost province bordering Red China.

FALSE ALARM

PARIS (UPI) — Scores of armed police surrounded a Paris bank after the janitress reported finding the door open. A check disclosed that a Spanish cleaning woman had stalked out in a huff, leaving the door open.

Judges Will Use Scout Cars in Pack Burro Race

Colorado's High Country and the 16th annual world championship Pack Burro Race are to be used as backgrounds for a national advertising campaign on all-wheel drive vehicles.

Pictures taken of the July 26 running of the event between here and Fairplay will be used in all loading magazines and newspapers.

The advertisor is the International Harvester Co. It will send six of its I-H Scout demonstrator cars here for use by judges following the contestants on the rugged 23-mile trail over 13,200-foot Mosquito Pass.

Two Leadvillites loom as favorites to lead the packs in the July 26 event. Joe Glavinick, current title holder and winner four times, outdistanced a half dozen men competitors by several minutes in winning a recent trial heat.

He and his burro covered the shortened 8-mile course in an even 60 minutes. The next day Donna Cornella outlasted Madelene Graves in a close finish of a women's race.

This weekend and next there will be additional preliminaries, a men's run and then a mixed couples' race in which the man will trot the burro uphill, the woman downhill.

Entries for the grueling championship classic, for which record time — by Glavinick — is 3 hours 33 minutes, still are being received, according to Bruce Hand, president of the Leadville Lions Club.

It co-sponsors the event with the Fairplay Chamber of Commerce. Hand said there may be a record number of contestants for the $2,050 in cash awards when the groups take off from here July 26. The woman leave at 10 a.m., the men at noon.

South Viet Nam to Give Rice to P.I.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam, recipient of more than a half-billion dollars a year in aid from the United States, is about to send 500 tons of rice to the Philippines to help typhoon victims, the government announced.

Typhoon Winnie struck the Philippines island of Luzon earlier this month, killing more than 100 persons and leaving hundreds of thousands homeless.

Benet Hill Will Have Business Advisory Board

Eleven professional and business men of Colorado Springs met with Sister Liguori and other Benedictine Sisters Tuesday to organize an advisory board for Benet Hill Priory. The group will convene again July 27.

Joseph Reich is serving as temporary chairman. William Haney chairs the by-laws committee with Robert Delaney and Dr. Paul G. du Bois as his associates.

Other members present for the organizational meeting at Benet Hill, 2555 Chelton Rd., were the following: Dr. Richard Dinmore, Owen Faricy, Winford Griffin, Tom McLaughlin, James O'Donnell, Al Rieden, and Albert F. Vidmar.

The institution which has board will serve is an outgrowth of half a century of teaching carried on in Colorado by the Benedictine Sisters of Atchison, Kan.

Under Mount St. Scholastica Convent of Atchison, the sisters assigned to the Colorado Springs community are establishing here an independent priory. Their work is under the direction of Sister Liguori, superior of the convent and principal of Benet Hill Academy, which opened last fall.

The newly formed board will act in an advisory capacity concerning problems of the Benet Hill community and academy.

PATIENT KILLS DOCTOR

ROME (UPI) — Police reported here that factory worker Salvatore Bumbaga, 52, shot and killed Dr. Fernando Bonchristiani. They said Bumbaga was disgruntled because the doctor refused to prolong his period of convalescence from a leg injury and because an insurance company did not pay him enough.

Howard Hughes Loses Round in Airline Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrialist Howard Hughes has lost a round in his efforts to gain control of Trans World Airlines.

The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday refused to permit his Hughes Tool Co. (Toolco) to acquire $92.8 million in TWA sinking fund notes from Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

The acquisition would have given Hughes controlling shares of TWA, now held in a voting trust.

QUAKE TOLL RISES

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The death toll from Monday's earthquake mounted today as rescue teams reached isolated stricken towns in the Pacific Coast rain forests and jungles.

The Communications and Transport Department said at least 64 persons were dead and 150 others injured in the towns of Altamirano and Coyuca de Catalan alone. Fourteen other deaths were reported elsewhere for a total of at least 78.

U.S. Turns Down Plan For Neutral Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has turned down an appeal signed by some 5,000 college and university professors for neutralization of North and South Viet Nam.

"Under the present circumstances," the department said, "We see no alternative to our policy of assisting South Viet Nam to the maximum to resist Communist aggression."

The educators' appeal was circulated by the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy.

NATIVE ART EXIBIT

Art Center Displays Native Arts Exhibition

A new exhibition of native arts from the Taylor Museum at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center has been put on display this month for the particular enjoyment of those visiting this area.

The exhibition presents a wide sampling of the Taylor collection, which includes examples of non-European art from around the world, including native art from the Northwest Coast, Bali and New Guinea.

The collection is primarily concerned, however, with native arts of the Southwestern United States, early Spanish-American and Indian crafts ranging from pre-historic, to present-day.

The Taylor Museum's collection of Santos, which are Spanish carvings of religious statues, is considered one of the finest in the country.

A good variety of these are to be seen in the exhibition as well as crafts of the various Indian tribes of the region, including pre-historic pottery, later basket work, weaving, leather-work and modern jewelry. Much of this work is from the Navaho and Hopi Indians of New Mexico and Colorado.

This exhibition should be of particular interest to those who have come through or plan to tour the Southern part of Colorado, New Mexico or Arizona, all rich in Indian and Spanish culture.

The Fine Arts Center has also scheduled a number of other exhibitions during the summer months to interest visitors, as well as community residents.

Also new this month is an exhibition of the photographs of Quentin Howard, well-known Salt Lake City photographer.

The artist has focused his camera at a wide range of subjects from pictureque debris to landscape. Howard has exhibited in a number of museums, including these in Santa Barbara and San Francisco where a critic said "it has been a long time since photographs of the quality of Quentin Howard's prints have been shown here. Here are the creations of a man who seeks and achieves perfections in his avocation."

The main show of the summer at the Fine Arts Center is the "New Accessions USA, 1964" biennial, a unique collection of paintings which have recently been purchased by museums all over the country for their permanent collections.

Every other year the Fine Arts Center invites some 30 museums to select two of their recent acquisitions to show in this exhibition, thereby presenting a good survey of what is considered good and of lasting value in art today.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

Recently the Social Security Administration sent reminder letters to several hundred people in this area. These were people that were picked out of the city directory and telephone book. They are engaged in a business or profession or live in a neighborhood where it is likely they might hire someone fairly often to do housework.

The purpose of the letter was to remind them of something that has been true since 1951: that household workers are covered by social security if they earn enough money.

Experience nationwide has led to the conclusion that the "news" hasn't gotten around the way it should have to those who employ household help. Some people didn't realize that such work could be covered at all by social security. Others thought they and their household employee could decide between themselves whether to report the wages.

Both of these notions were wrong. The sole question is: How much did your household employee earn in the calendar quarter? If you hired a women during the last quarter (the three month period covering April, May and June) and she worked often enough to earn $50 or more during the quarter, then her wages are subject to the social security tax and must be reported.

The report is easy enough to make. A call to our office at 521 S. Tejon St. 636-5171 or a visit will get you the reporting form (Form 942). Full instructions regarding same may be obtained by asking for Circular "H" (Household Employers Tax Guide). On the report you show your name and address, the quarter the report covers, the employee's social security number and name, and the total wages you paid her during the quarter, You enclose a check for the tax(this amounts to 7½ percent of the wages) and mail the report to the District Director of Internal Revenue. You and your employee each pay one-half of the total tax, of 7½ percent.

Handled this way, the report is simple enough and relatively painless. It is when reports should be made but aren't that difficulties arise. This is illustrated best by a recent case. A woman who had been doing household work applied to the Social Security Office for benefits.

Their record of her earnings did not include the wages paid by one employer. It turned out that the employer had not bothered to file reports. Now she is faced with the necessity, not only of filing the reports she should have, but also of paying the full social security tax instead of just one-half of it. In addition, she will be assessed penalties and interest for filing the reports late.

The state of Indiana once was covered by an ocean.

NORAD VISITOR — Maj. Gen. Philip P. Ardery (right), U.S. Air Force Reserve, visited the North American Air Defense Command headquarters Wednesday and Thursday. While at NORAD he met with Gen. John K. Gerhart and members of his staff, visited the NORAD combat operations center, and the underground location of the combat operations center now being constructed under Cheyenne Mountain. Gen. Ardery is a USAF mobilization day assignee to the Secretary of the Air Force Information Office in Washington, D.C. He practices law in Louisville, Kentucky, as his civilian occupation and is currently on a tour of key U.S. military installations as part of an active-duty USAF assignment. (NORAD Photo)

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

C. S. DUDLEY

The perplexities of handwriting still pursue me. When I got my first newspaper job, on the Denver Post, in 1900, all of the reporters but one wrote by hand, with lead pencil, on newsprint cut from the ends of the press rolls. My handwriting was not what might have been called flawless. And I was not speedy and I did not know about underlining the u's and overlining the n's to make them unmistakable when it came to writing names. My capitalization and punctuation were not according to the newspaper style of the day.

Now, after more than 60 years of almost continuous newspaper work, and when printers will no longer deign to set handwritten copy, I am still laboring over script. Part of my present work is to copy in typewriting some of the material that comes to the office in longhand. I find that the u's and n's are not underlined and overlined with the old professional care, and that a's and o's are often not differentiated. So here I am where I started, in a way, as print for the printers.

But to hark back to the news room of the Denver Post of 1900. Or, rather, I should say news rooms, for the upstairs editorial department, in a building on Sixteenth Street opposite the Tabor Grand Opera House, was partitioned off into various cubicles, with partitions that did not reach the ceiling. Only one or two members of the staff worked in a single one of these booths, or whatever you might call them.

There was one member of the staff, a red-haired man whose name I do not recall, who wrote with a typewriter. It was an old-fashioned "blind" Remington, on which the platen had to be lifted up on a hinge to see what had been typed. When this reporter would leave the office to cover the "statehouse" (State Capitol) run he would snap a padlock on his precious typewriter, so no one would be getting it out of order in his absence.

Neither can I remember the name of a very efficient reporter who wrote in a large flowing hand, easy to read and seemingly easy to write. The famous Walter Juan Davis, star reporter of the staff, whose short stories were then appearing in several leading magazines, wrote a cramped hand, his fingers moving as he formed the letters, and with paper on the very edge, or preferably corner, of a desk or table.

Guy La Coste, acting city editor, and the well known City Editor Joe Ward, who had taken a leave to finish a novel, would stuff Davis's pockets with copy paper and sharpened pencils when he would leave the office. But invariably he wrote with a dull stub of a pencil and his copy would come to the city desk scribbled on hotel lobby desk letterheads, the backs of advertising handbills or even the margins of street car transfers, no two pages the same size. But, oh, the, prose that Walter Juan Davis wrote!

It was the custom of reporters to write much of their copy in time they got while on their runs or assignments, finishing it, if necessary, on their return to the editorial office. I can see Shepard, who until not many years ago was editor of the Post, writing copy on courtroom tables, carefully taking off his detachable cuffs, so as not to soil them.

My job was partly cub reporter and partly copy boy. I would go around to the City Hall, Courthouse, etc. and bring in the copy of the real reporters. I watched how they did and tried to imitate them. But I was not apt even at that, and Joe Ward discharged me, telling me kindly that I had better get into some other kind of work. At this stage of the game I will not speculate on whether it was not sound advice he gave me.

La Coste gave me a job on another Denver paper, where he became city editor. But he soon moved on to something else and I was let off by his successor. It was two other jumps for me, one to the St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette, then to the Los Angeles, Calif., Examiner, just being started, before I stuck.

When I went to work on the St. Joseph Gazette I was told I must use a typewriter. The office was filled with old Olivers. I sat up all the first night practicing, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party."

Buzzard Is Costly For Airlines Plane

MERIDA, Mexico (AP) — A buzzard sucked into the engine of a Pan American jet Friday may cost the airline 150,000.

The bird was drawn into the jets motor as it took off from here. The pilot was forced to land again.

The plane blew out two tires on landing and Pan American had to put the passengers up in a local hotel while it sent for a new engine.

Woman Pilots Goldwater's Private Plane

By FRED MOEN

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The frail-looking, silver-haired woman seemed out of place as she approached the sleek airplane.

But, carrying a pair of high-heeled shoes in one hand—which she had doffed in favor of Indian mocassins —and a large red hand bag in the other, Ruth Reinhold, 60, climbed into the plane and slid behind the controls.

The plane, a two-engined, red and white six-seater, was rolled out of the hangar. The engines were started and the plane began taxiing down the runway apron.

It halted briefly to pick up a passenger — Sen. Barry Goldwater. In a few moments the plane was on another routine flight for the Arizona senator and his private pilot.

Now busy seeking the Republican presidential nomination, Goldwater frequently pops into his hometown of Phoenix for a short rest, or to fill a speaking engagement somewhere in the state.

Mrs. Reinhold is always standing by.

A pilot for 30 years, the modest and soft-spoken Mrs. Reinhold has about 12,000 hours in the air. She and her husband formerly operated an airplane sales and service agency and a charter service here.

Goldwater, a major general in the Air Force, is an experienced pilot but these days Mrs. Reinhold is always at his side when he takes a jaunt in the private plane owned by the senator and his brother Bob.

"If he is not tired, he more often than not does the flying," said Mrs. Reinhold.

When Goldwater is tired or has some work to do, she is at the controls.

Mrs. Reinhold doesn't recall exactly how she started flying for Goldwater.

"He bought a plane from us once and I guess I may have given him a demonstration ride," she said. At any rate, she's worked for the senator on occasion for 10 years and quite steadily for the past 2 years. She's now on a monthly retainer.

U.S. General Pledges Defense of Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — The U. S. commandant in Berlin, Maj. Gen. James H. Polk, pledged here the Western Allies will continue to defend Berlin "as long as necessary," just as they did during the Communist blockade of 1948-49.

Polk gave the pledge at a ceremony commemorating the 15th anniversary of the Berlin airlift which he said "marked a crucial turning point in the history of the post-war world."

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

SAN FRANCISCO — The sudden welling up of talk at this GOP convention scene about Barry Goldwater's running mate is of course significant. It suggests the snowballing acceptance of Goldwater's delegate strength as sufficient to give him the Republican Presidential nomination on the first ballot this week.

But while it is true that Goldwater personally leans toward Rep. William E. Miller of New York as his vice presidential choice, all planted reports that it will be a Goldwater-Miller ticket should be discounted.

Yes, Miller would be Goldwater's personal choice, but the senator has no intention of making his selection, if nominated, on that basis. He is anxious to make a gesture toward party unity — and what does that require? Clearly an effort to heal the present angry party split between Goldwater and anti-Goldwater factions.

It may be expected, then, that Goldwater will confer with all key party figures before reaching a decision on a running mate. It would clearly strengthen party support of the ticket if he reached into the Scranton camp for a Vice Presidential nominee. If not, then choose at least an outstanding supporter of the civil rights law so that the fall campaign would, if at all possible, not center around the rights issue.

It is also sound politics at this stage of the convention proceedings to let the vice presidential plum dangle. It helps to soften up the opposition and keep intact Goldwater delegate strength in various key states.

For example, if Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan thinks he has a chance of being tapped, then the Michigan delegation may produce a few more delegate votes for Goldwater than otherwise could be counted on.

The same goes in the case of Kentucky as long as Sen. Thruston Morton is being considered for the second spot. Or Ohio, with Gov. James A. Rhodes a possibility. Similarly for Illinois, with Sen. Everett Dirksen available for a draft.

ONE THING'S SURE: MILLER'S FOR MILLER

So right now the trial balloon for Congressman Miller should be considered just that and nothing more. As the balloon is being floated, it carries an appeal to the New York delegation. It helps Goldwater in his effort to get 14 to 20 first ballot votes out of New York's 92, the bulk of which Gov. Rockefeller hopes to deliver to Gov. Scranton.

Miller incidentally has been active here, quietly working in his own behalf. It is also probable that Goldwater suggested he do so, as a means of sounding out party sentiment.

More than a month ago the Senator emphasized his affinity for Miller. At that time he praised him as a "real gut fighter" — indicating the type of campaign he envisioned against President Johnson.

Miller, now Republican national chairman, is also in good with party organization operatives throughout the country. He is 50, from the Buffalo - Niagara district, is about to quit as chairman and also has announced he would not seek reelection to the House this November.

VOTES SHOW THEY'RE THE SAME TYPE

Miller and Goldwater are both the same type of conservatives, as their voting records show. However, Miller did vote for the civil rights bill, which Goldwater voted against, although Miller was never a breast - beater on that issue.

Choice of Miller would also give geographical balance to a ticket led by Goldwater. The fact that Miller is a Catholic also is a valid political consideration.

Nevertheless, Miller definitely does not have what it is going to take to pull the "moderate" Republicans, now lined up behind Gov. Scranton, into an authentic or even superficial unity drive behind Goldwater.

A better bet for second place on a Goldwater - headed ticket at this time, strange as it may seem, is Gov. Scranton himself. Sure he has been charging that Goldwater would wreck the party, put it back into the 19th Century, and that his nomination would dim Congressional hopes.

Goldwater hasn't liked that one bit. Last week he told a small group of interviewers that once he thought Scranton would be the ideal running mate, but he wanted no part of him any longer. And earlier this week he said flatly that neither he nor Scranton could possibly be "comfortable" on the same national ticket.

THERE'S GOING TO BE A PEACE POWWOW

And Scranton, after a certain amount of vacillation, has said he wouldn't accept second place with Goldwater, couldn't accept second place with Goldwater, couldn't even be drafted.

But at a cerain point in this convention, right after Goldwater is nominated, if that probability becomes a fact, there is going to be a big closed - door powwow aimed at claming discordant party passions.

There will be Gen. Eisenhower, Richard M. Nixon, Henry Cabot Lodge and Goldwater, among others. It will be argued that Goldwater needs Scranton to get the party together again. And a good case can certainly be made out.

Whoever thought that John F. Kennedy would agree to run Johnson also said he wanted no part of that second place job? And if Scranton has been saying mean things about Goldwater in the last few weeks, don't forget what LBJ was saying about the Kennedys four years ago — including those cracks about JFK's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, being a sort of Nazi lover before World War II.

Under pressure from Ike and others, a Goldwater - Scranton ticket could be as easily put together as the Kennedy - Johnson ticket of 1960.

2600 Students Expected at SCSC This Fall

The total enrollment at Southern Colorado State College this fall should be in excess of 2600 students. A freshman class of more than 200 students is anticipated. Earlier projections had suggested a freshman class of 1000 and a total enrollment this fall of 2400 students.

As of July 8, 1964, 967 new applications for admission to SCSC have been processed and accepted. Eight hundred and forty five applications represent first time college students. Of this group, 547 are Puebloans. There are 363 applicants from the state outside of Pueblo, and 55 out of state applications have been recorded. Two foreign countries are represented.

Durocher Has Chance To Wed 26-Year-Old

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP)—Leo Durocher, 57, still may have a chance to marry the 26-year-old actress-secretary he says he loves and asked to be his wife.

Miss Carolyn Morin, an attractive brunette, said Friday, "If the offer is still open, I might reconsider. He's a wonderful guy, you know."

Her indication of willingness to marry the Los Angeles Dodger baseball coach came during testimony in her father's $150,000 alienation of affections suit against Durocher.

Rene Morin, 51, a Middlebury bricklayer, says Durocher stole the love of his wife, Anna, 51, mother of Carolyn and two other daughters.

Miss Morin told the jury that Durocher had proposed marriage in 1961, but that she had refused.

National Guard Troops Leave Cambridge, Md.

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — National Guard troops left Cambridge Saturday, exactly one year from the night of racial violence that brought them.

The 50 men were up before dawn for breakfast. About two hours later, as the sun was breaking through a hazy sky, five jeeps and two 2½-ton trucks rumbled across the Choptank River which flows past the town.

With the Guardsmen went the modified militia law they established to keep a tense racial peace.

One or two officers will remain for several days "to make sure we do not owe anybody," as Col. William Ogletree, troop commander put it.

Also staying was Capt. William Harris, Baltimore, a Negro deputy U.S. marshal in civilian life. He has been working on a recreation program for Negro children in the community of 12.600.

No townspeople turned out for the departure. One white woman came to the National Guard armory Friday to say how much she appreciated what the troops had done.

The troops were first sent in by Gov. J. Millard Tawes June 14, 1963, after three nights of shootings and fire bombings. They were removed July 8, however, only to return four days later. That time the stay was a long one.

It has cost Maryland taxpayers about $800.000 to keep them here.

Michael Wilding Weds British Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British actress Margaret Leighton and Michael Wilding, former actor and now a public relations man, were married Friday in Hollywood. The marriage took most of their friends by surprise.

Wilding, 51, was Elizabeth Taylor's second husband. It is his fourth marriage. Miss Leighton, 42, was formerly married to actor Laurence Harvey.

Nursing Program At SCSC Is Explained

Many people have inquired about the new program at Southern Colorado State College, involving the preparation of professional nurses. The following is a brief history and description of the program.

The associate of arts degree nursing program offered at Southern Colorado State College is a program developed after years of research and practice.

It is an academic program under the supervision of the nursing faculty of Southern Colorado State College.

Graduates of the AA degree nursing program are eligible to take the state board examinations. If they pass these examinations, they are licensed by the state to practice professional nursing and given the title of registered nurse (R.N.) It is not a program designed to develope practical nurses.

Prior to the development of two year programs, similar to that offered at SCSC, an individual wishing to become a registered nurse would enter training at a nursing school under the auspices of a hospital. The training program was usually for a period of three years. If a candidate successfully completed the training requirements, a diploma was awarded. The state board examinations followed. If the candidate passed the state board examinations, a license to practice professional nursing was granted and the individual received the title of Registered Nurse.

The critical shortage of professional nurses to staff hospitals and community health needs led to research directed at the time element involved in preparation of professional nurses. Could the time of preparation be reduced without loss of professional competence?

In the early fifties, Columbia University instituted research studies to provide an answer to this question. Eight pilot schools were established which included a nursing curriculum with other two year academic programs. After five years, the various programs were evaluated.

It was determined that individuals enrolled in a two year degree granting program could meet the same academic and laboratory requirements of traditional diploma schools and compete successfully against the state board examinations.

At the present time there are 82 institutions offering the two year degree in nursing. The advantages of this type of program are obvious since all work carries full college credit and can be applied toward an advanced degree. The institution offering the degree program must be accredited by the state board, since only graduates of accredited programs are elibible ti take the examinations leading to the granting of a license and the title of R. N.

At SCSC, applicants are not restricted concerning sex, age, race or religion.

An applicant must be a high school graduate or equivalent with a minimum high school academic average of C. One year of high school chemistry with a minimum grade of C is required. At the present time, at SCSC, the program is limited to sixty students per year. The first class of sixty students commencing the fall of 1964, was selected from 138 processed applications. The ratio of not more than 20 students to one nursing faculty member governed the total number admitted to the program.

Mrs. Loretta M. Penza, assistant professor of nursing and director of nursing education, explained the program in detail. It must be emphasied that except for classes required under the nursing curriculum, the students follow the same requirements leading to an AA degree as any other student.

In 1965, or commencing with the second year of the program, the nursing faculty will be at a full comlement of six. All instructors of the faculty hold at least a master's degree in a clinical area, i.e., obstetrics and pediatrics, psychiatric, medical - surgical. Laboratory hours are geared to a 4-1 ratio. That is, four hours in lab are required for each college hour of laboratory credit. The maximum number of students in laboratory per instructor is set at eight.

The nursing faculty is responsible for all class assignments and carry out all instruction and supervision in nursing. This set-up enables the nursing faculty to work together in a total team teaching effort. Each faculty member instructs in an area of specialization but all work together in laboratory assignments and supervision.

Contracts with Pueblo hospitals regarding use of clinical facilities have been negotiated The nursing faculty of SCSC is responsible for all instruction and supervision at the hospitals concerning the students involed in the AA Degree Nursing Program. Every nursing course includes clinical work and practicum at either St. Mary-Corwin, Parkview or the State Hospital.

A graduate of this course of study not only will be prepared to give intelligent and comprehensive bedside care to patients, but will have a background preparatory for positions requiring superisory responsibilities. The AA Degree Nursing Program at SCSC has been approved pending final review by the State Board of Examiners.

Following this certification, SCSC will seek accreditation with the American Nurses Association and The National League of Nursing. Both of these associations have submitted long range gials placing all nursing education programs in colleges and universities offering Associate of Arts and Sciences of Baccalaureate degrees in nursing.

Southern Colorado State College, by virtue of location and facilities, must continue to offer and expand programming of this nature.

Driver Fined $200 in JP Court Friday

GIFT FOR SISTER CITY MAYOR — Capt. Fred D. Bartleson (second from right), Air Force Academy, is shown here receiving a film, "Time to Live," from Mayor Harry W. Hoth which the officer will deliver in person to Mayor Arata Watanabe of Fuji-Yoshida, Japan, the Sister City of Colorado Springs. The film depicts in color and with narration the delights of living in the Pikes Peak Region. Shown with them are Mrs. Bartleson, and William Vandel, chairman of the Sister City program. Capt. Bartleson has been at the Academy for the past five years teaching physiology, but is being transferred to a transport operation in Japan. The Bartlesons and their five children will leave July 21 and will be stationed about 60 miles from Fuyi-Yoshida. The captain has willingly agreed to give the gift from Mayor Hoth to the Japanese mayor, whose picture is on the wall in the background.

Cheerfulness of Musical Work Marks CC Concert

By JOHN FETLER
Arts Critic

The first concert of the CC summer series at the Fine Arts Center proved to be so good, that it drew an even greater audience for the second concert, last Friday night, at which the emotional piece de resistance proved to be the famous Schubert's string quartet "Death and the Maiden."

The program, however, opened with the delicate quartet for piano and strings (K 493) by Mozart, a work, in which despite a few brief darker moods for the sake of contrast, most of the work was as light as a day of sunshine, without hardly any cloud on the horizon; and in emotional terms, as well as musical ones, requiring the far limits of delicacy and finesse, which the musicians delivered gratifyingly.

The musicians, of course, are Ronald Hudson and Nancy Hudson, violin; Abraham Skernick, viola; Leslie Parnas, cello; and Max Lanner, piano. As Dr. Seay pointed out, Mozart completed this cheerful little work barely a month after the first performance of Figaro, and it is possible that Mozart's temporary optimism shines through (unlike in the later works, in which the comic mask often seems to cover the tragic one, if we view Mozart's music in depth rather than merely in its surface form). It is a cheerful summer day, and one cheerful movement follows another, so that one almost could become convinced that it would last, with the hopes of a cheerful future, which, alas, was not the case with Mozart, neither with Schubert.

With Max Lanner, then, at the piano, Skernick was presented in a 1924 Hindemith sonata, in which Hindemith, as Dr. Seay explains, shows his process of liberation from his predecessors. There is no doubt that Hindemith was one of the greatest contemporary figures in music, but at the same time there seems always to remain a sneaking idea that because of his approach, and his spreading out over so many fields of teaching, conducting, lecturing, etc. etc., his music does not run in the deeper, more intensive channels which it might have, at the expense, of course, of his other activities. Musicians, of course, seem to have a special fondness in general for Hindemith (as they used to have for Stravinski, because of the purely musical elements) and they would perhaps take exceptions at attempts to classify Hindemith at all, let alone consider some of his works as fairly dry exercises. But one thing is true, that his music permits the performers to show their best, and so it was in this case, too, with Lanner and Skernick, in which Skernick's precise, lyrical viola tone and his polished technique was shown to best advantage.

The popular Schubert "Death and the Maiden" was obviously the one which the audience had waited for, since it vies in popularity with the perennial "Trout," but it should perhaps not be overlooked that one of the major reasons for the popularity of this work is the second movement, Andante con moto, for it is this movement which implants itself into the musical memory, and typifies the essentially elegiac character of the entire composition. This work, as indeed also the "Trout," is one of the examples which serves very well to typify the content of music which is of great appeal to the general musical audience, distinguished from the more esoteric qualities which may appeal to performing musicians as such from a viewpoint of "challenge" in performance. The two elements are not necessarily the same, although in some composers, they do seem to coincide. As we have had occasion to remark before, Schubert is like a fine vintage wine which seems to improve with age, if one does not overdo it (the same case being with Mendelssohn, the two having for a long time been considered as minor composers, but growing in stature, as we wonder how these men were able to create these types of music in the first place, in which form and emotion are fused, with a leaning towards emotion, even as in Beethoven, a quality which by no means can be taken for granted, as the modern composers have all too often discovered, having to content themselves merely with intellectual manipulations of the material, and leaving the emotional to the vagaries of chance.)

The ensemble this year is a most fortunate one, well-matched perhaps even better than in some former years, with the clarity of tone which the Hudson's show, with Skernick's discreet tone, and the tone of Parnas complementing the ensemble work with perfect adjustment — although, as we noted before, in solo he comes out with depth and tone and lyricism far more, as required, and Max Lanner, as ever, adjusting his tone, also, to whatever requirements are needed, cascading in solo passages, or immersing the piano tone in the delicate balance of the ensemble, as for instance in the opening Mozart work.

The next concert, next Friday at the Fine Arts Center, should draw special interest for the cultivated audience which enjoys the fine points of chamber music, in that Parnas will be presented in two works, one by Porpora, and the other, of special gratification, by Brahms, one of the fortes of Lanner, who will be at the piano, concluding then with the interesting Debussy string quartet.

Apportionment To Be Ruled on By High Court

DENVER (AP) — Colorado's Supreme Court is going to rule on the constitutionality of the state's latest reapportionment of the legislature.

The state's high court took jurisdiction in the issue Friday and directed lawyers to present oral arguments before the court Tuesday.

Two suits brought by George J. White, Pueblo steelworkers' union official, and John D. Macdonald, president of the Denver Election Commission, claim it is illegal to create sub-districts within counties for legislative representatives.

The reapportionment act adopted by the legislature, in compliance with a United States Supreme Court ruling, apportions seats on a population basis. However, the new law is attacked by Macdonald and White as violating the state constitution which prohibits sub-districting within counties.

Gov. John Love signed the new law after he was assured by a three-member federal court panel in Denver that it met the requirements of the United States Supreme Court ruling. This three-member court said it was maintaining jurisdiction in the case until after this fall's general election.

White and Macdonald filed their suits directly with the Colorado Supreme Court.

Their lawyers will present arguments attacking the sub-districting provision while lawyers for Love and the state government will defend it.

Under the new law, all of Denver's House and Senate members are elected by districts. Formerly, they were elected on a citywide at-large basis.

Kennecott Copper Strike Continues

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The United Steelworkers Union strike at Kennecott Copper Corp. operations in Utah and Arizona entered its tenth day Saturday.

And a strike against the firm's entire western mines division—Utah, Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico—by members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers entered its second day.

The two strikes, together with walkouts by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the International Association of Machinists, have idled about 10,000 men.

Federal mediators said no new talks have been called.

However Kennecott talks with two non-striking unions were scheduled for Saturday and Monday in Salt Lake City. The unions are the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 1081 and the System Federation Local 155.

The System Federation represents 151 trainmen and engine repairmen.

Straws in the Wind

The socialist cabal that has been running this country and running it down hill for a number of years is still running. But it is apparent that today it is running scared. There are straws in the wind.

Many a school boy who a generation ago couldn't have told you the first thing about socialism or ticked off a point or two in favor of private ownership, is now given over to intellectual discussion in this field.

Socialism is no longer viewed on every hand as the "wave" of the future. Rather, it is seen as a foam-flecked tide that has rocketed far up the beach and may be about to recede. The problem may be to prevent it from becoming a rip-tide.

In Washington, D.C., where socialist theories have been promoted with little opposition for years, the shift in thinking is becoming apparent.

Socialism is intellectually bankrupt, but it still has power. Because politicians are naturally attracted to socialist practices, and because of the enormouse reliance upon the state to solve all problems, even those induced by socialism, there is a potential for destruction in the hands of the professionals that could devastate our economy.

Straw number one: The government is acting to mint some $45 millions in new silver dollars. Why? A flight from the new federal reserve $1.00 bills has already resulted in their being discounted. People trust coins more than they trust paper.

Straw number two: The erection of Barry Goldwater as a symbol of resistance. Whether or not Mr. Goldwater wins the election, it now appears almost certain that he will carry the GOP nomination. Whether or not reforms will occur at his hands, assuming them on the tiller by the end of the year, the public reaction against socialism is apparent.

Straw number three: Many an astute writer and commentator, long addicted to praise of each new governmental program, firmly associated in the popular view with everything leftist, is beginning to waver. Here and there a distinguished observer is switching position.

Straw number four: More and more talk of tax reform. The professorial guidance which has now been welded onto the executive branch of the government, is suggesting with greater frequency that maybe private operation of business isn't all bad and isn't always to blame for everything.

Straw number five: Renewed interest in education. If we exist in a sea of problems, it is more and more apparent that political policies of the past have put us where we are. This can only mean that there are things we didn't understand. Socialism, which professed to have all the answers, clearly didn't understand some of the questions. There's a new and growing search for truth. This is outpictured in "crash" programs of research.

Straw number six: Increased resistance to labor union demands. Even labor bosses are now buying into the market place, investing millions in stocks, in business operations. The big rackets in labor monopolistic organizations are looking more and more sleazy, attracting fewer and fewer advocates.

Straw number seven: The frantic haste with which government now moves to avert each new crisis. Time was when an issue could be and would be studied with care. Nowadays the cry is "action" and everywhere politicians are trying to solve all problems at once.

Admittedly, these are only straws. Actually, there are many such. But political solutions offered carry the same old brand. In spite of the straws, the debt limit is being pushed upwards again. More money is being sought. More "solutions" at political level are still viewed as possible if only "enough" money is provided.

The only real solutions are going to be found outside the political arena.

The tendency, which will grow, will be for a giant reaction to set in that will conceivably sweep all before it. And if this begins, two avenues appear either of which could lead to disaster. One, the most likely and the most fraught with danger, is that war will be employed as a cure-all. If the American people are firmly convinced that their problems were manufactured overseas, they may embark upon the madness of physical retaliation on a global scale.

Failing this route, the American people may reject socialism of the left (welfare) to adopt a socialism of the right (police powers extreme).

The only valid route will be between these political Scylla and Charybdis by reliance on the market place. Is our understanding sufficient for this purpose? At the moment, we doubt it profoundly.

Shop Around

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

In the first five months of this year, I've received more mail from people who plan to move than I usually receive in a year. This seems to indicate that quite a few people are not so all-fired happy with the way things are going as politicians would have you believe. The majority of the letter writers want to know about taxes, compulsory school attendance, building codes, if any, and, again, about taxes, in just about that order.

Californians can expect the best break, regardless of their present residence, since taxes in California are the highest in the country on a per capita basis or just about any way you want to figure and there is NO relief in sight. Southern Californians, particularly those who live in Los Angeles County and the city of Los Angeles, will find it tough to move where taxes are higher or laws more oppressive — end to end.

But, before you pull up roots, why not write to the chamber of commerce in or near your tentative selections and ask for answers to the questions which bother you? If you plan to go into business, find out about laws which pertain to that type of business. Ask about tax rates, availability of private schools, building codes, if you plan to build, and try to get all of the information which will help you make a decision. Moving in this direction will provide a double benefit. You should be able to receive first-hand information and at the same time let a chamber of commerce know what independent - thinking Americans want to avoid. Don't just ask questions; tell the chamber of commerce why you want answers to those particular questions. Let them know what you intend to avoid, if possible.

Here's another thing to keep in mind. Americans in some foreign countries can get a better break than the local citizens. I have been told that Americans in Mexico are not plagued by the compulsory school attendance laws. I suspect this same situation may prevail in several other countries, as well.

Of course, the tremendous and still growing mobile population in this country provides government statisticians with nothing but nightmares. In campers and trailers of assorted shapes and sizes this relatively new nomadic population buys license plates in one state, then roams and roams. Most of them can be tempted to put down roots again but, believe me, they are wary. Rarely do they go to government for information or anything else and the peddlers of the social security confidence game wonder why these people are not standing in line for their dole.

It was only a few months ago when a lone traveler with a pick-up truck and camper stopped in at the office of My Motel to ask questions about Chloride and Kingman. In the course of the conversation he asked if Kingman had adopted any building codes. When I told him the city fathers in Kingman have passed an ordinance of that type, he said, "Well, that settles that. I thought it might be a nice place to build a nice little machine shop but I'm not going to put up with any knuckle headed jackasses telling me what I can do with my own money and how to build a place where I can operate my own business. Maybe when the highway bypasses that one-horse town the guys that run the political machine will learn a few lessons." As I remember the conversation, I believe Wyoming was going to be his next stop, and that was the end of that. Of course there was a very little more to our conversation. I asked if the man didn't think it was nice of the city fathers to take steps to protect him from his own follies and the sharpshooters in the building trades who might try to short change him, but the things he said in answer to my questions are not suitable for newpaper print in whole or in part.

If you have children of school age, try South Carolina and Virginia and you may like the information you receive, but I have no ideas about the tax situation in either of those states. There's one thing you can almost depend on, you'll find the least government in the less populated areas, regardless of the oppressive nature of the laws. In any event, I am sure you will find it worthwile to shop around before you move.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Children's Savings Taken

For a new "low" in government meddling it would be hard to beat the story that has come to us from Crystal Lake, Illinois.

Donald Fetzner, father of three children, has, according to government men, failed to pay his property taxes from 1956 to 1961. Fetzner first learned of this alleged failure on his part when he received notice from McHenry County that he was in arrears by some $257 in past due property taxes and that he would have to pay up at once.

Fetzner didn't feel that he owed the money. He didn't pay.

Within a few days he got a letter fom Justice Joe Ritter of the McHenry County circuit court explaining that if he didn't pay up, some pretty unpleasant things would occur.

The next step apparently was that the court served a summons demanding that Fetzner appear to explain why he had ignored the government order. According ot Fetzner, he never got the summons.

The next step was this. The government served him with a notice that unless he paid up, the bank accounts of his children would be garnisheed to grab the disputed funds.

Fetzner, at this point, hired a Crystal Lake attorney who advised him to ignore the circuit court order concerning the garnishment of the children's funds. The attorney explained that the government couldn't do that.

But the Home State Bank, where the money was on deposit, wrote Fetzner a letter telling him that the government could and would seize the money in the accounts of his children and advised him to get in touch with attorney Herbert O. Krenz. Mr. Krenz informed Mr. Fetzner that the government indeed did have the power to take money away from his children.

Suddenly, at the Fetzner home appeared the township's assessor, who demanded that Fetzner sign a personal property affidavit attesting to what he owned in the way of personal property. When the assessor refused to enter the house to examine the property, Fetzner refused to sign the affidavit.

Then the government moved in and took the money. Fetzner retaliated by withdrawing all accounts remaining in the bank and moving them into Chicago banks.

But apparently the story got out. And suddenly, at the doors of the Home State Bank appeared quite a few angry people. As the bank doors opened they rushed in and demanded their deposits. Within minutes some $20,000 had been withdrawn. One depositor is reported to have entered with a large sack, withdrawn her money, emptied the contents of her safety deposit box into the sack and marched out.

And the matter may not have ended.

But the significance of the incident can hardly be lost. If government is now to move against alleged tax delinquents by seizing the money or goods of relatives, no matter how closely related, then a new chapter in government aggression against innocent people is about to open in this nation.

One of the difficulties in raising children is found in seeking to instill in their minds a respect for private property. Parents who are successful in creating this understanding with their offspring invariably do so by showing respect for what the child owns. The money that children have in their personal savings accounts is as important to them as the money adults have put away. Many children earn their own money by hard work. Whether this is the case of the Fetzner children isn't known. But even if the entire sums in the bank accounts of the young citizens had been given to them, the fact is that these sums were their own personal property and the government's assault on their resources was an outrage.

In barbarous times it used to be assumed that a crime committed by one member of a tribe or a community spread the guilt to all members of that tribe or that community. But civilized men have long ago put aside the temptation to hold innocent people accountable for actions taken by other people, although it occasionally crops up.

In this case we have no way of knowing about Mr. Fetzner's taxes. But the matter of garnisheeing the wages of his children to make up for these taxes, even if unpaid, is barbarous.

A—Yes, at the appropriate times of the yaer.

LIBERTY

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time, but at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

New Jobs

By RUFUS L. PORTER

According to a report by the Colorado Employment Department new jobs in the state aren't keeping the pace set in former years. Rather, they are far less than the normally expected seasonal gain. This is "a rather disturbing note," says the department. Then it goes on to explain that the chief cause of the downturn was a "sharp cutoff in government hiring. There were 6,300 new government jobs in the first five months of last year. The increase was 2,500 this year." This is bad news? Maybe for the bureaucrats, but certainly not for the taxpayers. Jobs created by government cannot, in the real sense, be classed as jobs at all.

The report goes on to state that government employment already accounts for 60,000 jobs in the state — nearly one-third of all Colorado "non-farm employment." This is certainly not something to brag about. It goes on to say that "had the trend begun two years ago continued, there would be 20,400 more jobs in the state today than there actually are." All we can say is, "Praise the Lord that the trend did not continue."

An economy based on government jobs is a shaky economy, indeed. The government produces nothing. It robs the producers to create jobs for politicians and bureaucrats who abhor honest work with a passion. Every job created by government prevents some private enterpriser from creating two new jobs, because the government MUST take from the economy at least twice as much as it puts back in. And thus production is halted in favor of non-productive government jobs that are not only non-productive but produce no taxes, and so taxes must be raised again to pay for the "new" government jobs, and this reduces the chances for new jobs that are not only productive but also taxpaying.

"But," say the government workers, "we pay taxes, too."

This is a misstatement of the facts. Anyone who is totally dependent upon the government for his income never actually pays taxes. The government only takes back a part of other peoples' taxes it has been paying the worker. Since all taxes MUST come from production, the government worker's taxes are paid by the producing taxpayers. There is no other way.

To believe that it is a bad thing for government to cut down on its rate of new job creating is to believe that we can live without an increase in production, for that is what it amounts too. The more government jobs, the less production.

Agreed that there is an increasing number of "service" jobs in the market place, and that these jobs have the appearance of being non-productive, also. But they are demanded by the free sector of the economy, and they are not supported by taxes, or by any manner of compulsion. There is absolutely no demand in the free market for most of the government's "services and functions." They thrive only because the government can force us, at gun point if need be, to support them. And the governments, state, local and national, are taking over every day more and more services and functions that belong solely in the market place. And the market place, with which the governments are competing, must pay the deficits, for governments never operate at a profit.

When I read the state employment department's report, I wept — tears of joy. We need more government jobs like we need holes in our heads. If government jobs were kept to the bare minimum, and then reduced occasionally, our present tax and deficit - supported "boom" would become a real one of grander proportions than we have ever dreamed of.

Getting out the old slide rule and doing a little fast work with the "slip-stick" it soon becomes apparent that "had the trend begun two years ago continued" into the not too distant future, the number of non-farm government jobs in the state would amount to 99.44 per cent of all such employment. Then it would turn to the farms because it would have no other way to expand.

So long as we can be fooled into believing that government jobs are a good thing, so long will we continue the march into socialism, where ALL jobs will be government jobs. And all men, except the commissars, will be slaves. Civil rights? What are they?

To The Point

Don't Pinch Me, Officer

By RUSSELL KIRK

WERE YOU EVER ARRESTED for giving children marbles? A respectable gentleman in a Chicago suburb had that experience, a few weeks ago. And thereby hangs a moral. This unfortunate gentleman's friend had purchased from a manufacturer many thousands of defective marbles, which he proceeded to hand out free to the neighborhood kids, at a kind of party. Along came our hero, whom we may call Mr. X, with his own children, for a share of the innocent loot.

But the benefactor had neglected to obtain a city permit for giving away things to children, en masse. Indeed, he didn't know any such permit was needed; no more did I. Well, an officious chief of police turned up, and demanded a permit; when no document could be produced, he sternly ordered the distribution of agates to cease.

Our friend Mr X had obtained a handful of marbles before the chief spoke. Vexed at such officiousness, Mr. X handed those marbles to his eager offspring, anyway. What a criminal!

The chief knew a dangerous man when he saw one. Immediately he arrested Mr. X and carried him off to jail in the paddy-wagon, while Mr. X's stranded children lamented on the sidewalk. When he emerged from the hoosegow next day, Mr. X was an angry man. Was he unreasonable? Or was the chief — who, years before, had been notorious for shooting to death an unarmed hoodlum held in a police car?

In these troubled times, generally I am on the side of the police in controversies. Their tasks are enormous and often thankless. I entertain doubts about certain proposals to establish citizens' "review boards" to scrutinize every act of a patrolman. Not seldom, too, the police are frustrated by demagogic or sentimental or even corrupt municipal judges — or, sometimes, by judges higher up.

Yet occasionally the police bring public dislike upon their own heads. (The English police, and even the Spanish police, have more sense and civility.) Perhaps baffled in the pursuit of criminals, some officers seem to compensate for their disappointment by harassing the harmless.

The other night, for instance, my fiancee, the beautiful Annette, had delivered me at my hotel. The next morning, she told me of trouble with a policeman. She had driven out of the hotel lot, through what turned out to be a half-empty used-car lot, into the highway. Promptly a police patrol flagged her down and demanded her driver's license.

Annette, who has some knowledge of civil rights, asked what for. "How do I know you weren't stealing parts in that lot?" demanded the policeman.

"Do I look like a person who steals parts in the wee hours?" Annette inquired. She doesn't, and the policeman had sense enough to perceive that, and abandoned his inquiry — the license was not produced.

But timid or nervous people sometimes fare much worse, when a policeman is in a frustrated or bullying mood. Policemen, like Presidents, are supposed to be public servants. They have their rights — yet so do we.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 540: "Why should the labor department be announcing a crash program to find 2,000 counselors to help jobless youth prepare for and find jobs?"

Answer: The reason they are doing this is because the government is the cause of the youth of the land not having jobs, and they want to divert attention from their mistakes.

The government requires the youth of the land to be a certain age to work, and sets a minimum wage that the youth must be paid while learning, and encourages the labor unions which limit apprentices, featherbed, and set wages so high that the inexperienced man cannot earn his wages.

We do not need economic counselors. They will only spread the propaganda of more government. What we need is education in morality which is, in reality, education in economics. If we were moral and believed in getting things on a voluntary basis, rather than by initiating force collectively, there would be plenty of jobs for everyone all the time, and our standard of living would be much higher.

Allen-Scott Report

Khrushchev Plans for U.N. 'Summit'

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Premier Khrushchev is bent on bringing about a "massive" summit conference next year regardless of who is elected U.S. president.

The Soviet ruler has disclosed this unannounced determination in a personal communication to U.N. Secretary General U Thant. The latter wrote Khrushchev, as well as all other heads of state whose countries are U.N. members, concerning plans for a General Assembly meeting in New York early in 1965 to commemorate the International Cooperation Year approved by the assembly in 1962.

U Thant has told intimates he will discuss Khrushchev's aim for a "massive" summit conference when they confer in Moscow late this month.

President Johnson has been apprised of Khrushchev's scheme.

Also he has been informed the Kremlin chief intends to use his attendance at the U. N. as a world forum for a deluge of militant propaganda, particularly against U.S. policies.

Foremost among those he will assail relate to Soviet satellite Cuba and Communist - periled South Viet Nam.

This is clearly shown in one message U Thant received from Khrushchev.

Expounding on his purpose to use the General Assembly meeting as a means of conducting a large-scale gathering of heads of state, Khrushchev asserted this would enable them to:

"Fully discuss the strict observance of all states, in accordance with the U.N. charter, of the sovereign rights and independence of other states; noninterference in their internal affairs; the condemnation of all attempts to impose economic blockades or the encouragement of subversive activities, and of violation of territorial waters and air space of any state."

MORE OF SAME

Equally stressed by Khrushchev, in another note to U Thant, was his oft-voiced demand for an end to strategic (NATO) trade bars, and "the normalization of trade among all the regions and countries of the world, without artificial barriers or discrimination."

That still isn't all. The Soviet leader has grandiose ideas.

Other major issues specified by him for consideration at his contemplated "massive" summit conference are:

"Admittance to the United Nations of the Peoples Government of China and the East German Republic."

"Neutralization of West Berlin."

"Withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Viet Nam and South Korea."

"Establishment of nuclear-free zones in Europe, Asia and Africa."

"Prohibition of the spread of nuclear weapons."

"Complete and final liquidation of all systems of colonialism."

Already, Khrushchev has one enthusiastic supporter of his plan — Yugoslavia's Communist ruler Marshal Tito.

In a communication to U Thant, Tito warmly approves the idea of a "general meeting of heads of state" at the 1965 General Assembly session, on the ground that would "chart the way for a code for peaceful co-existence for the nations of the world."

PARTIAL U.S. APPROVAL

President Johnson has responded with a carefully qualified "yes — but."

Secretary General U Thant has been advised the President "has no objection" to a meeting of heads of state, on two conditions: He is flatly opposed to a pre-arranged fixed agenda; he wants no announcement about possible U.S. participation in such a conference "at this time" — meaning until after the fall election.

Foreign affairs lieutenants of the President are credited as favoring Khrushchev's "massive" summit meeting, on the theory that would incline him to pursue a temperate course in the cold war during the next six months.

They also reportedly view such a conference as an opportunity for the U.S. to line up wide-scale backing for any regional neutralization understandings that may be worked out with Red China in Southeast Asia, particularly in strife-torn South Viet Nam.

Despite official public disavowals of such plans, they are definitely contemplated and closely guarded overtures are underway.

There is considerable afoot on this that has not yet become apparent.

The International Cooperation Year, to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, was proposed in a resolution offered jointly by Russia and Yugoslavia. It was unanimously adopted by the 1962 General Assembly, and a committee, headed by U Thant, was established to formulate plans. To that end, he has been exchanging communications with numerous heads of state.

Khrushchev utilized this correspondence to engage in a series of personal letters with U Thant, in the course of which the "massive" summit conference scheme was outlined.

From Khrushchev's letters, it is apparent he contemplates repeating his 1960 performance when he used a visit to the United Nations to bring to New York numerous chiefs of state, and to launch his world-fanfared scheme for "general and complete disarmament."

It was also at that September session that Khrushchev took off a shoe and pounded his desk during Prime Minister Macmillan's address.

President Eisenhower attended and spoke at that assembly meeting. Others present were Marshal Tito, President Gamal Nasser, and Cuban dictator Fidel Castro, accompanied by a small army of lieutenants and henchmen.

FLASHES

Friends of Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey are strongly urging him to devote more time to seeking the vice presidential nomination. They are telling the Minnesotan he is spending too much time and effort on Senate business and not enough on his vice presidential ambitions. It's being pointed out that he faces very tough competition, particularly from Attorney General Robert Kennedy — who despite public disclaimers, has a well-planned, highly organized and aggressive campaign underway to make himself President Johnson's running mate . . . Senator John McClellan, D - Ark., plans to hold more hearings on his protracted investigation of the TFX fighter-bomber contract. Defense Secretary McNamara is to be recalled for more grilling. . . Military specialists from North Korea, with considerable combat experience, are showing up in North Viet Nam. They number around 200 and most of them are officers. The North Koreans are making no secret of their presence, as they are appearing in uniform.

POLLS

To the Editor:

The public opinion polls seemed to have served some good purpose up to 1964. They helped get out the vote and added interest in the candidates and issues. Whatever the philosophy of the pollster, he seemed to make a genuine effort to be accurate at the time of his release. Although sentiment has never changed so fast before, pollsters seem different now. Their present activity makes them objects of ridicule. Now they release a poll between two candidates which will never be tested, because there will not be a contest between them presented to the voters at the polls. The pollsters seem to have gone wild in trying to advance their wishes and there are indications they are influenced by the eastern establishment, the big money minority, the invisible government, the kingmakers, the Fabians or something equally sinister. Their polls reveal the practically unknown Scranton has a popularity of 55 per cent throughout the U. S. and Goldwater 34 per cent, when it is well known that Goldwater is by far the best vote-getter of all the prospects for the Republican presidential nomination.

THIS SALARY GRAB

To the Editor:

About that salary grab Johnson pushed through in order to gain votes for his election (may heaven forbid) to the President's four-year term, after having accidentally been given the place and power to try to wreck our financial structure for the past eight months: He has had lots of help from many Congressmen, who should have known better and might have shown enough patriotism to block his purposes. If he gets in with all his lurid schemes, we might as well raise the debt limit to $500 million, and that may not be enough.

Behold the remedy. It can be done. And it should be done at once. Let every Congressman who voted against the steal (raise, they call it) decline to accept the money. If all the real patriots in Congress "no raise votes" will refuse to accept their checks, or return the amount of the raise if the checks have already been made out, it might put the fear of God into some of their hearts, and the fear of the next election in all who accept the money. They know that they are not underpaid, their $20,000 that they draw now is augmented by perquisites that are always plenty, and sometimes enormous, as per Baker, Powell, Johnson & Co. How they have suffered for a raise in salary! Their raise is the amount of my salary and I save money, and have some to loan, if this is not advertising. I don't believe that half the Congressmen ever made half of $20,000 a year until they were elected to office. If they did, they do not show that much sense in handling the finances of our country. This talk of spend more in order to save more, is just the babble of babies.

Did you ever read the Congressional Record and see when the roll call is made, they say "No Quorum?" Then the sergeant is sent to the federal saloon in the building to call them in, some in no condition to solve hard problems. The fact that such a place is allowed on the premises is a curse to good government.

I return to the remedy for this cancer of greed in Congress and President. They do not have to accept the raise, "God help them."

ZONED OR OWNED

The "almost-libertarian" may be described as one who is almost consistent in his belief in freedom of choice, limited government, and private ownership — but not quite. Whether such slight deviation from principle is important or unimportant as it pertains to zoning, is the basis of this discussion.

In our day there are but few persons, surely, who would adopt plain, unadorned, outright thievery as a way of life. And if a few were so inclined, the rest of us undoubtedly would bring the force of police power to bear upon them in order to discourage their immoral inclinations.

Crude transgressions upon the right to own one's property, therefore, are rather effectively thwarted. People almost always recognize stealing in its simplest form and act to prevent it. Failure to do so would produce unpleasant, unhappy results, for in a society in which ownership is not respected, production of goods beyond mere subsistence level ceases. After all, why should one person produce a good that could be taken away by another? As a way of life, stealing can result in nothing more than a hand-to-mouth kind of existence. Stealing is the removal of property, in whole or part, or of the right to its use, from its owner without the owner's consent. In the absence of theft, a complete owner may use his property as he wishes, sell it to another who wants to buy it, give it away, or even destroy it—as long as he has not removed another person's right to do likewise with his property.

Now, let us introduce a bit of complexity to the discussion of stealing. A legend, related by Plato, tells of a shepherd who found an unusual ring. When the ring's set was turned inward toward the palm of the hand, the wearer became invisible.[1] A question is then posed. How would a man react if he had such a ring in his possession? Would he transgress upon another if he could remain invisible while perpetrating this invasion of another's rights? Would he steal if there were no danger of being caught?

Twentieth-century man need not speculate about magic rings to hide his immorality. Over recent centuries he has become enamoured with the ever-widening use of a device called majority rule which does much the same thing. Through the privacy of a ballot box, the voter becomes an unidentified person, in effect an invisible person, who has the chance to transgress upon his neighbor by voting to remove legally a part of his neighbor's property or his right to use it as he likes.

IRRESPONSIBLE BEHAVIOR

When the scope of government is extended beyond the police protection of the life, liberty, and property of each citizen, we have entered the land of the shepherd's legendary ring. And as the intrusion of government interference into private lives becomes the customary and accepted manner of society's operation, the sense that distinguishes between the moral and the immoral is lost, or at least numbed.

Regardless of a dulled moral sensitivity within a society, stealing causes evil results. And it causes evil results even though accomplished by "invisible" means. Faced with such bad results, man naturally tries to find cures for these unpleasant outcomes. As he does so diligently and honestly, he slowly moves to a better understanding of the laws of our Creator. He sees more clearly than before the fallacy of hiding his moral responsibility in the midst of the group. He discovers that the commandment—"Thou shalt not steal"—is more complicated than he ever knew. Occasionally, the real source of an abuse against an individual's rights is discovered, and even less occasionally successful steps are taken to rectify it. Examples of these rare instances are the events leading to the Magna Carta, Petition of Rights, and Declaration of Independence. Perhaps one measure of man's evolution is the degree of his ability to recognize transgressions of men upon other men that go beyond the simple commission of theft and murder.

However, the process described never arrives at a final conclusion as it threads its way through the chronicles of history—never moves in a straight line toward deeper discernment. Sometimes a gain is registered; at other times ground is lost. Man's imperfection allows only glimpses here and there as he struggles upward on the irregular path of evolution. Therefore, it should not be surprising that certain manifestations of particular abuses by some men against others may be quite unsuspected. An abuse may appear in a form that seems to be very respectable, even praiseworthy. It may receive the unqualified support of leading citizens who sincerely attempt to achieve a desirable goal through its use.

THE ABUSE THAT IS ZONING

One manifestation of this kind is zoning. By definition, zoning is an interference with the right of ownership. When an owner of a property may use such property, consume it, give it away, exchange it—all as he wishes—that is ownership. Zoning reduces his latitude of action by political restrictions that prevent certain possible uses and require others. Zoning and owning are different systems of determining land use. Either the land will be privately owned and its use determined by the owner to his greatest satisfaction from the choices available to him in the market place, or the land will be used as directed by government.

Zoning has attained widespread acceptance in most urban communities and in many rural districts as well. Numerous civic leaders of good reputation believe zoning is a proper method to preserve and even to encourage a growth of property values. As a result of such popularity, it is likely that few persons consider zoning wrong—or perhaps admitting it is an intervention, consider it a "good" intervention producing more good than evil. Or a few may believe it is a wrong intervention, but still better than allowing each owner to make his own decisions, predicting the latter would be chaotic. Logic is laid aside. Forgotten is the fact that stealing is a reduction of an owner's right to his property without his personal consent, and that zoning falls within the definition of this wrong. Knowing that wrong methods inevitably produce wrong results, we should logically expect wrong results in proportion to the degree zoning dictates property use.

SHOULD BE UNNECESSARY TO PROVE

It really should be unnecessary to have to prove that evil begets evil in every separate and new instance. To identify an evil method should be sufficient reason in itself to bring it to an end. It is a sorry commentary on our time that expediency is the prevailing measure rather than principle. So, we must try to establish by evidence once again that any evil—including zoning—brings about evil results.

It would be convenient if every unhappy effect were clearly identified with its root cause. But such is not the case. Causes are often obscure and must be carefully searched out.

And even then the connection between an alleged cause and an alleged effect may be beyond unquestionable proof. Particularly is this the case regarding land use, because each piece of land is as unique as a fingerprint. Its owner is also unique, being the only one of his particular mold in all creation. For these two reasons alone, no set of circumstances surrounding the determination of land use can be identical with another. Consequently, whether one land use is better than another cannot be proven in the manner that a chemist, for instance, would experiment with two situations controlled to be alike in all respects except one, so that one variable and its cause and effect relationship can be isolated. Hence, the search for "proof" will produce only circumstantial evidence. We could proceed from either end—as a prognosis, wherein a known wrong action is the basis for predicting an ill-fated outcome, or as a diagnosis, wherein the outcome provides a clue as to its contributing causes. Probably both methods must be employed, drawing upon theory and whatever evidence there is available.

THE SMALL BEGINNING

Knowing the nature of other kinds of government intervention, we might expect zoning would have a growth pattern starting small and inauspiciously, and for reasons not too unpalatable to property owners at the outset. In fact, the desirable purposes given in the beginning for having zoning probably would easily overshadow the mild objections. Furthermore, zoning proponents would emphatically rebuff those few objectors who visualized future mischief from this intervention.

Many interventions have followed this gradual growth pattern. Zoning fills this description quite well. It was adopted first in 1916 in New York City. The reasons given were for the preservation of health, safety, morals, and the general welfare, for the most part relating to fire protection and congestion due to tall structures. Economic preservation or development of property value was not considered to be a part of zoning at all. In fact, great care was taken to see that zoning would not become an economic plaything of politicians. Bassett, in his book, Zoning, reported a concern among the populace of favoritism toward some owners at the expense of others.[2] Recounting the first twenty years of zoning, Bassett says that the enabling act (in 1915) which required uniform application of restrictions within a district was imperative to its first passage. Without such a provision, property owners would have become especially hostile, and zoning would have been unacceptable thereby precluding it from becoming a law. However, once the law was passed, this rule of uniform treatment began to be disregarded. Economic preservation and development of property quickly came to the fore as the reason for zoning.

AFTER A HALF-CENTURY

In a matter of one-half century zoning has passed from an early restraint of minor degree designed only to protect health and safety, to the broad dictatorial power of today that has transferred owner decision-making to a political commission or board. What are the results of the application of the zoning idea over the years? Have the early purposes of zoning been accomplished in the half century of its use? Bassett contended that "improper uses of land caused injury to homogenous areas and were especially productive of premature depreciation of settled localities." He then described a typical transition of a residential area from one-family homes to apartment houses, then to stores, garages, and factories. Apparently, he was convinced that such changes over the years would be for the worse and would likely leave behind blighted areas. To stabilize residential localities from such alleged deterioration was the common reason for the passage of zoning regulations in the early twenties. Zoning would prevent blight, its advocates assured; before long the "blight preventive" was being adopted throughout urban America. Surely, property owners and civic leaders could look forward to many years of healthy economic progress under the blessing of zoning.

But no! Cities subscribing to regular doses of zoning for nearly 50 years are today faced with bigger and worse blighted areas than ever before. The modern-day medicine prescribed by today's planner (yesterday's zoner) is an even larger dose of limitation against owner decisions and placement of even more power in the hands of the zoning and planning commissions. Evil spawns more of the same.

MAXIMUM SATISFACTION

To the best of his ability, an owner will use his property in a manner that he intends will give him the most satisfaction. Frequently, the satisfaction an owner gains from his property is measured in terms of economic worth, or substantially so. If the use of each piece of land within a community has been separately determined by its individual owners, each striving for maximum satisfaction, the total satisfaction within the community—chiefly, economic—will also be near its maximum for that particular time. Conversely, restrictions that do not allow each owner the freedom to achieve maximum satisfaction with his property, will require him to make second- and third-rate (or worse) choices.

Richard V. Ratcliff, Professor of Economics, University of Wisconsin, in his book, Real Estate Analysis, contends that the sum of all decisions, with respect to individual real estate investments and land use, determines the manner in which cities grow and change.[3] It logically follows that the sum total of second-rate economic decisions within a community can produce over all only a second-rate economic satisfaction. A community whose growth pattern must rely upon second-rate economic decisions should expect to find itself in economic trouble.

SECOND-RATE DECISIONS

Second-rate decisions are not just happenstance. As an owner with only partial ownership rights, he must fit his decision within government edict, rather than from unimpeded judgment. As a zoning official, the decisions are second-rate because the decision-maker lacks first-rate ingredients. His chief lack is the very real discipline that ties an owner personally (and financially) to the results of his decision. The zoner decides for other owners regarding the use of their properties and knows when he does so that he is not accountable personally for his inadequate or erroneous acts. Furthermore, the zoner can conceal the part he plays since he is only one member of a commission or a committee, thereby often avoiding the direct brunt of verbal accusation from the property owner who feels unjustly treated. The zoner, therefore, lacks ingredients important to first-rate decisions.

Neither does his becoming a zoning official provide him with other ingredients to make up for the lack. He is not endowed with special access to wisdom or foresight. Zoning commissions have no "corner" on the foretelling of future events, or of new developments. Rather the contrary is more common. Who, in the heyday of the canals in the early nineteenth century, anticipated that railroad travel was about to cross the threshold of progress? Who, in 1910 (or 1920, or 1930) could have described the twin impact of the modern automobile and communication methods on their grandchildren of the 1960's?

'VISIONARY' SHORTCOMINGS

Although zoners and planners by their actions have repeatedly proved their own "visionary" shortcomings by inaccurate estimates of new developments and change, this does not seem to deter them from eagerly and confidently trying again at each new opportunity. Tenacity is a laudable trait at times, but not when the price of the planner's failure must be borne by others than himself. For example, one should not be startled to find that brand new merchandising methods and modes of living, growing out of these twins of twentieth century progress, would demand a freedom of development not generally permitted within the boundary lines of most large cities. The most competent zoners simply could not have anticipated the radical changes arising from the post-World War II automobile and instant communication.

CHANGING TRENDS

More economic (and other) satisfaction began to be achieved outside the city, in the suburbs or in the countryside, where no zoning existed. Shopping centers suddenly became a fantastic economic phenomenon all over America—with one nearly uniform characteristic—they were located almost anywhere and everywhere but seldom within the customary commercial areas of the cities, at least, during the period of their early development. Many developed outside the corporation limits. The difficulty involved in obtaining needed relaxation or modification of zoning statutes within the cities discouraged the early shopping center development from taking place there.

Even the nature of recreation changed and affected the economy. The witnessing of entertainment moved from population centers (movie theaters, professional baseball stadiums, and the like) into the home via television, while the popularity of participant entertainment and recreation climbed steeply. Such change calls for extreme economic agility not permitted by government-determined land use.

LACKS ORIGINALITY

Can there be a connection between the zoning-type restrictions and the dull, stagnating economic condition that is the usual forerunner of the frantic demands of local downtown owners for federal aid? Zoning prescribes sameness and monotonous uniformity. Neither is a characteristic of being alive. In her book, The Death and Life of Great American Cities (Random House, 1961), Jane Jacobs says, "Do cities decline because they are blighted by too many people; because they have close-packed mixtures of commerce, industry, and housing; because they have old buildings and narrow streets, with small landholdings along them? Not at all. These are the very things that can—and do—give big city neighborhoods the close-grained diversity they must have to thrive, to be the kind of place people want to come." She urges that diversity be encouraged. Real diversity cannot be artificial, that is, taken from the singular majority mind of a zoning commission or city council. True diversity is the result of thousands of separate land-use decisions by all individual owners.

Zoners and planners frequently try to obtain diversity by indulging in an imitation of the "real McCoy." Interventionists would be completely at sea without the knowledge of free market results for them to imitate. While zoning may be looked upon by some as advanced thinking, in reality it is an attempt at imitation of the best results already obtained elsewhere in a free market place. Consequently, such attempts to copy must be necessarily "after the fact"; it cannot be original in the sense of being in harmony with the pulse beat of contemporary economic decisions.

The City of Houston, Texas, is often pointed out as the largest American metropolis without zoning. This does not mean that all citizens there favor non-zoning. Periodic balloting on the issue shows there are some who want zoning, although it has met defeat each time. As a result of the issue being raised every few years, a case against zoning and in favor of complete ownership-determination of land use has been regularly prepared after a great deal of study and research. There is strong evidence that property values in Houston and certain non-zoned suburban communities of greater Houston are at an enviable level when compared with property values in other adjacent but zoned suburbs and in other comparable cities of the nation.[4]

HOUSTON, TEXAS—WITHOUT ZONING

From 1950 to 1960 Houston has grown from the twelfth largest city in the country to the seventh largest—without zoning to work its "mysterious wonders." Many of its citizens proudly compare property values of Houston with their neighbors in certain zoned suburbs. The Houston values are reported to be almost always substantially higher, for example, for property on one side of a street (in Houston) compared with zoned property on the other side of the same street that lies in a suburban community. Both sides of this common-boundary street were once residential. The suburban community "protected" its property owners—only residential use was permitted. The "protected" property value today is comparably very low, but still residential. Land use on the Houston side is a mixture, but of high value.

OTHERS—WITH ZONING

In his book, The Future of Our Cities (Doubleday & Company, Inc., 1961), Robert A. Futterman places the blame for the "traffic horror" of Los Angeles and Washington on zoning ordinances which prohibited buildings of more than thirteen stories in either city. The reason in Los Angeles—earthquakes; in Washington—to prevent monuments from being dwarfed by large buildings. How does this restriction produce horrible traffic snarls? Futterman contends that as a result of such restriction it is impossible to develop sufficient downtown work-population density to support a rapid transit system. Hence, the automobile overtaxes the highway and street facilities.

Futterman goes on to observe an error of typical suburbia which has zoned against industry, apartment houses, and the usual list of "undesirables" only to find themselves beaten and bruised in carrying the whole burden of school taxes. Many of these same communities now are officially searching for potential industry to locate within their previously "pure" residential and restricted commercial areas. Political determination as a method of accomplishment must always run last in an economic race against decisions growing out of individual freedom of choice.

To the degree a city is stifled by zoning, it moves away from maximum economic progress and toward an economy made up of second-rate, or worse, decisions. Zoning becomes operative only when it prevents owners from making choices they consider best. Question: Is the zoner blessed with more intelligence and wisdom than other humans? Is he more capable and talented in the art of good decision-making than owners would be with their own properties? Even a zoner with an overly-generous endowment of wisdom and intelligence would have trouble honestly answering these questions affirmatively.

A QUESTION OF HONESTY

Zoning dictates land use politically. Within the hands of the political agents often is the power to designate who shall receive the benefit of a land monopoly. This is the case to a larger degree in federal urban renewal planning, but even zoning has its areas of discretion within which the members are empowered to use their own judgment, particularly where the element of diversity is sought.

"Recent experiences . . . have shown that without flexibility zoning imposes a virtual strait jacket of regulations upon community development . . . and the use of property."[5] To overcome inflexibility, the modern zoning ordinance seeks to interject flexibility to cope with changing times—not the natural flexibility reflected by the thousands of independent economic decisions, but the artificial imitation discussed before. Therefore, flexibility is necessarily achieved by providing zoning officials with areas of discretion. These are areas conducive to influence and persuasion beyond the realm of impartial justice—in fact—arbitrary determination may be the only method open to zoning officials in certain instances. How then can such an official be free from the special influence of those who would convey valuable considerations in return for favorable decisions?

In an article[6] in The Cleveland Press dated Wednesday, February 12, 1964, Forrest Allen said, "A Cleveland City Plan adopted in 1949 has been virtually abandoned under pressures—from councilmen and others—for spot zoning to meet spot needs. The 1949 plan has become just a pretty map. If all the zoning changes since 1949 were put on in red ink, the so-called plan would have a bad case of smallpox. A detailed study of 1963 zoning changes shows that while some appear to come easy for real estate promoters, an industry without friends in Council has a tough time." In a second article of the same series Allen went on to say that "the real planners of Cleveland today are land speculators and apartment building promoters."

Special favors are not confined to areas within municipal boundary lines since the advent of county-wide or township-wide zoning. If a politically-favored farmer near a developing suburban area can win a zoning classification that is virtually monopolistic (for example, the only land zoned for business for miles around) it can be quite valuable to him, forcing others to deal with him on his terms if they wish to establish a business in the general vicinity.

As the result of this kind of behind-the-scenes political by-play, zoning lends more instability than stability to land use. Home owners who believe they are protected by zoning may have a rude awakening when a zoning change is suddenly approved to accommodate the speculator who appears to have had unusual influence with the "right" persons in the municipal officialdom. A legally exclusive or monopolistic privilege to an enterprise no one else within the area is permitted to engage in, is an attractive prize and often becomes a lucrative temptation to corruption. Frequently, newspaper stories about hearings on proposed changes in zoning classifications report unexpected, unexplained reversals in the positions formerly taken by certain councilmen or zoning commissioners.

This is not to imply that all zoning authorities, or even most of them, are dishonest. They are, however, charged with the responsibility of making decisions that grant special dispensation to some persons over others. Whether the judgment is honest, dishonest, wise, or unwise, the decision is an intervention that comes primarily from the political realm. It can never be an accurate reflection of numerous owners making their own separate decisions aimed to bring the greatest economic satisfaction mutually to the parties involved.

TO COERCE OR TO COMPETE?

It is natural for a man to attempt to maintain the value of his property. His efforts to accomplish this may run in either of two separate directions. One is the attitude that a law—zoning or urban renewal planning—will preserve the relative status quo of businessmen and property owners within a community, at which point certain men may be quite well satisfied. They want nothing to disrupt their current set of circumstances; they are apprehensive of change because this means work to keep abreast of it. So anxious are they to preserve their present status that they fail to see the zoning action itself brings about an immobilization of full economic motivations. A subsequent decline in values can be expected. This attitude, then, is unreliable, producing the opposite effect desired. Similar to patent medicines and other forms of quackery, which cannot make the old young or the homely handsome, zoning and its latter-day kin, government urban renewal, are unable to solve land-use problems satisfactorily. They can only raise false hopes.

The second attitude is the recognition that real retention of economic values means maintaining the same relative position in a dynamic, moving market. One must swim to keep up with the economic stream. The "game" never ends. Tomorrow is a new day with new economic decisions based upon a satisfaction of tomorrow's wants. Acceptance of this attitude is the key to maintaining one's economic rank. And happily, the competitive road of freedom of choice leads toward the good and vibrant life, and away from economic senility.

Regardless of the logic and wisdom of the second attitude, we are lured by the promise of "protection" through zoning laws, not realizing the strong probability that zoning already has contributed substantially to the economic decline of cities. Then absurdity is added to absurdity as misdirected government adopts more error to cure the problem caused by its first error. The fallacy of zoning is surely the forerunner of its bigger evil, the fallacy of government urban renewal.

Zoning and owning are incompatible. Since the former is an interference with ownership, zoning at best is a "respectable" mid-twentieth century form of theft of an owner's right to own. Whenever the right to own is removed, restricted, or eroded in any manner, society declines toward a lower level of economic goods that is matched by a lower level of spiritual and moral values.

ABOLITION OF PRIVATE PROPERTY

"The distinguishing feature of communism is not the abolition of property generally, but the abolition of bourgeois property. But modern bourgeois private property is the final and most complete expression of the system of producing and appropriating products, that is based on class antagonism, on the exploitation of the many by the few.

"In this sense, the theory of the communists may be summed up in a single sentence: Abolition of private property."—Karl Marx, Communist Manifesto (1848)

Decrease in Sorghum Acreage Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Friday that the acreage of sorghums for 1964 planted for all purposes and totaling 17 million acres is down 4 per cent from both 1963 and the 1958-62 average of 17.8 million acres.

Plantings turned out to be nearly 700,000 acres below earlier intentions, reflecting some change in farmers' earlier plans and the enrollment of additional acreage for diversion in the feed grain program.

Spring planting in eastern areas of the Central and Southern Plains states moved at about the usual rate. In the Western areas, however, lack of moisture held back full-scale planting until after late May and early June rains covered the area.

Former Rebel Tshombe Named Congo Premier

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Moise Tshombe, who for more than two years tried to keep his Katanga Province out of the Congo Republic, became premier of that republic here and swore his loyalty to it.

Tshombe and eight of the ten members of his new cabinet went to President Joseph Kasavubu's residence overlooking the Congo River rapids and pledged "fidelity to the Congo and to the chief of state."

Two of Tshombe's new ministers, of National Economy Jean Ebosiri and Minister of Education Frederic Balojiwere, couldn't get to Leopoldville in time, so hastily was the government put together.

Kasavubu charged Tshombe and his ministers to advance the Congo's economy and its social services.

The Congo, torn by political and tribal rivalries for four years, now looks to Tshombe for the peace and dynamic leadership he promised when he returned from exile in Spain two weeks ago.

He also is to prepare for elections early next year.

When Tshombe returned to his guest house following the ceremony, several hundred persons pressed against the fence shouting "Out with Adoula." Tshombe greeted his admirers with his customary gesture of raised arms and a big smile.

Cyrille Adoula, the outgoing premier, denied reports that he delayed the installation by failing to sign Kasavubu's order naming Tshombe. In a communique Adoula said he hadn't been asked to sign.

Ellington Band To Feature Female Soloist

Alexandra Hunton, a young lady on her way to singing stardom, will be the featured soloist with the Duke Ellington Orchestra when the famed bandleader takes the stage of the Broadmoor International Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Hunton has been hailed in the trade as an exciting new vocal stylist and her imaginative vocalizing has been likened to the creative style of Billie Holliday. Her remarkable talent and manner of presentation are showcased in such numbers as "Cee Cee Ryder" and "God Bless the Child."

She started her spiral upward about a year ago when a group of ten young singers got together to form "The Good Time Singers" and won a spot on the Andy Williams Show. The lead voice of this group was Alexandra Hunton, who later decided to leave the group and embark on a career of her own. The result has been a chance to cut her first record and to appear in top entertainment spots around the country with Duke Ellington.

* * *

ALEXANDRA HUNTON

The Duke, unquestionably America's most influential jazz musician, added more honors to his already staggering list, on April 2 of this year when Down Beat Magazine presented two highly coveted plaques to the veteran musician. The Ellington orchestra was awarded one plaque for its designation as the world's finest jazz aggregation. The second Down Beat Award toasted Ellington himself as 1963's best arranger-composer for the idiom. He has been similarly cited along with many of his famous sidemen for his contributions to music by most of the world's jazz publications.

Always seeking new fields to conquer Duke Ellington was the first big bandleader to "invade" Carnegie Hall. He did this in 1943 and has returned every year since to premiere a major work. His stature as a composer stems not only from his long list of popular hits that have become classics, but from his longer works such as "Beggar's Holiday" for which he worte the music and John Latouche wrote the lyrics. Also among his longer works are "Perfume Suite" "Liberian Suite" "New World A'Comin" and "Harlem," the latter commissioned by the NBC Symphony, then under the baton of Arturo Toscanini.

BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY

Average Policy Totals $15,000 Per U.S. Family

By AILEEN SNODDY
Newspaper Enterprise

Ask your neighbor if he believes he is "insurance poor," and he probably will say, "yes." Two - thirds of the population have life insurance with a face value of $730 billion. The estimate for 1970 is one trillion dollars.

Of those insured now, the average policy totals $15,000 a family. In addition, there are health, liability, old-age, retirement income policies. For many, insurance represents their only savings.

To answer the nagging question of whether you are pouring money down the drain ask: what will my insurance do for me, for my family? Do I have the right policy? Here are 20 questions to help you decide:

1. Are your policies lapse proof? (They should be.)

2. Have you unknowingly disinherited one or more of your children?

3. Does your policy deal fairly with and provide sufficient coverage for a younger child who has adult and perhaps married brothers or sisters?

4. If married, do you have a common disaster clause? (Who gets the money if husband and wife die sumultaneously?)

5. Does it pay you to have a family plan?

6. If you are 30 or older, have you considered retirement income insurance?

7. If single, is someone dependent upon you?

8. If single, do you have adequate insurance to cover funeral expenses?

9. Can you afford to pay premiums quarterly, semi-annually or annually to gain a saving?

10. Is your insurance agent a full-time insurance man?

11. What type policy is best for you—term, straight life, limited-payment, endowment?

12. Did you shop companies or banks for a lower rate and possibly better coverage for your needs?

13. Do you know the total cash value of your policies in case of an emergency?

14. How do you want the benefits paid—lump sum or regular income installments? How does this affect the beneficiaries' taxes?

15. Do you have a separate listing of company names and policy numbers and do you know where the family's insurance policies are kept?

16. How do your medical-surgical policies compare with local hospital and surgeon's charges? Can you get better coverage?

17. Does your personal health insurance duplicate or cancel similar insurance you or your spouse has at work?

18. If you have a swimming pool, children or a dog, do you have adequate liability coverage?

19. Do you have a household inventory?

20. Have you reviewed neighborhood property values recently and adjusted your home insurance accordingly?

PUB HOPPING WITH A PAPER

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Police in Birmingham have a unique method of determining whether tavern owners are keeping enough light in their pubs. The City Code says that drinking places must be light enough so that a newspaper can be read at any seat in the joint.

Integrationists Start 'Schools' In Mississippi

By DUDLEY LEHEW

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—They call them schools, but there aren't any report cards, bells or football teams.

The students are Negroes. The teachers are white.

They are called "Freedom Schools"—part of the sweeping civil rights movement in Mississippi being directed by the Council of Federated Organizations, which coordinates activities of the major civil rights groups.

One of the aims of the Freedom Schools is to help Negroes pass voter registration tests.

The teachers work from 8 a.m. until noon and again from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in night classes. Their classrooms are in Negro churches, garages and sometimes in private homes.

At Hattiesburg, there is a teacher shortage already. Some 575 students ranging in age from 8 to 82 are registered. Another school has only 15 pupils.

The schools are striving to teach subjects and ideas which a COFO spokesman says "are not normally available" to the Negro.

About half of the curriculum, a COFO spokesman said, centers around citizenship training, including a study of "Negro history, myths about the Negro, white power structure in Mississippi, a history of the civil rights movement and should the Negro go north."

The primary aim, the COFO spokesman continued, "is to teach the Mississippi Negro to question—to question the written word, to question the radio, not to believe everything heard."

The students in the 8-12 age group study reading, writing, spelling, Negro history and general mathematics.

Those older can choose courses from the language arts, American history, social studies science and math.

Dr. Staunton Lynd of Atlanta's Spellman College is the over-all director of the Freedom School project. His assistant is Tom Wahman, who is coordinator of religious activities at New York University.

Eleven schools have been opened at Greenwood, Clarksdale, Meridian, Hattiesburg, Vicksburg and Jackson.

Pentax Photo Competition Is Announced

By BART KINCH
United Press International

A photography contest for Pentax Camera owners is being sponsored by Honeywell, Inc. and the Asahi Optical Company of Japan with prizes ranging from savings bonds to a free trip to Japan.

Robert L. Pennock Jr., director of photographic products entered must be made with Pentax cameras, either Honeywell or Asahi, and submitted for judgment by Sept. 30.

The contest has two divisions, the U.S. division open to residents of the United States only, and the International division open to all except Japanese nationals.

Prizes in the U.S. division include a Chevrolet Sting Ray sports car, U.S. Savings Bonds worth $1,000, $500, $300 and $200, portable TV sets and wrist watches.

Prizes in the International division will be five tours of Japan, 20 Honeywell Pentax camera-lens combinations, 60 $150 savings bonds and 300 trophies.

There are four basic categories of competition in each division, two in black and white and two in color. The black and white categories include pictures taken with standard Pentax equipment, plus those with special equipment or utilizing special techniques. Color entries also are divided into the same categories.

The Asahi company is conducting a separate domestic contest for Japanese nationals.

U.S. entries will be eligible for prizes in the International division. Honeywell will submit to Asahi all winning entries as worthy of being considered in the International competition.

Further details can be obtained from your Honeywell Pentax dealer.

The Pavilion of Spain at the New York World's Fair offers a half-hour slide show that is electronically synchronized to enable the 750 color transparencies to appear in groups of three on three screens simultaneously.

At the same time authentic, appropriate sound is transmitted stereophonically.

Photographer Martin Swithinbank said the show's automated programming unit is "based upon a control system normally used in precision machine tool production. This is the first time such a control system has been employed in a theatrical production."

The "system" offers 9,300 programming possibilities, Swithinbank said.

He said sound and camera crews spent more than six months in Spain to record the sights and sounds.

The show, rather than presenting documentary photographs, describes Spain's churches and religion; its agriculture, people, bullfighting, castles, fiestas, industry and landscapes.

Drop in and see it while at the fair. Showings are scheduled daily in the Pavilion Theatre.

TRAILER RENTAL SYSTEM

TRAILER MAKERS — Jack Pifingston, left, and Herb Adams, owners of Pace Manufacturing Co., stand beside one of the trailers their company manufacturs for Nationwide Investment Co. for lease into the Nationwide Trailer Rental System. Pace Manufacturing Co. To Move to New Building

Pace Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of trailers, will move Wednesday into its new 5,000 square foot building at 3920 N. Weber St. from temporary quarters at 310 E. Fillmore St.

The company, started June 1 by Jack Pifingston and Herbert Adams, has been turning out four trailers a day for Nationwide Investment Co. for lease into the Nationwide Trailer Rental System, but will increase production to one trailer every 45 minutes in its new plant.

The trailers have fibre glass tops, fronts and side panels and are reinforced with steel. The steel frame and doors were designed by the company, and trailers are manufactured in eight sizes — 3x5, 4x5, 4x6, 4x7, 5x8, 5x10, 5x12 and 4x16.

In addition to manufacturing trailers for Nationwide, Pace Manufacturing Co. makes custom trailers for boats and stock cars and jeep trailers. Pifingston said the company is considering going into the camp trailer business.

Pace has been employing eight men at 310 E. Fillmore St. and will increase the force to 15 or 20 when it moves. Fibre glass component parts are supplied by Spray - Bilt of Colorado Springs.

Pifingston formerly was with a trailer manufacturing company in Denver, where, he said, one trailer was produced every 35 minutes. He has purchased the home at 2201 Warwick Ln. and the Warwicks and son, 6, will move into it soon from Denver.

Adams has lived here a number of years, managing the Cragmor Trailer Sales and Park.

Transistorized Call Attracts Fish to Angler

Now you can attract fish to your exact fishing spot with a new patented and tested electronic transistorized fish call.

The new fish call, TR-Sonic

* * *

MAURICE D. AHEARN

* * *

Fish Call, is being handled here by Maurice D. Ahearn, 259 S. Circle Dr.

Ichthyologists have known for some time that fish respond to sonic oscillations (sound) between 50 and 300 cycles, and to light waves. Both have been combined in this compact unit.

The sound waves, though only moderately audible to the human ear, travel some 200 to 300 yards through the water and attract the fish to the source. From then on it is up to the skill of the fisherman to get the fish to bite.

The dial allows selection of five different variants of sound waves. In addition to the sound selection, the unit is also capable of producing light waves for maximum attraction of all species of fish.

Ahearn will handle the TR-Sonic Fish Call from his home at present, but plans to sell them later through stores.

Ahearn has been in the dairy business for 40 years, the last 18 years with Sinton's. He has been named an unrestricted distributor of the TR-Sonic Fish Call.

Investor May Double Stock Holdings in Future

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The institutional investor has seen his name go up in lights on the stock market marquee since the war. In the present decade and the next he may cinch this star billing by doubling the percentage of common shares he controls on the nation's stock exchanges—or from around 20 per cent now to 40 per cent. He already holds 80 per cent of the corporate bonds.

Of late the institutional manager also is playing more of a role in influencing corporate policies. This too could increase unless the number of individual investors multiplies again as fast as it did in the late 1950s, or government regulatory agencies move beyond their present stance of apparently increasing curiosity only.

The rapid growth of institutional ownership of stocks has been largely due to two things: 1. Money has been rolling into the various types of savings institutions at a faster rate than the economy itself has been growing. 2. The stock market has offered attractions neither they nor many individual investors thought they could pass up.

As to the role the institutions will play in corporate policies, the New York Stock Exchange says in a survey of such shareownership, out today:

"If institutional investors some day take a more active role as shareowners, the methods by which they do this will be significant in view of the increasing importance of institutions in the stock market. Institutions will probably continue to rely primarily on informal discussions in communicating their views to portfolio companies — and on sale of the stock when they are in strong disagreement with management."

The exchange notes that in 1954 institutions held about 12.7 per cent of the stock listed on it, and by 1963 held 20 per cent.

It traces most of that growth to swelling assets of these savings concerns. In the years between 1945 and 1963 the output of goods and services in the nation increased by 160 per cent. But the assets of the six main forms of savings institutions grew as follows: life insurance companies 198 per cent; mutual savings banks 172 per cent; savings and loan associations 973 per cent; corporate pension funds 1,233 per cent; state and local government pension funds 829 per cent; and mutual funds 1,687 per cent.

With all this money rolling in, the institutions have invested $86.7 billion in corporate bonds, and some $82.4 billion in common stocks listed on the exchange. This big demand, the survey allows, "may have contributed to higher stock prices" since the war, but it says it's difficult to measure the real extent of their influence.

Computer Firm Will Move to Anaheim

DENVER (AP)—Comcor, Inc., a Denver manufacturer of computers, will move its operations to Anaheim, Calif., by Aug. 1.

The firm has an annual business volume of $3 million and employs 140 engineers, technicians, draftsmen and other workers. It is a subsidiary of the Astrodata Corp. of Anaheim.

Paul Taylor, advertising manager of the firm, said the move "is purely a corporate one to enable the parent firm to unitize engineering talents of the two firms into a single staff for more efficient work."

Dallas was named in 1845 after George Mifflin Dallas, then vice president of the United States.

STOLEN SLATS DEPT.

NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP) — Vandalism in New York City last year cost the city's Park Department $465,000. Major item was the loss of park bench slats—10,400 of which had to be replaced at a cost of $46,000.

Labor Discords Cloud Blue of Business Sky

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The threat of labor discord appeared during the week to be the only haze in a bright blue business sky.

There were strikes against the nation's leading copper producer, Kennecott Copper Corp., and a continuing Teamsters Union dispute affecting distribution of automobiles on the East Coast.

There were also continued contract meetings between the leading automakers and the United Auto Workers Union. And talks opened to settle problems that two winters ago led to a crippling dock strike.

If serious work stoppages can be avoided, however, there appeared to be nothing immediately, beyond normal summertime respites, to prevent business from continuing the hearty pace of the past 41 months.

The briskness of that pace was illustrated anew by the first of the giant corporations to announce first - half earnings, Radio Corp. of America. It reported record returns. Du Pont, while not announcing its results, indicated that it would have a 7 per cent rise to new records of its own.

Steel production figures showed an unusually high rate for an Independence Day week, strengthening signs that the summer slump may not be as deep as usual.

Other signs of summer included a drop in soft coal production to 3,415,000 tons from the previous week's 9,815,000, as reported by the National Coal Association.

Automakers began shutting down their plants for model changeover, a process that will continue to pare that major industry's activity until the 1965 models start rolling off in mid-August.

Car sales in June hit a daily rate of 25,939 autos, up 2 per cent from a year earlier. The month's total was 674,420, compared with 635,950 a year earlier. For the first six months, the total was up 6 per cent to a record 4,014,000.

June retail sales took big jumps at three major chains. Spiegel reported a 17.5 per cent rise from the previous June. J. C. Penney listed a rise of 5.1 per cent and Montgomery Ward reported a 9.5 per cent gain.

Kuwait Calls Off Plan To Deposit Millions

DAMASCUS (AP) — Oil rich Kuwait has called off plans to deposit $200 million in the Chase Manhattan Bank because the financial house has been placed on the Pan-Arab blacklist, the Arab League has announced.

An official in the league's Israel boycott office told a reporter the bank had been blacklisted because it "is the main financial and technical agent of the Israeli state loan bonds."

SWEDEN WAITS

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden, with only 11 American companies located here, is regarded as a fertile future area for American industrial activity, according to Ake Evans of Gunther & Back, Stockholm marketing consultants.

Paden Buys Interest in Collection Firm

Donald Paden, Widefield, has purchased a half interest in the Accounts Affiliated Collection Agency, 118 Pueblo Ave.

Paden, a native of Indiana, retired from the military after 27 years of service. During World War II he served in the Pacific Theater. He came to Colorado Springs in 1956, retiring from the Transportation Corps in 1960 with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

In 1961 he joined the St. Francis Hospital staff as credit collections manager, a position he held for 2½ years.

He is married and resides with his wife, Ruby, and one son in Widefield.

Co-partner in the business is James Cain, a native of Simla. Cain was appointed constable in Justice Vohringer's court in 1955. He was re-elected to that post in 1958 and later served as constable in Justice James Quine's court. Previously he was a civilain clerk in the Colorado Springs police department and in 1953 he was elected councilor of the Junior Order's Rocky Mountain Council No. 20.

Pelican Elected To Colorado Oil And Gas Board

Thomas L. Pelican, senior vice president of Colorado Interstate Gas Co., has been elected a member of the board of directors of Colorado Oil and Gas Corp., subsidiary of CIG.

Announcement of Pelican's election to the board was made by W. E. Muellier, president of both Colorado Interstate Gas Co. and Colorado Oil and Gas Corp.

Pelican will fill the spot vacated by W. G. Tierney, whose retirement as a COG board member and vice president became effective July 1.

Pelican joined Colorado Interstate in 1948 as a gas engineer and was placed in charge of industrial engineering in 1953. He was named vice president for operations in 1959 and last March was elevated to senior vice president.

A native of Craig, Pelican is a graduate of Colorado College.

He and his wife, Betty Jane, and their three children reside at 1430 Columbine Rd.

Central Passenger Figure Near Record

Central Airlines' passenger traffic for June was the second highest recorded in the company's history as the six-state system total reached 36,222, a 6.5 per cent increase over June a year ago, L. E. Glasgow, Central's president, announced.

The June figure was exceeded only by the existing all-time high record of 36,917 established last August.

Four cities throughout Central's system surpassed previous high marks and set new records. Included were Kansas City with 5,693, Dallas with 4,487, St. Louis with 2,615 and Joplin., Mo., with 1,048.

Meanwhile, an innovation to air travel in Kansas will be inaugurated July 15 when Central begins first-time economical coach service to Topeka, Manhattan and Salina on a new roundtrip radar Convair flight from Kansas City to Denver. The action is subject to Civil Aeronautics Board approval.

Central Airlines, soon to begin its 15th year of operation, provides service to 41 cities in Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas.

Springs District Chosen for Honor Agent

PORTLAND, Ore. — James C. Moore of Pueblo, Colorado, was named 1964 Honor Agent of the Equitable Life Assurance Society's 10 state South Central Division by the company's General Agents and Managers Association.

The Association, with members from all 50 states and Puerto Rico, held its 59th Annual Meeting in the Portland Hilton Hotel.

Moore, associated with Equitable's F. Jordan Bayless Springs District, was chosen for the honor over more than 1,000 other agents in the South Central Division.

Basis of selection was overall excellence in community service, cooperation with business associates, service to clients, participation in professional activities, and standing on the company honor roll. Moore has been with Equitable since 1947. He has made the company's Million Club for outstanding representatives many times and is a member of the Chariman Council.

He has served as president of the Pueblo Life Underwriters Association, past president of Pueblo's Single Fund, past president of the Pueblo Chamber of Commerce, past president of Friends of the Library.

He was Finance Director and member of the executive Board of the Frying Pan - Arkansas Water Diversion Project and past president of the Pueblo Young Men's Christian Association.

He has been the recipient of Service Clubs of Pueblo Outstanding Community Service Award 1950, Junior Chamber of Commerce Distinguished Service Award 1952, and Denver United States National Bank Distinguished Life Underwriter Award 1960 and 1962.

Jim Moore is a member of the Development Action Committee of the Citizen's Advisory Group for the City of Pueblo, elder and Chairman of the Building Committee of the United Presbyterian Church, and a director of the Fountain Sand and Gravel Company.

Moon Race May Benefit Military and Industry

By RAY CROMLE Y

NEW ORLEANS (NEA)—The Industrial Revolution of the 19th century not only changed our way of living but our way of thinking.

Paradoxically, reaching the moon may become a minor benefit of the U.S. space program. The effect of this effort will be felt in industry, medicine, education and national defense. At the Saturn - Apollo moon-trip plants here and in Los Angeles, this judgment is reinforced in many ways:

A doctor plays a round of golf with a space engineer on a Saturday afternoon. They discuss how an astronaut's body processes are monitored. The result, a new method of measuring how a man's heart is doing and thus a better way to forestall heart attacks.

An engineer working in a space rocket plant is transferred back to his company's civilian products factory. The result, recommendations for a revolutionary new management system that will speed work, lower costs and increase reliability.

A psychologist works with space animals, developing methods to teach them what they need to know to operate in space. Result, a new method for the simplified teaching of languages to school children.

Work at a crystal - growing laboratory may result in a complete new family of metals.

The real importance of the space race does not lie in the thousands of new gadgets and improvements in civilian goods that will result from the space effort. Instead, the importance lies in a new attitude now slowly developing through U.S. industry, in the schools, among medical men and the military.

That attitude shows up in these ways:

A sharply increased respect for the importance of research and education.

An increased tendency in industry, schools and among military offices to latch on to new ideas and better ways of doing things.

A new respect for the man who will use his initiative and come out with new thoughts and new ideas, regardless of how much or how little education he may have.

A tendency to translate concepts and ways of doing things learned in the space business into other solutions. This trend shows up in a new way of operating a company cafeteria, a radical new method of constructing factory buildings.

Talk to a young mathematical engineer, an expert on space. Then his mind and his talk darts to the problems of management, or to a new solution to the parking jam or to new ideas for solving a particular problem in medicine or juvenile delinquency.

The creative demands of the space contest are creating a large group of mentally active men and women whose minds are so stirred up by space they will jump automatically into any new problem at work, home, church or school.

Likewise, an observer at the nation's space plant finds that military payoffs of the space race will be great.

Because of the space program, partial solutions are in sight for the inaccuracy problems plaguing the big intercontinental missiles.

The major concern: radiation from enemy nuclear blasts might destroy the electronic function of the big ICBMs; when launched they'd fly erratically and not reach target. Experiments with space satellites carrying sensitive equipment for long periods in high-radiation zones are giving research men new insight on how to deal with this radiation headache.

Research satellites are making it possible to determine the earth's gravitational field with greater accuracy. Gravity has a direct influence on the flight of the ICBMs and must be known precisely along the bird's path in order to achieve the accuracies required.

Findings also provide more accurate ties between existing maps and more precise locations of major points on the globe. This means U.S. intercontinental missiles can be more accurately aimed.

There will be other military payoffs:

Knowledge of how to protect Apollo astronauts from space radiation will give military designers some new ideas of ways to design battlefield tanks to protect the crew against nuclear radiation.

Concentrated diets being developed for astronauts will provide the know-how for developing light food packs for guerrilla infiltration teams which must travel lean and light.

Development of the Saturn V booster will make it possible for the United States to construct an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of carrying larger warheads.

The work on maneuverability and re-entry will make possible a near - earth military space plane.

Development of sensitive techniques for detection of microbial activities on the moon will assist in developing equipment for the battlefield detection of biological warfare attacks.

'Rasslin Bear' Held Over at Foss Motors

Victor, the "rasslin" bear, has been held over at the Bob Foss Motors used car lot, 715 E. Pikes Peak Ave.

The 6-year old 450-pound bruin has been wrestling all comers at the lot since Monday, July 6, and will continue to pin down the shoulders of anyone with the guts to challenge him until July 18.

The 6 feet, 2-inch tall bear is owned by "Tuffy" Tuesdell, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., a professional wrestler for many years.

Victor enjoys wrestling and needs the exercise to keep healthy, according to his owner. He wrestles 15 to 25 times a day and "is the only wrestling bear that can be turned loose to wrestle free without being chained," Truesdell says.

A Canadian black bear who was orphaned when less than a year old, Victor was traced to his den by Truesdell who taught him how to wrestle.

Truesdell said Victor uses just enough strength to defeat his opponents and wrestles with children as young as 4 years old, as well as professional wrestlers, whom he can fall with ease.

REQUEST

ADDISON, Ala. (AP) — Gospel singer S. Whit Denson sang at his own funeral. Relatives arranged that two recordings by Denson be played at his funeral service. The selections, "I Won't Turn Back," and "New Morning Sun," were favorites of the 74-year-old singer. Each recording was a quartet — with Denson singing all four parts and also playing the piano. He had requested that they be included in the service.

SECRETARY CITED — Miss Shirley A. Allen, 1226½ N. Tejon St., Colorado Springs, receives an outstanding performance award accompanied with a quality increase in salary. Making the presentation is Maj. YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Dentist Sees Your Tongue As Map to Mouth Health

"Stick out your tongue," the doctor used to say. You almost have to add: then he climbed into his buggy and drove down the country road. When was the last time your doctor asked to see your tongue? Alas, it seems that the tongue cult is no more.

However, the tongue is still important as a diagnostic aid to dentists.

Look into a mirror and stick out your tongue. If you can't extend it very far, it may be because the attachment of the tongue to the floor of the mouth is short. When it's too short, it can be a cause of speech defects. Not infrequently in children, this short attachment, or frenulum as it is called, has to be cut to allow more freedom of movement.

— If your tongue extends too far, then you may be one of those people who habitually stick it out at the mirror. It's been reported that a patient who thought he had cancer of the tongue kept sticking his tongue out to examine it every time he passed a mirror: his tongue actually got longer.

— If your tongue deviates to one side, it may indicate a partial paralysis or a swelling in the floor of the mouth.

— Is it hesitating or tremulous? Then it suggests nervousness or hyperthyroidism. Tremors also may be due to alcoholism or, in the sick, to weakness.

— "Clean tongue" is often associated with vitamin deficiency. It is named after its discoverer, Dr. Sandwith, and it has been given the marvelous name of "bald tongue of Sandwith."

— Black, hairy tongue is a fright. Yet it is a harmless, benign condition which makes the top of the tongue look like a cocoa mat that got thoroughly wet and matted down. The color actually varies from yellow to brown to black, and is thought to be due to poor mouth hygiene. It is sometimes caused by certain antibiotics which alter the normal balance of organisms in the mouth.

— Crenated tongues have scalloped edges. This condition comes from pressing the tongue against the backs of the teeth, usually the lower front ones. The border of the tongue takes the shape of these teeth, especially if they are covered with tartar, which makes them rough. It's of little consequence medically, except that this irritation may produce a sore tongue.

— Geographic tongue is just what it suggests: due to changes in the length of the papillae on the dorsum, or top of the tongue, it looks like a map. It's also of no pathologic significance, but it is sometimes painful and is more easily irritated by hot and spicy foods.

— Do not attempt to be your own diagnostician. If you have a tongue lesion, see your dentist.

Questions and Answers On Alcoholism

1. Q. Is Alcohol The Cause of Most of the Crime of Today?

A. There is an association between the drinking of alcoholic beverages and the commission of many acts of delinquency and crime. It is the informed view today to regard social behavior as a complicated reaction between the personality and the environment. It is a fine act of balancing between the urges and drives of the individual and the field of social force surrounding him. When this balance is upset, either by forces within or without, the individual, the behavior, influenced by many coincidences and unusual circumstances, meets or fails to meet the standard that society demands. It is this disturbance of behavior associated with alcoholic beverages that contribute to the wide-spread belief that alcohol is a prominent cause of crime. In discussing this problem, Haggard and Jellinek comments are as follows: "It must be recognized that many inebriates are simply criminals who drink excessively, not victims of drink driven to crime, and such individuals are properly the wards of penal institutions".

2 Q Does The Use of Alcohol Lead to The Use of Narcotics?

A. There is no intrinsic relationship between alchohol and narcotics. Persons, who are continually seeking thrills, who are intrigued by the non-conventional, who are quick to play any anti-social role, may graduate from alchoholic beverages to marihuana and thence to heroin, but as Cassius said to Brutus "The fault is not in our stars but in ourselves". No basic and intrincisic chemistry is responsible, only the individual with the notions he has and the attitudes he holds in responsible.

3 Q Wouldn't the Disease, Alcoholism be Eliminated if There Was Prohibition?

A. The drinking of alchoholic beverages is an ancient custom. It has survived centuries of criticism against its excess. But its survival is due to the fact that countless numbers of persons desire to retain a custom that for them seems harmless and pleasant. The sharp and persistent criticism against the excessive use of alcoholic beverages is justified by the real hazards that his practice presents to the life, happiness and welfare of people.

4. Q Is The Personality Of The Individual Important In The Problem of Alcoholism?

A. The role of the personality in the problem of using alcoholic beverages is a factor of considerable importance. Recent studies in psychology and psychiatry portray the great complexity of the human personality but the relationship to the use of alcoholic beverages is not known in all its aspects. Some observations have been made. The intergrated personality shows some vivacity after several drinks. The vivacious person becomes noisy and obnoxious after a few drinks. The nervous and excitable person gives a greater response to alcohol than the phlegmatic one. There are some personalities that become moody and angry after drinking. Some greatly depressed. There are also differences at different times. Those who become cronic alcoholics appear to be persons who are alcoholizable; the mere drinking of alcohol is not sufficient to produce a drunkard. The personality complex of the individual who will become a cronic alcoholic is not known in all its details, but two traits are recognized by Freudian psychology... one is egocentricity, the other is chaotic sexuality...some also include emotional immaturity. Some indicate physical differences, possible of a glandular character. Evidence of all this is quite limited.

5. Q. Is The Use Of Alcoholic Beverages Related To The Effort Of The Individual To Escape From Difficult Problems?

A. There is a considerable body of evidence to support the conclusion that the excessive use of alcohol represents an escape mechanism by which the individual tries to solve his problems either by forgetting them in the stupor of intoxication or by becoming for a few hours, a very different sort of personality from the Individual he usually is. There is behind the practice of excessive use of alcoholic beverages, the fact that about 50 percent of inebriates show mental and nervous abnormalities, some doctors even say 100 percent. There are alcoholics who fail to show personality defects. It would appear however, from the study of inebriaty that persons who have little power of restraint, poise, and stability, that those of the manic-depressive type who fluctuate between moods of great gaity and those of depression, and insistant upon their own views...these persons should be exceedingly careful in the use of alcohol, and for some, total abstinence. Emotionally mature persons can accept their weaknesses and failures...does not require success always... failure is no tragedy. The emotionally immature readily relies upon alcohol to give himself feelings of superior accomplishment in one or several areas of action.

6. Q. Is One's Philosophy Of Life Likely to Influence The Attitude Taken Toward The Use of Alcoholic Beverages?

A. Every person has a system of values by which he or she lives. Notions of the good life vary and each man sets his pattern according to his values. The use of alcoholic beverages is one of the decisions that all persons make in relation to the value they hold: Out of experiences arise attitudes, beliefs, prejudices, convictions ... the mental and emotional repetition. It is important for every person, and especially the young person, to examine his convictions and to inquire concerning his attitudes. These comprise his philosophy and inevitably shape his future experiences. But one's philosophy of life is not the sole influence that helps to shape the attitude held toward the use of alcohol. The example of parents, teachers, and associates also play a part. Knowledge of the facts influences final judgements. Of greater significance is custom, and or adolescents, the notion of what is socially approved, has great weight.

7&8 Q. Will The Use of Alcoholic Beverages Improve or Injure Athletic Ability? Work? Social Life?

A. Use of alcoholic beverages does not improve athletic ability but actually impairs athletic performance during the time that alcohol is in the blood stream. Alcohol in the blood depresses reflexes and interferes with co-ordination: lessens self-control, balance, vision, and all those co-ordinations by means of which a youth becomes a fine athlete.

Some persons believe that alcohol relaxes them enough to carry them over the initial period of strain in working, however, if the performance is one requireing fine motor co-ordination, it may be marked by numerous technical errors.

It is impossible to appraise in general, the improvement or impairment of health resulting from the use of alcoholic beverages, because excessive use does monstrous harm to the health of a person. Perhaps the greatest defender of alcoholic beverages is the person who finds it relaxing at the end of a day of strenuous effort; who uses it sparingly in passing a quiet hour in conversation, and does not rely upon it in any regular fashion. That there are other ways of relaxing is beside the point since the individual selects the practices according to what appears to him as desirable and worthwhile.

The relationship of alcohol to social life is one of the individual and the group. It is the individual who drinks or refrains from drinking: it is the group that makes the pressures. If a person must do as a group does, he is still an adolescent, regardless of his age. Many fine men and women abstain from alcohol entirely and yet enjoy social life with others who drink moderately.

CC Announces Room and Board Charge Increase

Dr. Fred A. Sondermann, director of the Colorado College summer session, announced today that a number of courses will be offered for the second four-week period beginning Monday.

Two are in the field of counseling and guidance, taught by Dr. J. Carter Parkes of Austin College in Sherman, Tex., and are entitled "Techniques in Counseling" and "Organization and Administration of Guidance Services."

In the area of special education, two new courses will be taught by Dr. Raymond M. Taibl, director of curriculum research and special education for the Pueblo public schools.

Among the most popular courses taught in the college summer sessions, Dr. Taibl's class will discuss "Educational Methodology with the Mentally Handicapped" and "Advanced Study of the Gifted." Dr. Taibl, one of the outstanding national educators in this field, has taught in the Colorado College summer session for eleven years.

Offered for credit in both the sociology and education departments is a course entitled "Races and Minority Groups." It will be taught by Dr. Lewis W. Jones, staff member of the American Missionary Association at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn., who holds a Ph.D. in sociology from Columbia University and is one of the country's leading experts in race relations. He will also present a continuing education seminar during the week of June 13 on "Prejudice and Politics in the United States" which will meet in the evenings on a non-credit basis. Interested persons should make reservations by calling the college summer session office.

Other courses to be offered during the four-week period June 13 to Aug. 7 include "Art Teaching Methods", "Listening Activities for the Elementary Grades", "Workshop in Curriculum Development", "Workshop in School Administration and Supervision," "Teaching of Science in the Elementary Schools", and "Introduction to Research in Education." Students may also enter the second-semester courses in principles of economics, languages (French, Spanish, German), and zoology, if they have the equivalent of the first-semester either at Colorado College or other institutions.

Extracurricular events during the second four-weeks include two concerts by the Concert Ensemble of the music department, featuring Colorado College faculty members Prof. Max Lanner and Ronald Hudson, and visiting artists Abraham Skernick and Leslie Parnas. There also will be public lectures, mountain hikes, nature walks, square dances and other activities.

The Colorado College swimming pool is open to enrolled students and their families this summer for the first time. A program of swimming instruction is provided.

Anyone interested in attending the second half of the Colorado College summer session is invited to call that office. Registration can be arranged for Monday, or preceding days, by calling at the registrat's office in Cutler Hall on the campus.

5-Year-Old Electrocuted

HENDERSON, Colo. (AP) — Charles M. Harsch, 5, was apparently electrocuted here in a water pump house at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Harsch.

Roger McDonald, Adams County investigator, said family members found the boy dead in the small building after apparently coming in contact with electric wiring.

Coroner Jack St. Germain said there were no visible marks or injuries on the child.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Editor Greening feels that dialect stories have a definite role in promoting racial harmony. And he is definitely correct, for dialect adds flavor to humor. And withour humor, a nation rapidly regresses toward a despotism such as Hitler's. You don't find Bob Hope and other comedians in a dictatorship!

By — George W. Crane, Ph. D., M.D.

CASE T-418: Elwin Greening is the astute newspaper editor at Michigan City, Indiana, who has a good sense of humor, too.

We were recently discussing the use of dialectal humor.

For a large factor in many jokes is the Swedish, Jewish, Irish, Italian, Negro and other dialects that add flavor.

In fact, dialect is to humor much as salt is to food.

But nowadays many people carry chips on their shoulders and seem almost eager to provoke a feud.

Yet a generation ago nobody objected to dialectal humor, thus proving that inter-race relations were better then than they are now, despite all the current agitation about civil rights.

Amos and Andy were the top dialectal jokesters of America. Jack Benny and Rochester were also popular then, as well as now.

But when I recently told a story about a colored lieutenant who addressed his troops in typical dialectal fashion, several readers became incensed.

One of these wrote to Elwin Greening in protest at my apparent attempt to foment racial strife and bias.

Yet you readers of this column know that Mrs. Crane and I have never held any bias whatsoever. We have helped finance colored students who have come to America to obtain medical education and have entertained them in our home.

"But, Dr. Crane, you belittled colored people by having that educated lieutenant use dialect."

That was not true! I lauded the lieutenant as a superb Applied Psychologist for employing the language common to his troops, for that is one of the axioms of good salesmanship.

A smart speaker, teacher or leader simply MUST use language his followers understand or he can't get the proper action.

So we might as well face the fact, head on, that many people here in America are now going in the wrong direction as regards inter-racial harmony.

For when everybody starts placing a chip on his shoulder because a joke is told on his race or religion or occupation, then we have lost our sense of humor.

For example, when I am introduced to an audience that I am to address, the chairman often "needles" me good humoredly by telling a joke on psychiatrists.

But I laugh, too, and don't take any personal offense.

For a genial sense of humor has been the saving race of this great melting pot nation.

Without humor, we shall head right back toward a Hitler type of dictatorship, for despotism does not relish humor.

Bob Hope, George Gobel, Red Skelton and all the other topnotch humorists are AMERIANS. Did you ever pause to realize why we are the leader costs when you send for one in humor?

It's because we have has a good sense of humor! That depends on a kindly attitude between races and occupations.

"I believe dialects," says Editor Greening, "have more than taken their place in literature and entertainment."

And they are a psychological safety valve, too, to permit friendly camaraderie in our great melting pot Republic!

German Spa Combed For Thief of Gems

BADEN - BADEN, Germany (AP)—Police combed this fashionable south German spa today for a hotel thief who stole jewelry and cash valued at about $250,000 from a New York woman.

Police said a small yellow leather case, secured with three locks and a combination, was taken from the hotel suite of Eugenie Hitt, New York. They believe the theft occurred last Tuesday.

Police who first said the value of the jewelry and cash was nearly $500,000 later cut their estimate in half. American insurance agents, who flew from New York, assisted police in their investigation.

Mrs. Hitt, who remained in the fashionable Brenners' Park Hotel while police questioned the staff and guests, refused to talk to newsmen about the theft.

Panel to Help Low Income Consumers

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government panel to help consumers with low incomes holds its first meeting next Tuesday.

Its mission is to "reach and teach consumers who have very little money to spend and who need to make every dollar count," said its chairman., Esther Peterson,, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs.

Mrs. Peterson said the first meeting will be an executive session to organize work and review present programs and resources.

Commonwealth Meeting Holds Private Talks

By LOUIS NEVIN

LONDON (AP) — The Commonwealth summit conference recessed Saturday for private talks that are likely to center on African demands for military force to end white minority rule in Southern Rhodesia.

Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya and President Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika-Zanzibar both proposed Friday that a Commonwealth military force intervene in Southern Rhodesia.

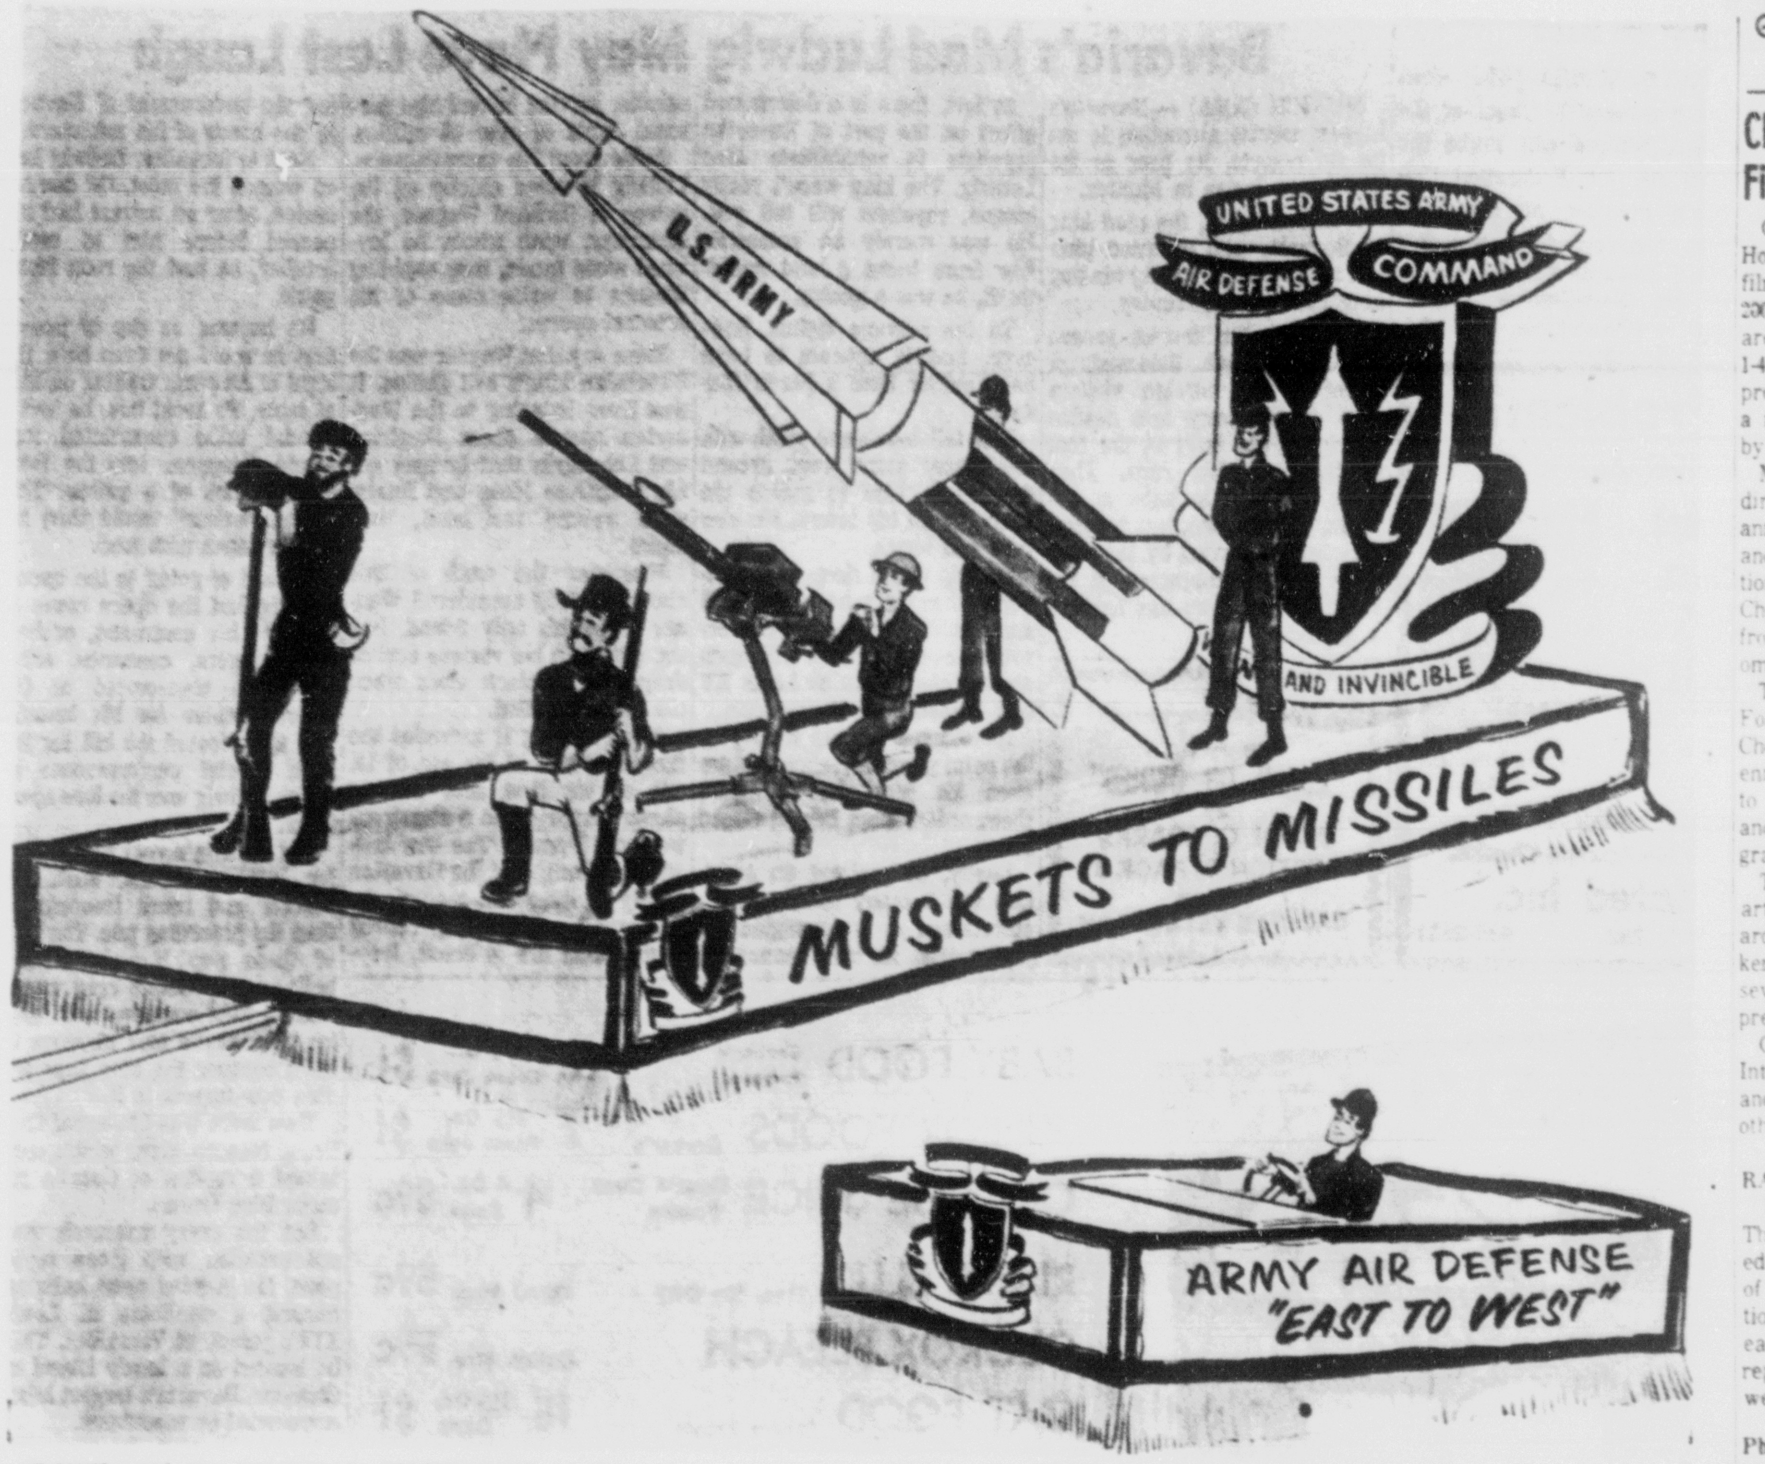
Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys was expected to reject both suggestions when the 18 government leaders attending the conference resume formal sessions Monday.

Kenyatta offered to contribute Kenyan troops to help Britain deal with any white settler rebellion that might arise in erasing the Rhodesian problem.

Once jailed for leading Kenya's Mau Mau anti-white terrorists, Kenyatta offered his troops if they could help Southern Rhodesia achieve a one-man one-vote constitution.

Such a constitution would give absolute power to the Africans, who outnumber the 220,000 whites in Southern Rhodesia by more than 10 to 1.

British Prime Minister Alec Douglas-Home, aides said, conceded that Britain has some legal rights to intervene militarily in Southern Rhodesia. But, they added, he insisted that no British government could entertain the idea of British troops fighting British subjects.



FLINTLOCK TO NUCLEAR FIREPOWER — Progress in weapons from the flintlock rifle of the western frontiersman in the early 1800's to the nuclear-capable guided missile of today's soldier will be depicted by the Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) float in the Colorado Springs Pageant Parade of the Rockies August 6. The ARADCOM "Muskets to Missiles" float will show some of the weapons and combat dress used in different periods. It will feature a model of the Army's Nike Hercules, the missile which ARADCOM uses to help shield some 30 target complexes, from east to west, against air attack. This is one of five military floats that will enter the parade's float contest.

Mrs. Kennedy's Move Touches 'Civic Spirit'

By HUGH MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — This tough old concrete jungle that they supposedly built without a heart is beside itself with something suspiciously like municipal pride at the thought of someone actually wanting to live here rather than just visit.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy's decision to move to New York in the fall with her two children from the Georgetown section of Washington—first into the Carlyle Hotel and then into an apartment — moved the town's municipal dailies to depths of civic spirit untapped since the Indians unloaded everything north of the Brooklyn Bridge for $24.

Brushing aside for the moment the latest police scandals, the recurring violence on streets and subways and the unearthing of a large counterfeiting operation, the papers fairly burst their editorial buttons in welcoming the former First Lady.

The Daily News, the country's largest daily circulation newspaper, summed up the general feeling by picturing her decision as a colossal rap at the remark that New York "is a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

While City License Commissioner Joseph Dicarlo was cautioning sight-seeing bus drivers against pointing out Mrs. Kennedy's mid-Manhattan hotel on their tours, the Herald Tribune was hoping Mrs. Kennedy and her children would find in the big city the anonymity they sought elsewhere.

In passing, the Tribune expressed the hope that "she will be spared the prying intrusions she has had to endure in Washington, where crowds of the curious congregated outside her home.

Non-New Yorkers may wonder how anyone could find anonymity in a busy hotel in the midst of a bustling city of eight million people at the height of the World's Fair, but what they miss is the endearing indifference of New York.

The anonymity situation is so extraordinary in New York hotels and restaurants that critic Clifton Faidman once wrote a learned treatise on the subject of "getting the attention of a Schraffts' waitress."

Some of the biggest names in Who's Who have managed to find perfect privacy in New York hotels. The late Gen. Douglas MacArthur and former President Herbert Hoover both managed to find peace and quiet while camped out in the city's biggest and busiest hotel, the Waldorf Astoria.

It's not that New Yorkers are immune to celebrities, it's just that people-watching has never been much of a spectator sport in the big city.

Is the town safe?

Elder statesman Bernard Baruch has been holding down a bench in Central Park for lo, these many years, unmolested by tourists or muggers or anyone else, save an occasional pigeon or reporter. And former President Harry S. Truman, when he occasionally dwells among us at the same hotel where Mrs. Kennedy will make her home, always manages to preserve his privacy by the simple expedient of outwalking the pudgy pack of reporters who try to trail him on his morning rounds.

New York may be a summer festival, as the mayor's public relations men insist, but it's also a nifty hideaway for those who want to be alone. Even Greta Garbo got her wish on a recent shopping tour. Not a soul noticed her in Lord & Taylor's—dark glasses and all.

Injunction Is Sought Against Sonic Booms

DENVER (AP) — The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has set Friday for hearing a suit seeking an injunction to stop airplane sonic booms over Oklahoma City.

The court denied Friday a motion by George Miskovsky, Oklahoma City lawyer, seeking a temporary injunction pending a court hearing. Miskovsky's suit named Najeeb Halaby, administrater of the Federal Aviation Agency, and the federal government as defendants.

The suit contends supersonic flight tests in creating the booms have caused property damage. Several hundred damage claims have been processed by FAA and others are pending.

The sonic booms result when the shock wave formed at the nose of an aircraft traveling faster than the speed of sound reaches the ground.

Home Call Benefits Provided Under Law

DENVER (AP)— Physicians' home and office call benefits are provided under Colorado's Medical Assistance for the Aged Law effective last July 1, Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar ruled Friday.

The State Welfare Board had asked Dunbar's opinion.

State old age pensioners previously received benefits under a limited program of physicians' home and office calls but was discontinued recently.

The board sought Dunbar's advice on whether it would be necessary to provide the same service to MAA recipients if the program was reinstated for pensioners.

Noninstitutional care and services must be provided by the state, Dunbar said, in order for the state to qualify for federal aid in the medical assistance plan for the aged who are not pensioners.

Oil Shale Corp. Files Suit to Clear Its Claims

DENVER (AP) — The Oil Shale Corp. filed suit in U.S. District Court here against the Interior Department involving oil shale mining claims owned or leased by the firm.

The company officials said the suit seeks to clear away roadblocks that might delay development of the oil shale industry.

The corporation owns or leases substantial sections of oil shale mining claims in western Colorado. Officials said a number of these were attacked by the Interior Department during the 1927-35 on the ground annual assessment work was not performed.

Two decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court held that these attacks went beyond authority conferred by law on the department, the suit said.

In the 27 years since 1935, it said, the department issued patents for many oil shale claims that once were declared null and void for failure to do assessment work.

The suit charged that despite this, the department ruled last April 17 it would use assessment work contest decisions to bar patent applications for the land involved.

The suit contended the department is not abiding by its duty to administer mining laws in accordance with Supreme Court decisions.

It said the agency is taking an "arbitrary and unreasonable change of position, pursuant to which legally erroneous and long over-ruled decisions in old contest proceedings are now for the first time, being sasserted to defeat the vested property rights" of oil shale claimants.

Producer Kramer's Wife Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Stanley Kramer's wife won a divorce from the movie producer Friday and will receive alimony averaging $25,000 a year.

Mrs. Kramer, the former actress Anne Pearce, obtained the divorce in Los Angeles after telling a judge the marriage collapsed because Kramer, 50, was "so involved in his work."

Four Koreans Killed In Explosion of Shell

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A U.S. Army shell exploded Friday and killed four Koreans when one of them tried to dismantle it, an Army spokesman said.

One of those killed had removed the shell from a restricted firing range 40 miles north of Seoul and brought it to a village to dismantle.

Cheyenne Will Stage Film World Premiere

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Hollywood stars, leaders in the film-making industry and about 200 members of the news media are expected in Cheyenne Oct. 1-4 for the international press premier of "Cheyenne Autumn," a movie about a 1,500-mile trip by Indians.

Max Bercutt, studio publicity director for Warner Brothers, announced the premiere Friday and said it would be in conjunction with dedication of the actual Cheyenne Autumn Trail running from the Southwest through Wyoming.

The movie, directed by John Ford, was based on a journey of Cheyenne Indians. One Cheyenne Indian youth will be picked to recreate the journey of his ancestors as part of the program.

The film stars James Stewart, Edward G. Robinson, Richard Widmark and Carroll Baker, among others. Bercutt said several stars would attend the premiere.

Others to be invited include Interior Secretary Stewart Udall and officials from Wyoming and other states.

Bavaria's Mad Ludwig May Have Last Laugh

MUNICH (NEA) — Bavaria's biggest tourist attraction is not its ski resorts, its beer or the new opera house in Munich.

It is Ludwig II, the mad king of Bavaria, who drowned himself in 1886 after running his tiny kingdom into bankruptcy.

Now, as the tourist season reaches its peak, thousands of Germans and foreign visitors flock to the fairy tale castles which Ludwig built at the foot of the Bavarian Alps. They come not only to gape at the weird architecture, but because they are fascinated by the even more bizarre character of the king, himself, who has become a legend.

In fact, there is a determined effort on the part of Bavarian royalists to rehabilitate Mad Ludwig. The king wasn't really insane, royalists will tell you. He was merely an eccentric. Far from being a wild spendthrift, he was a genius.

To the average visitor, however, Ludwig appears to have been nuttier than a pecan sundae.

This tall, handsome youth with the glassy stare went around dressed in blue to match the peacocks on his lawns. He also kept odd hours.

Ludwig would sleep until midnight, then have breakfast at 3 a.m., holding imaginary conversations over his coffee with such ghostly characters as Louis XV and Madame de Pompadour.

He shunned human society to the point where he refused to see even his servants, but gave them orders from behind closed doors.

Lastly, he realized an ambition which many have secretly entertained — he strangled his psychiatrist. He then committed suicide, leaving behind him personal debts of over $5 million.

Aside from his extravagance, Ludwig is noted chiefly as the patron of Richard Wagner, the composer, upon whom he lavished state funds, thus enabling Wagner to write some of his greatest operas.

Some say that Wagner was the Bavaraian king's evil genius. It was from listening to the Wagnerian operas about Siegfried and Lohengrin that Ludwig got his grandiose ideas and finally went around the bend, they claim.

Whatever the truth of this claim, Ludwig considered Wagner to be his only friend, had the pianos in his various castles draped with black cloth when the composer died.

When Ludwig II ascended the throne in 1864 at the age of 18, one of his first acts was to plunge Bavaria into a disastrous war with Prussia. The war lasted one month, cost the Bavarian dearly in lives and money.

Thereafter Ludwig retired from public life to brood, leaving the government of Bavaria in the hands of his ministers.

Next to frugality, Ludwig hated women the most. On one occasion, after an actress had appeared before him to recite Schiller, he had the roon fumigated.

He became so shy of people that he could not even bear the sight of servants waiting on him at table. To avoid this, he had a special table constructed that would disappear into the floor at the touch of a switch. This "dumb waiter" would then reappear laden with food.

Instead of going to the opera, Ludwig had the opera come to him. At his command, orchestras, singers, costumes, scenery were transported to the Court Theater for his benefit. The state footed the bill for 207 such special performances at which Ludwig was the lone spectator.

But Ludwig's real mania was for building castles, each one costlier and more inaccessible than the preceding pile. The first of these was Neuschwanstein, built on a mountain crag where Ludwig kept company with eagles. This castle took 15 years to build because the king kept adding new turrets to it.

Then there was Linderhof Castle, a rococco gem, which contained a replica of Capri's famous Blue Grotto.

But the crazy monarch was not satisfied with these royal pads. He insisted upon building himself a duplicate of Louis XIV's palace at Versailles. This he located on a lonely island in Chimsee, Bavaria's largest lake, surrounded by mountains.

Started in 1878, its construction was halted seven years later when the Bavarian treasury ran out of cash. But even in its half-finished state, Chimsee Castle is impressive.

It includes a 300-foot-long Hall of Mirrors decorated in gold and lit by 2,300 candles. It took 30 women seven years to complete the embrodery on the king's bed, in which Ludwig slept on only 25 occasions.

Somewhat tardily, the Bavarian cabinet declared Ludwig to be insane in 1886, appointed his uncle as regent. The unhappy Ludwig was confined to Berg Castle on Lake Starn, where the windows were nailed down and peepholes were cut into the doors.

It was here that he met his tragic end. On June 13, 1886, Ludwig went for a walk along the shores of Lake Starn with his psychiatrist, Dr. Gudden. Hours later the bodies of both men were fished from the lake. Dr. Gudden had strangulation marks about his neck.

Today, the turnstiles click merrily at the fairy tale castles which once made Ludwig the laughing-stock of Europe. At 25 cents a head, thousands of visitors come to marvel at Ludwig's follies. But the last laugh is Ludwig's. Through tourist takings, he now nets Bavaria more than he ever drained from its till.

Mystery Entry Sponsored in Pack Burro Race

Ball & Davidson, a national advertising firm of Denver and Cincinnati, Ohio, is sponsoring a mystery entry in the world championship Pack Burro Race between Leadville and Fairplay July 26.

Orville Ronnie, company president, said the man's identity is being withheld in hopes it will unnerve — and unseat — the iron-nerved present champion, Joe Glavinick of Leadville. He has won the race four times, in 1955, 1959, 1962 and last year.

In the 1963 affair a last-minute entrant, a distance runner, who had never gone over the course before, pressed Glavinick right up to the neck-and-neck finish.

"Glavinick said right then," Ronni commented, "that he hoped the Briton would not be back this year. So we're having a man train who will give the champions as good a race as last year's second place winner.

"Maybe by keeping our man's name secret until race time we can keep Glavinick nervous," Ronnie added.

More than $2,000 in cash prizes is posted for the 16th annual running of the grueling event. Man and burro trot — he can push, pull or carry the animal but not ride it — over 13,200-foot Mosquito Pass on the 23-mile route, most of it mountain trail.

Record time was set in 1959 by Glavinick who finished in 3 hours 33 minutes, an average of better than 6 miles an hour at the high altitude two and a half miles above sea level.

Women contestants make the distance in about 5 hours. Their race starts from Leadville at 10 a.m., two hours before the men follow them on the same route. Leaders in both divisions arrive at the Fairplay finish line around the same time.

Army Officer Receives Medal Of Commendation

An Army officer whose professional skills (polished in Korea), knowledge, and leadership "aided immeasurably in furthering the mission of the Air Force Academy" has been awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal.

Lt. Col. Edward J. Cavanaugh, assigned as an exchange officer with the Military Training Division from July 1, 1961, to July 1, 1964, has been cited for meritorious service as course director and professional studies staff officer.

Col. Cavanaugh served with the Army's 7th Division during the Korean Conflict.

During his tour at the Academy, Col. Chavanaugh significantly improved the content and quality of Army instruction and USAF officer orientation.

His outstanding leadership in preparing cadets for the Army Parachute Jump Training resulted in a 100 per cent successful course completion record for 209 cadets sent to Fort Benning, Ga., over a two-year period.

The colonel's voluntary work with Academy cadets in mountaineering and special warfare contributed greatly toward the advancement of cadet knowledge in the field of counterinsurgency tactics.

Col. Cavanaugh has been assigned to the Army Command and Staff College.

Teenage Girls Set World Swim Records

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Teenage girls broke two world records and tied another Saturday during the Los Angeles Invitational swim meet.

Marilyn Ramenofsky, 17, of Phoenix, Ariz., trimmed 2.5 seconds off the world mark of 4:44.5 for the 400 - meter freestyle, set by Santa Clara Swim Club's Chris von Saltza in the 1960 Olympics.

Also under the 1960 freestyle mark Saturday were Terri Stickles and Tokey Watson, both of the Santa Clara Swim Club.

Claudio Kolb, 14, of the Santa Clara Swim Club, swam the 100-meter breast stroke in 1:17.9 to outdo the mark of 1:18.2 set by Germany's Barbara Goebel in 1961.

The 100-meter butterfly record of 1:06.1, set by Ada Kok of The Netherlands in 1963, was tied by Sharon Stouder of California's City of Commerce Swim Club. Sharon, 15, broke the American mark of 1:06.5, set last year by Kathy Ellis of Indianapolis.

In the freestyle event, Miss Stickles led for 200 meters, then Miss Ramonofsky churned out in front. Miss Stickles' time was 4:42.1 and Miss Watson's was 4:44.0 — both world record breakers.

Jessen, Wright Deadlocked In U. S. Women's Tourney

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (AP)— Blonde Ruth Jessen rallied again and again and wound up in a tie with Mickey Wright Saturday to force an 18-hole playoff Sunday for the United States Women's Golf Championship.

The two San Diego favorites finished the 72 holes with a total score of 290, two strokes under par for the distance, in a dramatic finish that went down to the final green and the threat of a three- or four-way deadlock.

The playoff is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. EST, over the San Diego Country Club's 6,400-yard par 36-37—73 course.

Three-time winner Mickey finished with a 73 and Miss Jessen, with a 71.

Miss Jessen, from nearby Bonsal, moved into the top spot with a brilliant second shot on the par-4 18th, that stopped two feet from the flag. She holed out for the birdie.

Miss Wright, in the twosome just behind, then needed a birdie to win and a par to tie. Her partner, Marilyn Smith, would also have deadlocked if she had gotten a birdie.

Mickey's second shot landed in the trap, but she came out three feet away and got her par.

Tied for second were Miss Smith and young Shirley Englehorn, each with 74.

Sandra Haynie had a 74 for 295, Peggy Wilson, a 74 for 296, and Joann Prentice closed with a 71 for 298.

Marlene Bauer Hagge had a 77 for 298.

Miss Wright, a native San Diegan now living in Dallas, started the 36-hole final rounds three strokes in front of Miss Smith and Miss Jessen, and seven strokes ahead of Miss Englehorn.

But at the end of the morning round it was a tie between Wright, Smith and Englehorn. Mickey had a 75 and considerable trouble on the back nine.

Marilyn had a 72, and the 23-year-old Miss Englehorn surged to the front with five birdies for a 68.

Throughout the final 18 holes the four were always within three strokes of each other.

Miss Wright went ahead with birdie-birdie on the 10th and 11th, but first one and then the other of her nearest competitors moved in to continue the tight struggle.

Records Fall During U. S. Women's National AAU Track Championships

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

HANFORD, Calif. (AP) — An American record and two American citizens' marks were shattered Saturday in the National AAU Women's Track and Field Championships.

Seventeen - year - old Janell Smith of Fredonia, Kan., smashed the American mark in the 400 meters as she nipped Una Morris of Jamaica in 54.7 seconds, bettering the 56.3 record by Suzanne Knott, Columbus, Ohio, set last year.

The high school senior, a cheerleader and student council member, also bettered her own pending American record of 54.8 run earlier this year.

Miss Morris led most of the way and lost by inches, also timed in 54.7.

The American citizens' records fell in the 80-meter hurdles and the javelin. Rosie Bonds of Pasadena, Calif., won the 80-meter hurdles in 10.8 seconds and RaNae Bair of San Diego threw the javeline 173 feet, 4½ inches.

Miss Bonds took an early lead in beating Cherrie Sherrard of San Francisco, who also was timed in 10.8 in a race clipping three-tenths of a second off the meet record set by Bertha Diaz of Cuba in 1956.

The American citizens' record of 11.0 was set by Tammy Davis of Frederick, Md., in 1962. The American record of 10.7 was set in 1962 by Russia's Irena Press.

The Pasadena girl had placed third in the 100-meter dash only moments before successfully defending her hurdles title.

Miss Bair, a 21-year-old brown haired San Diego State coed erased the record of 168-4 by Fran Davenport, formerly of San Diego and now serving with the Army in San Francisco.

The American record is held by Russia's Elvira Ozdina at 183-4½, set at the U.S.-Russia meet at Stanford in 1962.

An American record may be set by a foreigner competing in the United States or an American citizen competing anywhere.

Sandra Knott, a registered nurse from Cleveland, shattered the 800-meter meet mark as she upset Hawaii's Leah Bennett Ferris in 2 minutes, 10.4 seconds.

Tennessee State sprinter Wyomia Tyus equaled the meet record the 100-meter dash as she and three others were timed in 11.5 seconds.

The 18-year-old college sophomore equaled the record set by the great Wilma Rudolph, 1960 Olympic speed queen, who attended the same school.

Miss Tyus, with a speedy start, beat out defending champion Edith McGuire, a Tennessee State senior and her teammate. Third was Pasadena's Miss Bonds and fourth came Willye White of Chicago, in the blanket finish.

Davis Boys Power Dodgers Past Colts

HOUSTON (AP) — Two - run homers by the Davis boys — Willie and Tommy — powered the Los Angeles Dodgers past Houston 11-9 Saturday night.

Willie Davis broke a 7-7 deadlock with his fifth homer off Claude Raymond in the sixth. He connected after Derrell Griffith singled.

Two straight errors by Eddie Kasko kept the Dodgers in the game before the homers. The miscues led to a five-run third inning which was capped by Larry Miller's two-run single. The hit gave the Dodger starter 5-for-5 in his brief major league hitting career.

Ron Fairly also drove in two runs for the Dodgers, lashing three singles.

The Colts rallied for four runs in the fourth with Walt Bond batting in the last two with a two-out single. Houston then tied the game 7-7 in the fifth on Bob Aspromonte's triple and Kasko's sacrifice fly.

A ninth-inning rally fell short. Singles by Joe Gaines and Kasko sandwiched around Aspromonte's double with none out brought in two runs. But Jim Brewer relieved Ron Perranoski and after walking Jerry Grote, retired the side.

TOO MUCH TROUBLE — Houston University's Randy Petri chips to the 18th green after his second shot strayed to the eight of the surface during the morning round of his match with Dave Eichelberger Saturday at the Broadmoor. Petri played well, but his few trouble spots forced him to a 4 and 2 loss at the hands of the accurate Oklahoma Stater who hit all but one green in regulation during the 16 holes of the afternoon session. Trans-Miss Play Ends at Broadmoor

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Houston and Oklahoma State, the dominent powers of the collegiate golf world, renew their longtime struggle under unique circumstances today as two stars from their 1964 editions square off in the finals of the 61st Trans-Mississippi Tournament.

Wright Garrett, the stealthy captain of Houston's national champions, and Dave Eichelberger, a calm, consistent representative from the Sooner State school, will match weapons over the picturesque Broadmoor layout. The championship match, which is scheduled for 36 holes, will get underway at 8:30 a.m. Following a break for lunch, the golfers will tee off for the final 18 at 1 p.m.

The two advanced to today's wrapup round via convincing triumphs in Saturday's semifinals. Garrett broke open a tight match early in the afternoon to whip Denver's Ron Moore, 6 and 5 while Eichelberger persistently fought off rallies by Houston's Randy Petri and ended that match at the 34th hole with a 4 and 2 victory.

Although the championship remains to be decided, Saturday's results concluded a week - long struggle between the powerful collegians and a determined representation of veteran amateurs. Moore, who at 31 is a prominent figure in tournament play around Colorado, had never before advanced this far in a major amateur event. By Saturday, however, he was the lone holdout against the onrushing college galaxy and for a time it appeared as though he would force the issue on into the finals.

But, following a week of magnificent effort, Moore's clubs finally wilted in his hands midway through the morning Saturday. Garrett was also struggling on the back-side during the A.M. but quickly returned to his normal, accurate game during the afternoon and had the Denver golfer reeling toward defeat within the first six holes.

Eichelberger and Petri were slower-starters, but they provided a steadily-growing gallery with a golf-bag-full of thrills in the afternoon. Down two holes at lunchtime, and three shortly after play resumed, Petri rallied brilliantly to close the gap to a single hole at the turn before fading once again.

Eichelberger's one-under -par round in the afternoon and the even-par shooting of Petri had to be recorded as two of the more brilliant efforts of the week. A soaking rain Friday night took much of the sting out of the driving game of the slugging collegians as the fairways refused to yield even normal roll. In addition, the tees were socked back to the 7,112 yard limit and the pin placement were just about as difficult as tournament officials could arrange.

During the morning, a stiff wind added still more distance to several of the holes. It was generally calm in the afternoon, however, and the scores reflected the change.

Moore, who had strolled through the strain of this tournament with no obvious ill-effects during the first several days, opened Saturday's firing with the same casually efficient style that had marked his earlier victories. He and the emotionless Garrett halved the first six holes with pars before Moore suddenly broke through by sinking an eight foot birdie putt at the seventh.

Then, at the eighth, the Denverite hit his first errant tee shot, socking it into the tall grass just above the front trap on the par three hole. He bogied there and both made the turn in even par.

The back side presented nothing to match the earlier performance. Garrett, one of the tournament's steadiest short putters, blew a two-footer at the 10th and still got away with a bogey halve. By the time the two reached the clubhouse, both had soared five over regulation, but they were still even.

Garrett discovered the cure for his lapse over a luncheon plate — but Moore got progressively worse. The Colorado star never won a hole during the afternoon round. His downfall started with a three-putt green at 20; he lost the 21st when he dipped his third shot into the lake in front of the green; and he lost both the 24th and 25th with bogies.

By that time, Garrett relaxed into a cautious game of shooting for pars and when Moore three-putted the 26th and flew his tee shot to the left of the green at the 30th, it was all over. The match ended at the 31st where they halved with bogies.

Eichelberger and Petri rode around the Broadmoor expanse on a see-saw during the morning round. The Oklahoma State star had one-up leads twice during the first 10 holes but Petri rammed in a 35 foot birdie at the 11th to force another tie. At the 13th both had five foot putts for pars, but Petri missed his and fell behind to stay.

Eichelberger had a two hole margin at the halfway point and quickly built that to three on the first hole of the afternoon as Petri plopped his second shot over the green.

A 10 foot birdie at the 22nd reduced the margin to two again and when the Houston star slipped in a six-footer at the 27th for another birdie, the edge was clipped to a single hole.

The break finally came at the 29th where Petri, obviously pressing from the fairway, knocked his second shot to the right of the rapidly sloping green. His clip sailed far past the hole and he was two down again. Eichelberger then calmly applied the pressure by winning the 32nd with a four-foot birdie putt and closed out at the 34th when Petri fired his tee shot over the par three green and bogied.

Italy's Davis Cup Team Tops Yankees

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)— Italy's Davis Cup team beat the United States 4-1 Saturday in an informal match as Chuck McKinley and Frank Froehling turned in lackluster singles performances.

McKinley, U.S. No. 1 player from San Antonio, Tex., lost to Nicola Pietrangeli 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. He showed his best form only in the second set. Then Giordano Maioli routed Froehling, of Coral Gables, Fla., 6-3, 6-3.

The three-day series was arranged to give the Americans practice under Davis Cup conditions before the challenge round. Italy was eliminated in the European Zone quarterfinals.

L.A.'s Chance Posts Shutout Over Chicago

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dean Chance pitched his fourth shutout of the season and Joe Adcock belted his 11th homer Saturday, bringing the Los Angeles Angels a 1-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The loss dropped the third-place White Sox four games back of the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles and 1½ games behind second-place New York.

Chance, who pitched three scoreless innings in the All-Star Game last Tuesday, allowed only four hits, two of them infield singles. Chicago didn't get a runner past second base.

Chance, who had lost his last two decisions, struck out three, walked one and reduced his earned-run average to 2.02. This was his sixth victory in 11 decisions.

Adcock's homer, a fourth-inning shot off Fred Talbot, was his first this season at home.

Angel catcher Bob Rodgers, who broke a club record by running his hitting streak to 17 games Friday night, made it 18 with a fifth-inning single off Talbot.

Twins Edge KC, 5-4

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Home runs by Zoilo Versalles and Don Mincher helped Camilo Pascual gain his 20th pitching victory Saturday as the Minnesota Twins edged Kansas City 5-4.

Pascual checked the Athletics on five hits and led 5-1 until the ninth when a walk and singles by Rocky Colavito, Nelson Mathews and pinch hitter Manny Jimenez produced three runs. Bill Pleis came on and yielded a two-out single to Wayne Causey before Johnny Klippstein struck out Ed Charles to end the rally.

Versalles collected a double and single in addition to his eighth homer. The Minnesota shortstop doubled and scored the Twins' first run in the first inning. He homered with Earl Battey on base in the fifth.

Mincher hit his 14th home run, a solo shot, in the second. The Twins' final run, which proved decisive, came in the sixth when Tony Oliva walked, moved around to third on an error and a fly ball and scored on Bob Allison's sacrifice fly.

Dick Green belted his six homer in the fifth for Kansas City.

McKinley Is Tennis Favorite

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Top-seeded Chuck McKinley is favored to score the first three-in-a-row National Clay Courts title sweep in 26 years this week.

The week-long championships opening Monday for 128 men and 64 women has particular significance this year because the Davis Cup challenge round also will be played on composition courts at Cleveland Sept. 24-26.

Last year when McKinley and Dennis Ralston, seeded No. 2 here, returned the Davis Cup to America the challenge round was played on grass in Australia.

Thus, the scramble at River Forest, expected to produce a replay of last year's final between McKinley and Ralston, will serve as a clay court priming for the Davis Cup competition.

McKinley, pegged to become the first man since Bobby Riggs to win three successive singles crowns, heads a high-voltage field of most of the top U. S. men players. Riggs did it in 1936, 1937 and 1938.

On the distaff side the only missing name performers are Darlene Hard, now a pro, and Billie Jean Moffitt.

The top-seeded woman entry is Nancy Richey of Dallas, defending champion. Her chief rival appears to be second-seeded Carole Caldwell, who was to be married Saturday to Northwestern University's Davis Cupper, Marty Riessen.

Riessen is No. 4 in the men's seeding, behind McKinley, Ralston and Frank Froehling.

Arthur Ashe, another 1963 Davis Cupper, is seeded No. 5; Huck Pasarell of Puerto Rico, No. 6; Jim McManus, No. 7, and Cliff Buchholtz, No. 8. The No. 1 foreign seed is Abe Segal of South Africa.

An upset or two could ruffle the women's division, which has only four seeded performers. The seeded group includes Gwyn Thomas, No. 3, and Judy Alvarez, No. 4.

Listed as unranked nationally, but rated a strong challenger is former Wimbledon champion Karen Hantze Susman. Formerly No. 1 in the nation, Karen is unranked because of insufficient data last year when she gave birth to a daughter.

Prodigy in the feminine draw is 15-year-old Jane (Peaches) Barkowicz from Hamtramck, Mich. Top foreign threat is a hard-hitting, shapely lass from Denmark, Ulla Pontoppidian.

Sertoma Guns Down Pueblo Team in Twin Bill Opener

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Sertoma's undefeated leader of the local American Legion "A" league opened a double header against the visiting Pueblo Legion nine with a come-from-behind 8-3 victory Saturday afternoon at Memorial Field. Rotary played the Steel City team in the second half of the twin bill.

Budgie Hamilton's ringing double off the center field wall and a fast-dropping single by left fielder Tom Stanley, each driving in two runs, fused the explosion of the Sertoma sluggers as they pumped across five runs in the bottom of the third to gain the lead never given up.

The victory was especially sweet to the players from Wasson High, who finished second best during the school year to those on this invading Pueblo squad from Centennial and Central Highs. And it pegged the Springs' leaders as a definite threat in the upcoming state Legion tourney since only a couple nights before Pueblo had measured the Denver League leaders from South Denver.

In addition to this afternoon's regular league slate, which will pit Sertoma against the Elks in a 1 p.m. contest at Memorial Field and Rotary vs Lions at 3:30, the Sertoma team will take on another exhibition game opponent in a 7 p.m. contest against Westminster from suburban Denver in the final part of today's triple-header.

Clay Chambers started for Sertoma Saturday, but saw his side-winding pitches tagged hard in the second by Pueblo and after giving up three runs overhanding Bob Torre came on and picked up the victory, giving up only one hit in 5 1-3 innings.

Pueblo rocked the ball for five hits, including a 390-foot smash off the center field wall that went for a clean triple by right fielder Ralph Huddein. That blast scored Ross Beatty, who had singled, and Huddein came across on a single from starter Dan Kochevar. Kochevar was plated on shortstop Ron Dudley's single to left.

Torre entered in the top of the second and with one pitch he ended the lone Pueblo threat. The only hit off him came in the third, a sizzling single to center, and he ended up striking out six and walking two.

Sertoma got one run back in their half of the second on a walk, single and Torre's double down the right field line. But the big fireworks came in the third and it all but wrapped up the contest right there.

A walk, error and hit batter filled the bases and then Stanley dropped his single into short left to score two. Hamilton followed with his big blow and then came across on Johnny Scales' single over second base.

That gave Sertoma a 6-3 lead and they padded it out with two more in the fourth on two singles and an error. Pueblo brought in chunky Bob Flores for the final two innings and he put down the winners without a runner reaching first.

TOO LATE FOR THE TAG—Pueblo Catcher Bruce Heath holds the ball in his mitt, but it arrived too late to catch the sliding Clay Chambers of the Sertoma American Legion team in the first half of a double header between Pueblo, Sertoma and Rotary at Memorial Field Saturday afternoon. Rotary Rally Nets Local Squad Win Over Pueblo, 5-4

Two fence-denting triples off the bats of first baseman Jerry Golden and shortstop Ollie West in the last two innings propelled the Rotary American Legion A team of Colorado Springs to a sweep of a mixed twin bill against the Pueblo Legion nine, Saturday at Memorial Field.

The triples brought the players from Palmer High from behind a 4-3 deficit in the last of the seventh and then produced the winning 5-4 margin in the eighth and extra inning. Earlier in the afternoon, Legion League-leading Sertoma club, 8-3.

This afternoon the regular Legion slate will resume after these exhibition contests, and Rotary is scheduled to play in the second half of a double bill again. Rotary will take on Lions at 3:30 p.m., following a clash between Sertoma and Elks at 1 p.m. at Memorial Field.

The first of these two crucial triples was produced by Golden, in the bottom of the seventh with Rotary trailing by a 4-3 margin. He blasted the ball off the right-center field fence, and then came home with the tying run on Phil Johnson's sacrifice fly to left.

Then in the extra frame, winning pitcher Tom Medlicott led off with a sharp single to left and with one out West came to the plate and cracked the other triple to right-center to score Medlicott and end the game.

Until that, Rotary had railed from the beginning after Pueblo jumped on starter Johnson for a single run in the second inning on a walk, single and double by Rich Martinez.

The roof caved in on the Springs' team in the third as Johnson was touched with three straight hits and three runs. First baseman Wayne Woodyard singled and came across on Luther Nava's triple to right. Then they scored a second tally on center fielder Bruce Heath's single, and he was plated on Dan Kochevar's two-out single that fell in front of the center fielder.

When Johnson allowed another lead off single and a walk in the top of the fourth, Coach Jerry Hughes brought in Medlicott and he stopped the Puebloans the rest of the way and allowed but two hits in the final five frames.

Rotary trimmed two runs off the margin in the bottom of the third as the Pueblo defense fell completely apart. The visitors committed no less than four errors during the inning and ended the game with a total of eight.

Then in the fourth, Rotary pulled to within one run as the first batter, Don Shoffner, singled, stole second and went to third on a throwing error by the catcher on the attempted theft. He then rode home on West's grounder which was bobbled by the shortstop.

Rotary was cut down during the next two innings until Golden came up with his key triple to start the seventh.

Christy Bivin, who went the distance in defeat for Pueblo, gave up 10 hits to 9 from Johnson and Medlicott. Bivin struck out eight and the Rotary duo whiffed 10 between them.

Local Golfer Registers Hole-in-One

Fate Hutchinson, a golfer for the last 30 years, scored his first hole-in-one Saturday afternoon while playing at the Patty Jewett Municipal golf course.

Hutchinson scored the golfing ace on the 11th hole (169 yards) with a number five iron. This was the fourth hole-in-one this year at Patty Jewett.

Playing in a foursome, Hutchinson finished the 18-holes with a 77 score. Others in the foursome were Al Reiden, Shorty Rains, and G. T. Kelly.

Sam Snead Prepares for Senior Tourney

WENTWORTH, England (AP)—Sam Snead, 52-year-old American senior champion, practiced over the notorious Burma Road golf course Saturday preparing for his match with Syd Scott for the World Senior championship.

Snead, winner of the British Open in 1964, and Scott, 50, play 36 holes Sunday on the famed Wentworth West Course for a $1,400 prize and the Teacher Trophy, emblem of world supremacy in the over-50 group.

Snead hasn't played in England since he and Ben Hogan teamed to win the Canada Cup for the United States at Wentworth in 1956.

Snead often had three balls in play Saturday as he practiced with Arthur Lees, former British Ryder Cup player. He concentrated on driving, explaining "That part of my game is a bit rusty."

An airline strike cut Scott's practice to 18 holes in the afternoon. He had planned to fly down from the British Open at St. Andrews, Scotland, but because of the strike he had to travel by train.

Soviets Say U.S. Planes Buzz Ships

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union claimed here that American planes buzzed five Russian ships — including a passenger liner—in scattered parts of the world's oceans recently.

The paper Water Transport, reporting the incidents, branded them as "gross violations of international law."

Venturi Leads Wykagyl Tourney

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—National Open champion Ken Venturi, unnerved by a free-lance photographer, skied to his highest score of the tournament—a 74—but carried a seven point lead through the fourth round of the $25,000 Wykagyl Round Robin golf tournament Saturday.

The slender stylist from San Francisco added only one point to his total for a plus 29 in the man-to-man match play event among 16 pros, but that was enough to stave off a late surge by tempestuous Tommy Bolt and Miller Barber.

The photographer said Venturi threatened to quit the tournament. Venturi denied it.

Bolt, shooting an two-under par 70 over the Wykagyl course, moved into second place with a score of plus 22, followed by Barber whose 72 left him a plus 21.

It was a closely bunched group of leaders going into Sunday's final round of the 90-hole Adding Machine Open in which every player opposes every man in the field.

Medal scores do not count. Points are awarded or subtracted according to holes won and lost in the foursome match play.

Dave Marr, with a 70 was in fourth place with plus 18, followed by Gene Littler plus 14, Bob Rosburg plus 13 and Fred Hawkins, plus nine.

Rosburg made the greatest surge of the day, shooting a 67 in the foursome that included Littler, Jimmy Demaret, and Jim Serree. Rosburg picked up a total of 16 points. He went from minus three to plus 13. Other standings included Tommy Jacobs and Bil Collins, each plus one; George Bayer, even; Tommy Aaron, minus 3; Johnny Pott, minus 10; Tom Nieporte, minus 19; Bob Watson, minus 27; Serree, minus 33, and Demaret, minus 36.

Venturi played in a foursome that included Bayer who shot 71, Barber, 72 and Watson 77.

The National Open champ, who had played almost flawlessly through the first three rounds, became upset by the appearance of a photographer at the seventh hole.

He four-putted the hole, losing three points, and dropped 11 points on four successive holes.

At the 15th he told officials that he would not continue until the photographer was removed.

The photographer, Limey King, said he was a club member, assigned to take pictures of the crowd for next year's program.

"I didn't snap a shutter on Venturi," King said. "I don't know what he was bothered about."

Venturi and his playing companions said the photographer snapped pictures while players were in the process of shooting.

Venturi's big shot was an eagle three at the 517-yard six hole, where he banged two big woods to the green and sank a 10-foot putt.

PGA Championship First Round Slated Thursday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A pair of golfers with the biggest bankrolls and the biggest fan followings in the game, a southpaw champion and a little 50-year-old guy whose reputation still is bright enough to draw crowds may cause a traffic jam at the Columbus Country Club Thursday.

Arnold Palmer, Ben Hogan, Bob Charles and Jack Nicklaus are scheduled to start play Thursday in the first round of the 46th PGA championship within a span of 24 minutes from 1:08 to 1:32 p.m. (EST).

In the second round Friday, Palmer leads off at 9 a.m. with the others following at eight-minute intervals.

Starting times of the first two rounds of the 170-man field were released Saturday by the PGA.

Nicklaus, the defending champion and the present leading money winner, figures to be the main attraction in his home town. This husky 24-year-old was the second player to win the PGA championship before he was eligible for full PGA membership. Gary Player, who will be right behind him on the course, was the first.

Nicklaus also has won the U.S. Open and the Masters in his brief pro career. This year he has collected more than $83,000 in tournament winnings to top Palmer by about $10,000 and Tony Lema by $8,000.

But Jack undertook the big task of playing in the British Open at St. Andrews, using the smaller British ball and unfamiliar British clubs the week before the PGA. He doesn't expect to have trouble switching back to familiar instruments and he showed he can handle the course when he shot a 67 over the par 35-35—70 Columbus C.C. course in his National Golf Day round. It measured 6,851 yards.

Palmer, who has won about everything but the PGA title, skipped the British Open to concentrate on this one after Ken Venturi's victory in the U.S. Open wiped out his chance of scoring a grand slam of golf. Charles is the New Zealand southpaw who won the 1963 British Open. Hogan, no longer a regular tournament competitor, won two PGA titles, three U.S. Opens and the British Open.

The big field requires the first players to start at 7 a.m. the first two days. The last threesome won't get off until 3 p.m. After 36 holes the field will be cut to the 90 low scorers and ties, and after the third round it will be reduced to the low 60 and ties.

Parts of the third and fourth rounds will be televised nationally by CBS Saturday and Sunday.

Prize money to set at $50,000 minimum but a record $80,900 was paid out after last year's championship at Dallas. Nicklaus received $13,000 for winning.

Open champion Venturi and Lema, who joined the big money winners by taking three of four tournaments in June, are among the early starters on the first round. Lema is the only four-time winner on the PGA tour this year. Just ahead of them will be old Sam Snead, gunning for his fourth PGA title at 52; ex-champion Lionel Hebert, and steady Billy Casper.

Other standouts in the field include Julius Boros, 1963 U.S. Open champion., and such recent-vintage PGA champs as Bob Rosburg, Jerry Barber, Jay Hebert and Dow Finsterwald.

Hanson Scores Only U.S. Win at London

LONDON (AP) — Fred Hanson, whose 17 foot 2 inches effort is up for a world pole vault record, scored the only American victory in the British Track and Field Championships Saturday—and he had to struggle to do it.

The Rice University star from Cuero, Tex. cleared only 15 feet in a stiff crosswind at White City Stadium. He shared that height with Trevor Burton,, Britain's No. 1 vaulter, but got the verdict on the fewest number of misses.

"The wind was a real hazard," said Hanson. "It makes things dangerous, especially if you use a fibre glass pole. If you don't get exactly in the box you can be in real trouble."

Ben Tucker of San Jose State ran his best-ever mile in 4:02.3, but finished third behind two Britons, Alan Simpson and Mike Wiggs. Simpson won in 4:01.1. Wiggs was clocked in 4:01.6 after setting most of the pace.

"I think I might have done a little better," said Tucker. "But the early pace was extremely fast and I held back too long."

Tom Wyatt of Oregon State was third back of two Britons in the 440-yard hurdles. John Cooper won in 51.1 with Wyatt clocked in 51.9. Peter Warden was second.

Much to the disappointment of the crowd of 20,000, Henry Carr of Arizona State University scratched from the finals of the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Carr won his heat in the 100 but damaged a thigh muscle and withdrew. Later he said he was ready to run in the 220 but the rules say that an athlete withdrawing from one final can't compete in another.

Bill Crothers, Canada's middle-distance ace, won the 880 in 1:50.1 with Noel Carroll, Villanova student from Ireland, in the runner-up spot in 1:50.7.

Over-all it was a day of disappointment for Britain. Only three performances were good enough to give the home fans any promise of an Olympic medal at Tokyo in October.

Robbie Brightwell, captain of the British Olympic team, won the 400 in 47.5, finishing ahead of Jamaica's George Kerr. Maurice Herriott took the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:40 and Lynn Davis won the broad jump with a leap of 26-1¼.

Peter Radford, bronze medalist in the 1960 Rome Olympics, failed to qualify for the final of the 100 yards.

Quadrangle Scores Victory In Dwyer Handicap Race

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Quadrangle, winner of the Belmont Stakes, let Malicious set a terrific pace for one mile Saturday and then turned on the pressure for a neck victory in the 1¼ miles of the $81,800 Dwyer Handicap for 3-year-olds at Aqueduct.

Malicious, previously unbeaten in three races at one mile or less this year, led the field of six through the first mile in 1:36 as he and Quadrangle from Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stable turned the 47th running of the stake in a two-horse affair.

Rounding the bend leading into the home stretch and with one-quarter-mile remaining, Manuel Ycaza called on Quadrangle. The big Elliott Burch-trained son of Cohoes responded with a burst of speed that quickly carried him into the lead.

The pair battled on almost even terms through the final one-eighth mile with the Greentree Stable Malicious, piloted by Johnny Rotz, never able to close the narrow gap. Louis Wolfson's Roman Brother, ridden by Fernando Alvarez, threatened to make it a three-horse race rounding the final bend but he fell back in face of Quadrangle's 25 1-5-second final quarter and wound up third, beaten six lengths. Quadrangle was clocked in 2:01 2-5, tying the stake record.

Quadrangle, making a strong bid for the 3-year-old title after running out of the money in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was the odds-on-favorite of the crowd of 46,669 to pick up the winner's share of the purse of $53,170. He paid $3.40, $2.40 and $2.10. Malicious returned $3 and $2.30 and Roman Brother, who had run second to Quadrangle in the Belmont Stakes, was $2.20 to show.

The victory boosted Quadrangle's earnings for the year to $272,957 and gave him a total bankroll of $383,669 on seven triumphs, three seconds and two thirds in 15 career starts.

Third base coach Billy Herman of the Boston Red Sox started with Vicksburg, Miss., in 1928.

Bunning's Cap on Display

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The cap Jim Bunning of the Phillies wore when he pitched his perfect game against the New York Mets last month is on display at baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., but not the last ball he threw in his historic game.

"We have under glass only authentic items," explained Ken Smith, director of the Hall of Fame.

"We tried to get the ball," said Smith a former baseball writer. "But Bunning has it and he says no one is going to get it. We did get his cap. Maybe in time, we will get the ball, too."

Neither does the Hall of Fame have the balls Roger Maris of the New York Yankees hit for his 60th and 61st homers in 1961. They are held by others.

"The commissioner (Ford Frick) is very strict," continued Smith.

Ben Hogan Golf Tourney Set Monday at Kissing Camels

Golf professionals from Colorado, Texas, New Mexico and Wyoming will be matching strokes over the relatively new Kissing Camels Golf Club near the Garden of the Gods this Monday and Tuesday in one of several preliminary qualifying tournaments for the $30,000 Ben Hogan Design Board tourney.

Winners of all the 21 area tournaments will each receive a top prize of $250 and an all-expense paid trip to compete in the championship tournament at Shady Oaks Country Club in Ft. Worth, Tex., Oct. 13-16.

These sectional tournaments are staged exclusively for members of the Ben Hogan Quality Design Board, golf proessionals who confer with the Hogan Company on research and development of golf equipment.

The first place winner of the championship tournament at Ft. Worth will be awarded a $3,000 prize. All others will receive cash awards from $2,000 to $10,000.

The tournament here this Monday and Tuesday will be conducted according to PGA rules, according to tourney director Fred Armstrong of Littleton. However, local ground rules of the Kissing Camels course will also be observed. Bill Lawe of the Kissing Camels will serve as rules committee chairman.

Art Severson, professional at the Patty Jewett Municipal Course, is the only Colorado Springs player expected to enter the tournament this week. Severson has qualified several times to play in the U.S. Open and has played in many other regional tournaments and should be one of the favorites here because of his knowledge of the local terrain.

Other members of the Ben Hogan Design Board expected are:

Frank Hummel, Highland Hills Municipal Course, Greeley; Ian McPhee, Meadow Hills Country Club, Denver; Jake Bechtold, Odessa Country Club, Odessa, Tex.; C. G. Griffin, Brownfield Golf Club, Brownfield, Tex.; Jim Harris, Horizon Golf Club, El Paso, Tex.; Boyd Huff, Midland Country Club, Midland, Tex.; Jack Johnson, Weeks Park Golf and Country Club, Wichita Falls, Tex.; Eddie Jones, Lorenzo Country Club, Lorenzo, Tex.; Gene Mitchell, Lubbock Country Club, Lubbock, Tex.; Horace Norman, Monahans Country Club, Monahans, Tex.; Tom De Baca, Albuquerque Country Club, Albuquerque, N.M.; Bill Eschenbrenner, Jal Country Club, Jal, N.M.; Doyle Forrester, Hobbs Country Club, Hobbs, N.M.; and Fred Nielson, Sheridan Country Club, Sheridan, Wyo.

The tournament will be 36 holes of stroke play with 18 holes played each day. The first group is scheduled to take to the No. 1 tee at 11 a.m. Monday and the same starting time will be followed on Tuesday.

This tourney is somewhat unusual for the pros in that they will all use electric cars. This is one of the rules of the Kissing Camels Course.

Several of the golf pros were on hand Saturday for practice rounds, especially those from Texas, and they are expected to be on the course again today.

Champagne Tony Lema Nervous During Open

By TOM REEDY

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tony Lema took one bite of a cold salmon sandwich at noon Friday.

That was his lunch.

His breakfast was a cup of coffee.

"Who's nervous" the 1964 British Open champion said with a laugh after he had won one of the biggest prestige prizes in golf at the home of the game.

"I just couldn't eat Thursday night. I got on my knees and asked the good Lord to give me this one. It's one of the four great golf championships in the world. He did not let me down."

On such a diet, what happened to Lema's weight

"I don't really know," he said. "I stand 6-foot-1 and weigh 180 pounds. But, oh brother, I believe I lost a little out there today."

Then, as is his custom — one that started by accident—Lema ordered champagne for the press.

Lema, who has been in Britain only five days, had to fight his way through 10,000 deliriously happy Scots to get to the final green.

"I got some bruises getting through there," Lema said. "But I'm happy about those bruises."

The 30-year-old Californian has made thousands of friends since he came over to play in this 103-year-old tournament, and he added to the list as he stood off a great challenge by Jack Nicklaus Friday.

"I want to thank the gallery for giving me the gas I needed out there today," he said. "You helped me win it, when Jack started to pour it on."

He added: "I felt that I owed it to myself as a golf professional and one who loves the game to visit where my great friend —the game of golf — was born. I have read Walter Hagen's name and Gene Sarazen's name and other great names on this cup.

"Now mine will be added. I feel inadequate."

Lema had said before he left the States that he merely wanted to see St. Andrews, play it, "and get an idea of what kind of preparation I will need for a serious effort at the British Open at some later date."

But he won. "I certainly will be back next year to defend my title," he said.

He added: "I never thought I would find myself speechless But I'm as close to that as I've ever been."

Lema began ordering champagne for the press tent a couple of years ago, when he dropped in and saw a writer friend toying with a warm beer.

The writer said he wished it were champagne.

"If I win tomorrow, I'll order champagne," Lema said. He forgot, but the writer didn't, and champagne has been the order of the day after every Lema victory since.

He has been popping corks at a furious rate of late, having won the Thunderbird, Buick and Cleveland Opens in June before coming here last Monday.

Colts Trade Jim Colvin For Guy Reese

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Colts announced Saturday they have traded defensive tackle Jim Colvin to the Dallas Cowboys in exchange for Guy Reese, another defense tackle.

Colvin, 25, was a starting tackle for the Colts last season after three years in the National Football League. He played college ball with the University of Houston.

Reese, 24, was also a starting tackle for Dallas last season in his second NFL season. Reese played for SMU.

LEMA'S THE BRITISH OPEN CHAMP — Champagne Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., holds a glass of champagne in one hand and his newly won trophy in the other after capturing the British Open Golf Championship at St. Andrews, Scotland, Friday. The 30-year old Lema carded a 279 for the 72 holes.

Surging Giants Trounce Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—The surging San Francisco Giants moved to within one percentage point of first place in the National League Saturday, trouncing the Chicago Cubs for the fourth straight time, 7-0, as Willie McCovey and Jesus Alou each drove in two runs.

The victory gave the Giants a .614 percentage while league-leading Philadelphia's 3-1 loss to Cincinnati dropped the Phillies to .615.

Bob Bolin blanked the Cubs, scattering 10 hits and striking out 11 as he evened his record at 3-3.

The Giants, leading 2-0, erupted for three runs in the fourth. Jose Pagan singled and was sacrificed to second. Willie Mays was walked intentionally before McCovey drove a two-run double into the center field vines. Orlando Cepeda then singled in McCovey.

The Giants loaded the bases in the fifth on singles by Tom Haller and Bolin and a walk. Alou bounced a single through the middle, scoring San Francisco's last two runs.

Cincy Topples Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds cut loose for three runs in the sixth inning and beat Jim (Perfect Game) Bunning and the Philadelphia Phils 3-1 Saturday.

Lefty Joe Nuxhall and reliever Sammy Ellis held the Phils to five hits in steamy Connie Mack Stadium. Nuxhall and Bunning hooked up in a scoreless duel until the Reds came alive in the sixth.

They scored on singles by Frank Robinson, Vada Pinson, and John Edwards and Leo Cardenas' double to right.

Both Nuxhall, now 7-4, and Bunning, who lost his first game since his perfect no-hit performance in New York three weeks ago, were soaked by perspiration by the fourth inning as the temperature hovered in the 90s. Bunning is now 9-3.

Nuxhall was in charge completely, allowing three hits, striking out six and walking one before he left the game because of the heat in the bottom of the eighth.

Cookie Rojas and Richie Allen, who had singles off Nuxhall in the fourth, finally cashed in a Phillie run in the last of the ninth. Rojas drew a walk off Ellis and Allen followed with a triple, but was stranded on third as the final two Philadelphia batters were retired.

Cardinals Bombard Mets, 11-4

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals capitalized on a rash of errors and rolled over the New York Mets 11-4 Saturday.

St. Louis broke it open with five runs in the third inning, the last three unearned, and got another in the fifth after loading the bases on three straight Met errors.

The final two Card runs in the third scored on the Met monstrosity of the day. Ken Boyer, on third, and Mike Shannon, on first, started a double steal, but Boyer was trapped in a rundown. However, he ran right over Met catcher Hawk Taylor for a run and while Taylor lay supine, the ball rolling away, Shannon raced across.

Four hits and another error produced the last three Card runs, in the ninth.

The Meets collected 1 hits, including a homer by George Altman off winner Ray Sadecki in the seven innings he worked but their attack couldn't catch up with their fielding lapses. Loser Track Stallard was the first of four New York pitchers.

ALL OUT FOR TENNIS — When it comes to tennis, the Ed Urig family of 1222 N. Meade Ave. go all out. Ed and Lou Urig (upper right) are shown here with seven of their eight children just before starting play at the Monument Valley tennis courts. Seated on the top row with their parents are Karyl, 12, and Kathy, 17. In front (from left) are Mike, 5; Ed, 11; Mary, 2; Tom, 8, and John 10. The other child, Kris, 15, is competing in a Denver tennis tourney and wasn't present for the picture. Even the family dog, Jake, joins in the fun. Five members of the family will be in classes sponsored by the City Parks and Recreation Department at the Wasson High courts starting at 9 a.m. June 29; they are Kris, Karyl, Ed, John and Tom. Little Mary and Mike have a lot of fun at the courts and are about ready to take up the game. Further information on the tennis courses can be obtained from the City Parks and Recreation Department.

Colorado Springs Open Slated for Saturday

Susan Rodgers, local tennis star and defending champion in the Women's Singles in last year's Colorado Springs Open Tennis Tournament, has been busy preparing for the 1964 playing of this well-known event. In spite of the recent heat wave, Susan, together with Kathy Dunlevy, Judie Bartlett, and Dorothy Bradley have been working hard to get ready.

From out of town, Arvada star Claudia Walling, 18 girls singles champion in the State Junior Chamber Tournament and the runner-up, Karen Ludeman from Boulder, are expected to give the locals a hard time.

In the Men's Singles, Kent Nelson and Dave Warren, who fought it out for the men's Championship in the recent Southern Colorado Tennis Association tournament, are expected to be entrants. Last year's winner of this event, Chuck Luna, has turned pro and will not be defending his title. Runner-up Dr. Doug Corley, Jr., who was seeded No. 1 in the SCTA Tournament, has had trouble finding time to practice, but is always dangerous.

Capt. Tom Lynch from the Air Force Academy, winner of the Pueblo Memorial Day Men's Singles, and Tom Keach, are strong contenders, both capable of wining the title. Ron Biddle who has improved greatly over last year's performances, beat Dave Warren in the Pueblo 4th of July Tournament, and could be a definite threat.

The Seniors Events will start the meet this year on Saturday, July 18, at 9 a.m. The Open Men's and Women's events will begin at 9 a.m. on Sunday, July 19. Junior play will start Monday, July 20, at 9 a.m.

A new face will be seen in this year's Open: that of Ron Noon, from Richmond, California. Noon was ranked 15th in the 16 years and under boys singles in the Northern California USLTA Section in 1964. He is entered in the Men's Singles, 18 boys singles, and in the 18 and under Junior Doubles with John Boddington of Colorado Springs as his partner.

An entry has also been received from Byron Foster of Durango in the Junior Singles. He will team up with Greg Fryback in the Junior Doubles.

Two Security players, Warren Knight and Larry Shelton, will play in the 16 boys singles and as a team in the 16 doubles.

Tommy Hill of Odessa, Tex., and Alan Kay, of Lubbock, Tex., have expressed their intentions of entering the tournament. Hill was ranked 9th in the Texas Tennis Association 16 years and under Singles, and 30th in the Junior Singles in 1963. Kay is ranked 38th in the Junior Singles.

Gerry Bennett, a perennial top-flight contender, will play in both the Open Men's Singles and in the Junior Vets Singles, and will be in the Men's Doubles with partner Ron Biddle. This will be a tough team to beat, combining experience with ability.

A fine entry list is expected for this tourney, and if the play demonstrated in the SCTA Open is any criterion, an exciting week of tennis is on tap for the fans. The Senior and Open events will be concluded on Saturday and Sunday, July 25 and 26. Matches will be on the Monument Valley Tennis courts, and are sponsored by the City Park and Recreation Department.

Go Karts to Race At CDR

One of the newest and most unique types of Auto Racing will be held this Sunday at Continental Divide Raceways near Castle Rock when the pint size speedsters known as Go Karts will take to the road course for two endurances races.

The endurance runs, the first of their kind to be held in the Rocky Mountain area, will draw championship Go Karts from all over the United States and well over 100 entries have already been received, including an entry from the husband and wife team of Dick and Frances Connors of California who took just about all the honors in Go Kart endurance racing in 1963.

The little four wheel 300-pound racers (weight includes driver and fuel) will run the complete 2.8 mile road course and will tear down the straight-a-ways at well over 100 miles an hour. The Denver Karting group, led by Robbie Robinson, claims the little racers will break the C.D.R. road track record because of the ability of the Go Karts to get through the corners faster.

Two one and a half hour endurance races will be run on Sunday, the first starting at 12:30 p.m. and the second at 3:30. Warm-ups will be held on Saturday and classes of cars will be established for the endurance runs. The winner will be the one who will cover the most ground in the hour and a half time limit.

Trophies will be awarded to the first five places in each event and finishing order will determine the cars starting position for these karts at the Grand National endurance runs to be held at Riverside, Calif., this August. This championship race is sanctioned by the International Karting Federation which refers to races of this type as "Enduros." The federation has declared the C.D.R. as a National Championship contest. Admission $2 per person.

Japan Launches Research Rocket

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's most advanced and largest research rocket was lanuched successfully Saturday, to collect data on the upper layer of the atmosphere.

The three-stage "Lambda-3" rose 600 miles in a 17-minute, 20-second flight at the Uchinoura rocket range in Kagoshima, on the southern tip of Japan.

The rocket, designed and produced by Tokyo University scientists, weighs seven tons.

Vic Power Suspended By AL President

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Infielder Vic Power, accused of spitting in an umpire's face, was suspended 10 days and fined $250 Saturday by American League President Joseph Cronin.

The 32-year-old Los Angeles infielder denied the charge. Angel General Manager Fred Haney said he would ask Cronin for a hearing.

The incident occurred in the eighth inning of a Friday night doubleheader won by the Chicago White Sox.

Floyd Robinson led off the inning with a double and Gene Stephens bunted. Catcher Bob Rodgers fielded the ball and threw to Power at third but Robinson was called safe by umpire Jim Honochick on a close play.

"Power didn't show much emotion at the time," Honochick said Saturday. "But a little later Tony Cuccinello (the Chicago third base coach) told me I'd made the call 100 per cent right."

Honochick said that set Power off.

"He bumped me three times and spit in my face," Honochick said, "deliberately and wilfully.

"The first two times he bumped me with his chest and then he butted me in the face.

"I said, 'Don't do that to me,' and he reared back and spit in my face.

"I said, 'You do that one more time and I'll hit you in the face.'"

Honochick said all this transpired after he had thrown Power out of the game.

"I'd given him the thumb before he charged me," the umpire said "He'd called me a gutless S.O.B. and said I was afraid of Al Lopez (the Chicago manager)."

Power said:

"Spit on him? How could I do that? Do I look like that sort of person?

"I cursed and I got close to him but I don't spit on him.

"I didn't even think any spit came out of my mouth accidentally while I was talking to him. My mouth was so dry."

Power told a writer Friday night that Honochick threatened to take a swing at him.

"When the writer went to the umpires' room with my story," Power said, "Maybe Honochick decided he'd better have a story and said I spit on him."

Vesper Boat Club Wins Olympic Berth in Collegiate Rowing Trials

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, a crew put together in the last four weeks, shattered American collegiate rowing supremacy Saturday and won a trip to the Tokyo Olympics as the United States' eight.

Whipping over the 2,000-meter (about 1¼ mile) Olympic course at Orchard Beach lagoon in perfect weather, the fourth-seeded Vesper stroked home one length in front of Harvard in 6 minutes, 1.3 seconds.

California's previously unbeaten eight, stroking furiously at the rate of 44 to a minute, was third one length back of Harvard and 1½ lengths in front of Yale in the four-crew final.

American rowing honors have been strictly a collegiate closed shop in recent Olympics. College crews from the U. S. had won every Olympic final from 1920 until Navy was beaten by Germany's Ratzburg eight in 1960. In the early days, the clubs did represent the U. S. In fact, Vesper won at Paris in 1900 and at St. Louis in 1904, when the event was listed as a demonstration.

Don Spero, the 24-year-old national champion from the New York Athletic club, won the lone Olympic berth in single sculls by outstroking Seymour Cromwell, III, the recent Diamond Sculls winner at Henley.

Spero finished a good two lengths in front of Cromwell of the New Rochelle, N.Y., Rowing Club. Cromwell barely held off the strong challenge of Jim Storm of the San Diego, Calif. Rowing Club. Spero's time was 7:18.2. He is a Cornell grad, doing graduate work in physics at Columbia.

Allen Rosenberg, a Philadelphia attorney whocoaches Vesper, said after the race "We've got to get at least five seconds faster before Tokyo. We will row in pairs and fours in every regatta we can enter."

Harvard jumped into an early lead, rowing steadily at a 33 while Vesper got away last. The Vesper crew quickly made up the deficit and was moving up on Harvard at the 500-meter mark. The club crew took the lead at about 800 meters and had opened up by one-half length at the half way mark, rowing at 38.

When Harvard challenged by going up to a 37 pace in the final 500 meters, Vesper responded by going to 42 and won handaily.

The Vesper crew is made up of two LaSalle college juniors, two Yale grads, a 33-year-old veteran from Villanova, and three servicemen divided evenly among the Army, Air Force and the Navy. The coxswain is a 46-year-old former Hungarian, Bob Zimonyi, who defected after the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne. The stroke was Lt. Bill Stowe of the Navy, former Cornell stroke in 1962.

California, one of the co-favorites, rowed in third position most of the way, challenging Harvard for second shortly after the 1,000-meter mark.

Coach Jim Lemmon's Golden Bears started and ended at 44 and stroked at 40 and 41 in the body of the race. California's time of 6:08.3 was seven seconds behind Vesper's but only three seconds off Harvard's 6:05.3. Yale was clocked in 6:14.4, running a steady fourth after the early seconds.

Only the winners, Vesper and Spero, qualify for the Tokyo games and the rowing events scheduled Oct. 12-15. Trials for other rowing events will be held on the Lagoon here Aug. 26-29.

All four crews in the finals used the shovel-type oars made popular by the German Ratzeburg winners in 1960.

Vesper is a 99-year-old boat club located in Philadelphia on the Schulykill River. The club, using a different boat, represented the U. S. at Tokyo last October in pre-Olympic tests.

Vesper rowed in an Italian-made shell, named the John B. Kelly after the late father of Princess Grace of Monaco and only U. S. Olympic sculls winner. He won in 1920. His son, Jack Kelly Jr., a former Olympic rower, is the secretary-treasurer of the Vesper club.

Lema Celebrates

PARIS (AP)—Champagne Tony came to the capital of champagne Saturday and quickly prepared to celebrate his British Open golf triumph.

Tony Lema, 30-year-old swinger from Leandro, Calif., and his manager, Fred Corcoran of New York, arrived from London for a one-day celebration of Lema's victory at St. Andrew's Friday.

They scheduled a dinner party with friends in a restaurant on the left bank behind Notre Dame.

Tony, who toasts his victories in Champagne, found plenty of wine on hand in the restaurant's cave.

Later, he and Corcoran visited a night club—after checking to make certain that champagne was available there.

Lema and Corcoran are scheduled to fly to New York Sunday.

League Leading Orioles Clout Cleveland Nine, 7-4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jackie Brandt and Brooks Robinson drove in three runs each, Brandt clouting two homers and Robinson one, and led the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Brandt and Robinson each hit two-run homers in the fourth to chase rookie lefthander Tommy John and give Oriole hurler Dave McNally all the runs he needs for the victory.

Brandt, who also singled in the first, came back in the fifth with another homer, his 10th of the year, and Robinson's single added another run in the same inning.

Bob Chance hit three singles and a double for the Indians, driving in one of three Cleveland runs in the first.

The Orioles took a 1-0 lead in the first, Brandt scoring on a Dick Howser's wild throw, but the Indians jumped on McNally with four straight singles. The third Indian run scored on a wild pitch.

McNally settled down and pitched well until the ninth, when Stu Miller had to come on and put down a Cleveland rally.

Yanks Slip Past Washington, 3-2

WASHINGTON (AP) — The York Yankees converted three hits off Dave Stenhouse into three runs Saturday afternoon and beat the Washington Senators 3-2 behind pitchers Jim Bouton, Steve Hamilton and Pete Mikkelsen.

The defeat extended the Senators' losing string to seven straight, longest in the American League this season.

Stenhouse gave up two runs in the first on a walk to Bobby Richardson, a pair of singles through the infield by Mickey Mantle and Tom Tresh, and Roger Maris' run scoring infield out.

The only other run off Stenhouse through the eight innings he pitched was Tony Kubek's fourth home run in the fifth inning. He retired 12 out of 13 before Kubek's blow, and the last 10 Yankees he faced.

Moose Skowron tagged Bouton for his 13th home run in the second inning, and Stenhouse drove in the other Senator run with a two-out single in the fifth, following singles by Don Lock and Mike Brumley.

Pinch hitter Dick Phillips walked to open the Senators' eighth and was sacrificed to second. With Jim King at bat with a runner on third and two out, Yogi Berra brought in southpaw Hamilton. John Kennedy, a right-hander, batted for King and flied to Maris.

Braves Top Pirates in 11 Innings

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves scored two runs in the 11th inning on singles by Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron and then held off a Pittsburgh Pirates rally for a 9-8 victory Saturday.

Ty Cline opened the 11th with a single off Tommy Sisk and went to third on Mike de la Hoz' hit. Then Mathews singled up the middle and Aaron beat out an infield hit.

The Pirates came back with three singles and a walk but could score only one run, when Bob Clemente singled Gene Freese across.

Mathews drove home the go-ahead run in a four-run Milwaukee rally in the ninth that gave the Braves a 7-6 margin, but the Pirates tied it up in their half of the ninth on a walk, a sacrifice and Bob Bailey's single.

Tony Cloninger, fourth of five Milwaukee pitchers, got the victory.

Tigers Whip Red Sox

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie Joe Sparma set Boston down on five hits in pitching his second complete game this week as the Detroit Tigers whipped the Red Sox 8-1 Saturday.

Sparma, 3-1, blanked Washington on four hits last Sunday.

Bob Tillman's homer in the eighth for the Red Sox was the first run off Sparma in 22 innings.

Jake Wood, Don Wert and George Thomas hit homers for the Tigers who now have won nine of their last 11 games. Wert's was a two-run blast in the sixth inning while Wood and Thomas connected leading off the third and seventh, respectively.

Taxpayer Sues Goldwater for Military Role

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pentagon officials said today that a San Francisco taxpayer is wasting his time by trying to oust Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., from his Senate seat because he is an Air Force Reserve major general.

But several senators have publicly questioned the constitutionality and propriety of members of Congress serving as military reserve officers.

Involved is a constitutional provision which says "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

The taxpayer, Robert Schaff, filed a federal district court suit in San Francisco contending that Goldwater, front-running candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, had "defrauded the United States government for years" by serving as senator while an officer of the armed forces.

Schapp asked that Goldwater's Senate seat be vacated and that the senator repay the salary he had drawn while serving there.

Pentagon officials reported that 90 to 100 members of Congress hold active reserve officer commissions in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. And they said another 75 to 100 are inactive or retired.

Two Space Stations Launched by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP)—A powerful single booster rocket launched two scientific space stations into widely differing orbit Saturday, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The vehicles, Electron 3 and Electron 4, followed a similar launch Jan. 30. The Electron series is apparently unmanned.

Tass said the stations carried instrumentation for research. No mention was made of the size, weight or power of the satellites or the rocket.

Tass said Electron 3 separated from the last stage of the booster rocket during powered flight. The last stage continued to reach the necessary speed and then orbited Electron 4.

The news agency said all systems were functioning normally.

Tass said preliminary data indicated Electron 3 was in a lopsided orbit which comes as close as 251 miles to the earth and as far away as 4.365 miles. Electron 4's orbit was even more extended, 285 miles at its nearest point and 41,076 at its farthest.

There are more than 150.000 rivers in the U.S.S.R. with a total length of about 1.8 million miles.

NOTICE OF WEED REMOVAL IN COLORADO SPRINGS

Pursuant to Section 18-25 through 18-27 of Article 4 of the 1958 Code of Colorado Springs.

Sec. 18-26. Cutting weeds — DUTY OF PROPERTY OWNER.

It shall be unlawful for the owner, agent or lessee of any lot or tract of ground in the city to allow or permit weeds to grow or remain when grown more than one foot in height on each lot or tract of ground, on or along any street or avenue adjoining the same between the property line and the curb line thereof, or on or along any alley adjoining.

All weeds over one foot in height must be cut by Monday, August 3, 1964 and all weeds, brush and other rubbish must be removed by the same date. The property owner's responsibility in this respect extends to the curb line, and to the center of the alley.

If owners, agents or lessees do not comply with the above, they may be fined, or the weeds, brush and rubbish be removed under City direction and the cost, together with five per cent for inspection and incidentals, assessed against the property, or both such fine and removal charge may be applied.

Dated at Colorado Springs, Colorado this 10th day of July, 1964.

AULD LANG SYNE — John Madden (left), singer and guitarist with the Serendipity Singers appearing at the Broadmoor International Theater, reminisces with S. Sgt. Alpheus M. Rainey about their days together in the Army Air Defense Command Choral Group. The two were members of the ARADCOM singing organization from 1958 to 1960. As such, they were stationed at the Colorado Springs headquarters, but went on many concert tours during which the group performed at ARADCOM missile sites and adjacent communities throughout the country. Madden was then separated from the Army and returned to college — the University of Colorado — and Rainey was transferred to other ARADCOM units. In March Rainey was again assigned to the ARADCOM Choral Group.

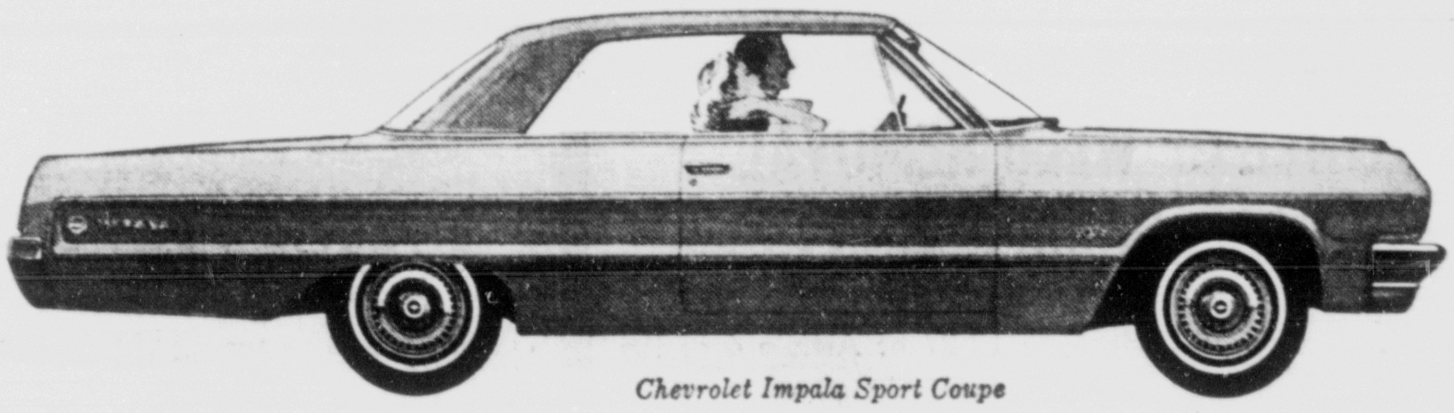
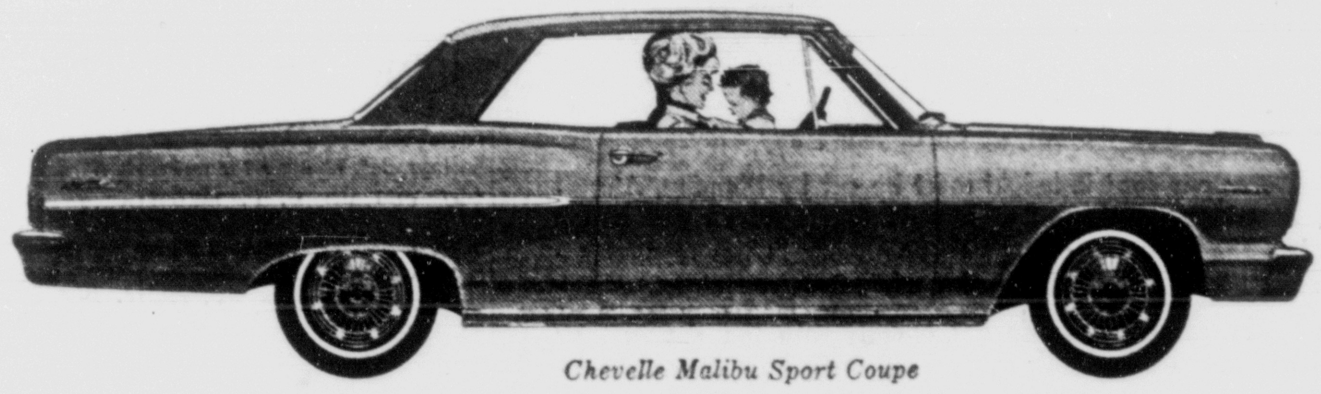
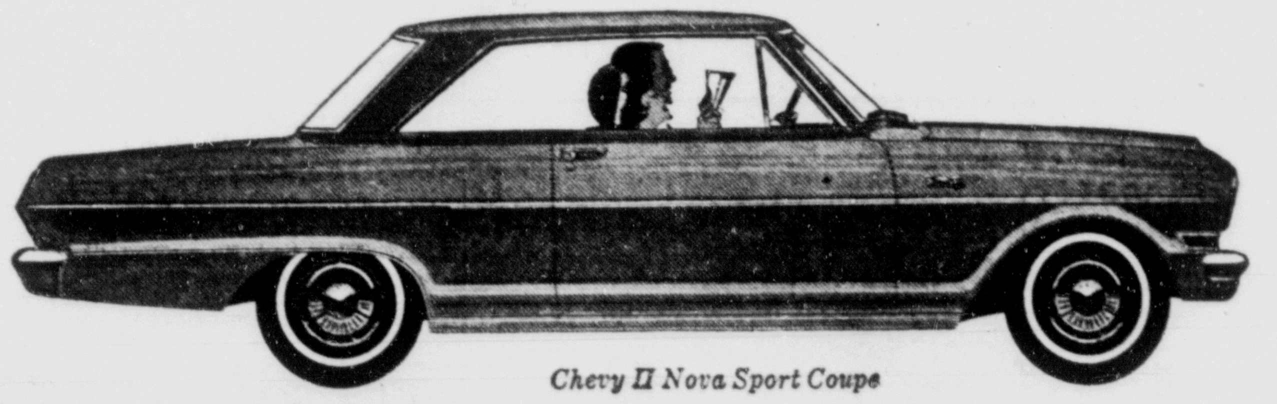
Chevrolet dealers sell more cars than anybody
Because they sell great cars



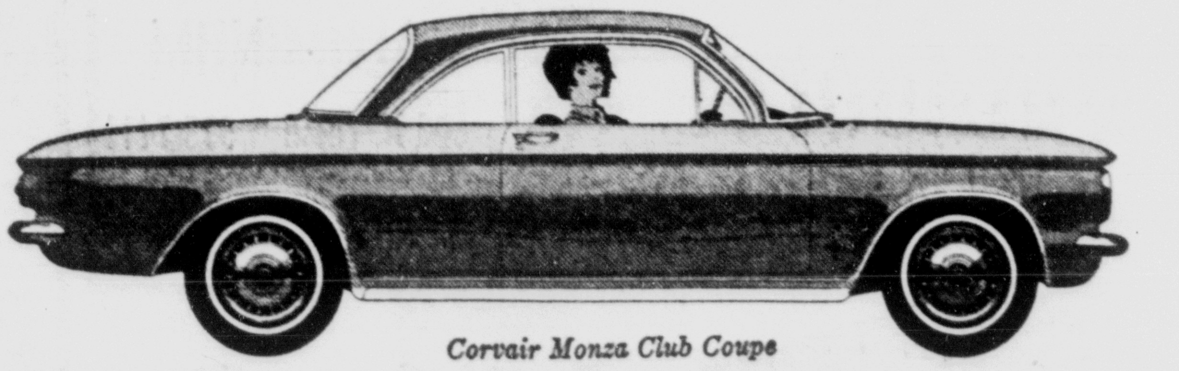
Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe



Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe



Chevy II Nova Sport Coupe



Corvair Monza Club Coupe

Chevrolet has brought a whole new kind of excitement to everyday driving this year.

It's a fifty-yard-line, ten-rows-up kind of excitement.

And whether you're cushioned in the bucket seat of a luxurious Chevrolet Impala Super Sport or behind the wheel of the surprisingly roomy Chevelle, you'll feel it.

Whether you're gobbling up a hill in a thrifty Chevy II or making tracks on a sandy beach with the rear-engined Corvair, you'll feel it. Whether you're just looking at a Corvette or kicking up some dust on the desert with one, you'll feel it.

Altogether you've got five different kinds of cars and up to 45 different models to choose from. And each one is looking even more attractive as the '64 car-year closes out.

You couldn't pick a better time to build on the model you like either, for behind each one is a list of special Chevrolet options and accessories as long as your arm.

So why not stop in at your Chevrolet dealer's now and see what all the excitement is about. Get behind the wheel of America's most popular car. Or all five wheels. And don't be surprised if you see your neighbor doing the same thing.

Civil Rights Workers Plan To Continue

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., whose son is a civil rights worker in Mississippi this summer, says the student effort to help Negroes there is sure to continue year around—"It's working too well to let it stop."

Edwards, who just returned from a tour of southwestern Mississippi, said there is great concern among students there about what will happen to local Negroes when summer is over and the students leave the state.

He said "it will have to be planned for. We must let it be established that the program is not going to end, that the eyes of the world and of the federal government are on the white people of Mississippi."

Edwards said in an interview Thursday he was "immensely proud" of his son, Leonard, 23, a law student, for going to Mississippi to try to get Negroes registered to vote, but was "terribly concerned" for his safety.

The house at McComb, Miss., in a Negro district in which Edwards and his son slept last Monday night was ripped the following night by three bombs thrown from the street.

"There is a very deep distrust of the FBI among students in the Mississippi project," said Edwards, who was an FBI agent before he joined the Navy in World War II.

"They cannot understand why in the case of the three missing students (at Philadelphia, Miss.) so many hours went by with the FBI refusing to become involved in a rather obvious kidnaping case.

"I personally find it hard to understand why it took four hours for a special agent of the FBI to arrive in McComb after the bombing, when I had advised the Department of Justice the night before of my presence there and of the explosive local situation."

It was learned Thursday night that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is considering a trip to Mississippi, where more than 100 agents are searching for the three rights workers missing since June 21.

The FBI refused to comment on Hoover's reported tentative plan.

Chicago Tries To Improve Commuting

CHICAGO (AP)—Each workday morning about 7:30 a mob begins to form in Canal street outside the North Western Railway terminal.

Uniformed men move through the crowd.

"No. 158 bus," one cries out. "East on Wacker, north on Michigan."

"No. 62," another barks. "Monroe to State, south on State."

The scene is repeated frequently during the morning rush hours, and it is run in reverse late in the day.

It is part of the new Depot-Downtown service, a cooperative innovation by privately owned railroads and a public agency, the Chicago Transit Authority.

And it is the latest step in a long-range effort of big cities to get more commuters out of their automobiles and onto mass transit lines.

A similar service is operating from the river side of the Union Station, terminal for four railroads.

Both terminals had been served by a few regular and shuttle buses. On June 22, the multibus, low-fare systems went into effect during peak travel hours.

L. M. Traiser, CTA staff engineer, reported a rising number of commuters are riding the buses — more than 5,000 a day to and from the North Western terminal and more than 6,000 to and from Union Station.

Colorado Man Named To Commission Post

DENVER (AP)—Sam Martinez, 31, of Fort Lupton, has received a provisional appointment as assistant director of the Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission.

Gov. John Love, who approved his appointment, said Martinez would report Monday to work. He has been principal the past two years at the Fort Lupton Junior High School.

Firemen Play Role In Theater Show

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Firemen played a leading role in the featured Western at a theater in Kansas City Friday night.

They extinguished a small fire in a false curtain above the screen while the audience of 300 watched them and the movie, which kept showing.

A firecracker thrown from the front seats started the blaze.

CLIMBING AUDIENCE — Looking at Fort Carson's military mountaineers in North Cheyenne Canon are staff of the Carson Leadership and Mountain Training School and Lt. Col. Uri Bar-on of the Israeli Defense Forces, second from left. He and his family were among the 464 spectators who watched the region's top demonstration of military skills held each Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a.m. A total of 4,171 have seen the climbing show so far in 1964. From left are 1st Lt. John McGuire, Col. Bar-on, Capt. Vincent Vespia, commandant, and M. Sgt. Harold Caldwell, narrator. The pinnacle in the background is scaled as part of the show. 'Icicle' Angers Husband

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (UPI)—Bricklayer Rene Morin testified Friday that his wife became chilly toward him after she met Leo Durocher and it made him so angry he could "bend a horseshoe" like a pretzel.

"We have 24 hour a day argument since 1961 when icicle starts," Morin testified on the fourth day of a $150,000 alienation of affections suit he filed against the 58-year-old coach of the Los Angeles Dodgers, a professional baseball team.

Durocher has claimed he is in love with Morin's daughter, not his wife.

Morin was asked by his lawyer, Gerard Trudeau, "How did Leo bust up your home."

The bricklayer, of French extraction and who speaks in broken English, said:

"My wife starts to get chilly, pretty soon she gets cold, then a deep freeze, like iceburg. My wife chilly in 1961, cold in 1962, and like Alaska in 1963.

"Sleeping with her like sleeping with an iceberg."

According to previous testimony, his wife, Anna, began corresponding with Durocher in 1961 and met him in 1962. Both Morin and his wife are 51.

Asked if he and his wife discussed Durocher at home, Morin replied:

"Talk about him? I eat Durocher for breakfast. I eat Durocher for lunch, and I eat Durocher for dinner."

"All I hear is Mr. Durocher got this, he got that, he got this he got that. I can't stand it no more."

Asked how this made him feel Morin said "I could take a horseshoe and bend like a pretzel."

LBJ Reaches Into Ranks for New Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has reached into the ranks to fill top positions in the government's agencies responsible for regulating securities exchanges and collecting taxes.

Manuel F. Cohen, 52, who has worked for the Securities and Exchange Commission for 22 years and has been a commissioner since 1961, was picked as its new chairman by the President. He will replace William L. Cary, who is resigning, probably next month.

In another appointment announced by Johnson at a Friday news conference, Bertrand Harding, a 45-year-old Texan who also has 22 years of government experience, was named acting commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service.

Harding succeeds Mortimer M. Caplin, whose resignation announced May 22 became effective Friday. Harding has been deputy IRS commissioner since 1961. Johnson did not say if the appointment would be permanent.

In connection with Cohen's appointment, Johnson filled Cary's place on the 5-member commission with Francis M. Wheat, a 43-year-old lawyer from Los Angeles.

A city IS growing . . . it's name: Colorado City
What kind of a City will Colorado City be?

Very simple . . . a city planned for people. And in case you think that all cities are planned for people, just think for a moment. Most older cities have grown without organized planning . . . around a railroad . . . a river crossing . . . around a factory or industry. The planning comes later, and tries to produce order out of chaos. Then, while suburbs grow around the city . . . the city center decays.

PLANNING — FOR PEOPLE
Colorado City starts out with people . . . what they need . . . how they would like to live. We found that most people want 'Country-living' yet with easy access to city facilities, shops, schools, churches. This was how we planned Colorado City. Using the experience we gained in planning California City we designed Colorado City to consist of clusters of 'Villages' each joined together by easy-access highways. Each will have its own shopping center, churches, schools and yet each will be convenient to the main facilities such as industry, high school civic centers, etc.

PERMANENT OPEN SPACES — A NEW DEPARTURE
Hundreds of acres within Colorado City are permanently set aside for public open space use. A large lake and golf course (complete with water hazards) already exist. Agricultural open space uses, such as Duell-Stewart thoroughbred farms, are in the center of our city, and hundreds of additional acres will be set aside for various park and recreational uses for all Colorado City property owners and residents. Colorado City will be truly 'A City within a Park.'

PROTECTION FOR PERMANENCE
Now for an important question: How will the recreational and other public open-space areas be perpetuated? How do we know that they won't be changed in the future? We know because from the beginning they are deed restricted.
Actual control and ownership of public open spaces will be transferred to a Property Owners Association which will subsequently deed these recreational lands and facilities to a Recreation District representing all property owners.

RECREATION IN THE HEART OF TOWN
Golfing, fishing, horse-back riding, boating and swimming will be a part of everyday life for the Colorado City resident. And we mean all residents and property owners! By planning on a large scale we can make available for all property owners in our new city the kind of recreational facilities which are generally reserved for the wealthier segments of a community.

INVESTMENT POTENTIAL
Colorado City has already attracted state-wide, national and international attention. Our city is in the building . . . many homes are now under construction and first residents have already moved in. Homesites can be selected with lake view, bordering the golf course or overlooking park areas.
Property in Colorado City makes a fine investment since this is literally an early development opportunity.
Visit Colorado City this weekend . . . or any weekday, for that matter . . . or mail in the coupon and we'll send you complete maps and brochures.
Whether for a day, a weekend or a summer's evening — or for a fine investment — Colorado City offers you the chance to get more out of life.

Letters May Show Harding Was Philanderer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A collection of love letters, apparently written nearly half a century ago, may shed new light on the life of the nation's 29th president, Warren G. Harding.

Boston historian-author Francis Russell said Friday he came across the letters—written between 1909 and 1920 to Mrs. James Phillips in Harding's home town of Marion, Ohio—while doing research for a biography of the late president.

Russell told the New York Times that the more than 250 letters are the first documentary evidence that Harding had affairs with at least two women during his marriage. One letter, he said, suggests Mrs. Phillips asked for money to remain silent.

The 54-year-old bachelor writer said he is convinced Harding wrote the letters because of "the angular, scrawling handwriting" and his particular phrasing. While most are love letters and poems, Russell said, some are merely general, discussing business, politics, Harding's career and his self-estimates.

By court permission, the letters now are in the hands of attorney Paul D. Michel of Marion, administrator of Mrs. Phillips' estate. Michel said he will have experts appraise them.

Mrs. Phillips' daughter and apparently only surviving heir, Isabelle P. Mathee of Genoa City, Wis., declined comment. Probate Judge Edward J. Ruzzo of Marion said she would have first claim on the letters.

Russell said the letters were being preserved by Marion attorney Donald Williamson, guardian for Mrs. Phillips at the time of her death in 1960, when he saw them and that he is the first researcher granted access.

COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, JULY 12, 1964

SECTION

Personalines

One of the busiest young ladies in Colorado Springs the past few weeks has been Miss Grace Whiting Mitchell, who has been the inspiration for a whirl of pre-nuptial parties. Miss Mitchell became the bride of Lt. Allan McArtor Saturday at the U.S. Air Force Chapel.

The rehearsal dinner was given in the Imperial Room of the Ent Officers' Club Friday evening by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. McArtor of Webster Groves, Mo. The dinner was preceded by a champagne party given by Mr. and Mrs. James Bunnell at their home.

Thursday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McColl Sr. gave a cocktail party and surprise shower for the couple, when the guests were members of the bridal party, the families and out-of-town guests, including Cmdr. and Mrs. John McCurdy of Oakland, Calif., Lt. Darryl Bloodworth of Apalachicola, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell, of Tucson, and David Mitchell, who flew in from Heidleberg, Germany for his sister's wedding; and Lt. Peter LoPresti from Ohio.

Other showers for Miss Mitchell include a linen shower and luncheon hostessed by Mrs. Kenneth Brosh and Mrs. Leonard Sutton, at the Ent Officers Club; a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. Edwin Hayes, followed by luncheon at the Garden of the Gods Club, with Mrs. Paul Du Bois as co-hostess at both the luncheon and the shower.

Mrs. Alfred Heinicke entertained with a luncheon and miscellaneous shower, and Mrs. Charles Haley and daughter, Ruth Ann of Boulder, gave an around-the-clock shower.

The bridegroom was also the inspiration for a shower given by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Travis in Webster Groves.

Another recent bride, Miss Margo Ann Metzler, whose marriage to Donald Allen Yunker took place July 11, has also had a full social calendar this summer.

Mrs. Grant Winne gave a dessert bridge party and miscellaneous shower, and a coffee and shower were given by Mrs. Henry Willie and Mrs. Howard Niswonger.

Mrs. Jack Martin, Mrs. Jack Agee, and Mrs. Nolan Drury entertained with a luncheon and money tree shower at the home of Mrs. Agee; and Mrs. Lewis Lynch of Woodland park was hostess at a luncheon and shower.

Mrs. Fred Hoebel and daughter, Bette, gave a patio dinner and shower, and Mrs. C. R. Mench entertained at a coffee, and spice-and-recipe shower.

A coffee and silver dollar shower was given by Mrs. Harold Gates, Mrs. Homer Brown, Mrs. Allen Dorsey and Mrs. Harold Runyan at the Gates home.

A cocktail buffet complimenting the couple was given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Love; and a dinner was given at Ruth's oven by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pusey, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Goeke, and Mr. and Mrs. Daner Durbin.

A luncheon in the Garden Room of the Broadmoor Tavern was hostessed by Mrs. Van Kirk Perkins and Mrs. Irving Roberts.

Several parties were given in Long Beach before the couple returned from school in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Leland Drollinger and Gary Drollinger entertained at a cocktail buffet and kitchen shower at their home, and Mrs. John Persons and Mrs. Robert Ritner honored Miss Metzler at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Pitner.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldredge E. Combs and Mr. and Mrs. David Combs entertained at a cocktail buffet dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eldredge Combs and Mrs. Francis Huesel entertained at a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at her home.

Mrs. Harry McColl Sr., Mrs. Jack McColl and Mrs. Harry McColl Jr. gave their annual summer brunch Wednesday at the Colorado Springs Country Club.

Miss Pamela J. Hoiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoiles of 1729 Alamo Ave. will appear as "Mrs. Blair," in Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee's "Inherit the Wind;" "Mrs. Trapes," in John Gay's "The Beggar's Opera," and will be in the chorus in Offenbach's "Orpheus in the Underworld" in "Theatre Under the Stars" at Occidental College in Los Angeles.

Miss Hoiles, who is majoring in drama at Occidental, also participated in the summer theatre program in 1962 and 1963.

The college's fifth annual Summer Drama Festival will open July 16, with John Gay's "The Beggar's Opera." The Beggar's Opera will be followed by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee's "Inherit the Wind," Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and Jacques Offenbach's "Orpheus in the Underworld."

A personally conducted tour of the Sistine Chapel and other parts of the Vatican by Father Grech, secretary to Pope Paul VI, was one of the highlights of a recent visit to Rome by Mr. and Mrs. Morton Neufeld, 6 Polo Dr. They also had reserved seats for the 8:30 mass at St. Peters, at which Pope Paul presided.

During their visit to Rome they were guests of Mrs. Neufeld's sister-in-law, Mrs. Leila Hirshfeld and daughter, Liz, who have visited in Colorado Springs. Liz will attend the liberal arts college at Aix en Provence, France, this Fall.

Another highlight was a tour of the fabulous palace of the sultan at Tetchwan, Morocco, now partially opened to sightseers each day the sultan is not in residence. Other points visited during the tour were Tangiers, Lisbon,, Majorca, Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, and the New York World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Neufeld were accompanied by the latter's sister, Mrs. Herman Schur of Aberdeen, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard C. Bell have just returned from a trip into the North Central states. In Nebraska they were guests of honor at a reunion of the Sugden family, relatives of Mrs. Bell on her mother's side. They visited other cousins of Mrs. Bell in Iowa before going on to points of interest in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

They crossed Lake Michigan on the Milwaukee Clipper and were guest of relatives of Mr. Bell in Lowell, Palo and Lansing, Mich. They toured upper Michigan taking a boat trip into Canada.

On their way back they toured the Badlands, Mount Rushmore and other scenic areas of the Black Hills in South Dakota. Mrs. Bell will be the guest speaker for TOPS later this month.

Dr. and Mrs. Willard Smith have returned from an extended European tour during which they visited Spain, Portugal, Italy, Vienna, Paris, London and Copenhagen.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Oliver, formerly of Colorado Springs, now of Long Beach, Calif., are spending most of the summer at Green Mountain Falls in their cabin, Wild Rose.

Miss Mimi McClellan of Lexington,, Ky., has been spending the past month at the Mayhurst Skating Lodge while taking skating lessons at the Broadmoor World Arena.

Miss McClellan is the niece of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. McClellan of 2708 Marilyn Rd. Her father, Dr. J. P. McClellan will arrive this week to attend a cancer conference, and will spend a week here before returning to Lexington with his daughter.

The executive board of the Ent Air Force Base Officers' Wives Club has issued invitations to a tea for the Ent debutantes and their mothers, from 2 until 4 p.m. Thursday at the Skyline Club.

Lt. Gen. H. B .Thatcher, Commander, Air Defense Command, and Mrs. Thatcher, will give a reception from 6 until 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Skyline Club, honoring Lt. Gen, and Mrs. Henry Viccellio who have recently been transferred to the Air Defense Command.

Mrs. Robert George Pickering and sons, Dale and Dean,, have been spending the past six months with Mrs. Pickering's

SEAT BELT STATISTICS

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A recent Automotive Crash Injury Research Project placed the risk of serious injury or death at 35 per cent less for seat belt users than for non-belt users. The study, carried out at the Cornell Aeronautical Labortory, further estimated that there would be a 25 per cent reduction in deaths among all occupants of cars involved in crashes if all were wearing seat belts. Major value of the belts is in preventing the ejection of the cars' occupants.

STREET SIGN SWITCH

NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP) — A seven-year $700,000 program to install 70,000 new street signs in New York City has been started by Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes. The present custom-built baked enamel signs will be replaced by larger street markers made of extruded aluminum.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A religious leader and sociologist predicts an increase in intermarriage in the United States. But he disapproves of the trend because, as he says, marriages outside of one's religious faith, race or ethnic group stand less chance of succeeding than others.

"I know," said Dr. Albert I. Gordon. "I shall be charged with bigotry, with prejudice. This is not new. Anyone with a religious interest would be."

Dr. Gordon, who holds a master's degree in sociology and a doctorate in social anthropology, is rabbi of Temple Emanuel in Newton Centre, Mass. He is the author of a new and exhaustive study of college students' attitudes on intermarriage. The book, "Intermarriage — Interfaith, Interracial, Interethnic" (Beacon Press) is a result of his questioning and analyzing the views of 5,407 students surveyed in colleges from Boston to Honolulu.

Dr. Gordon said, in an interview, that he queried the college group because they represent attitudes of the future—"In 1900, four per cent of the 18 to 21 age group went to college; by 1970, at least 45 per cent will be going."

Forty-four per cent of the respondents were male; 55 per cent were female; one per cent provided no information. Forty-seven per cent were Protestant; 31 per cent Catholic; 12 per cent Jewish; the rest of other or non-religious affiliation.

The Gordon book is full of tabulated breakdowns of young people's attitudes on various aspects of marriage. But the author summarizes them this way —91 per cent of the students in the all-school sample do not favor marriage to a person of another color; 50 per cent do not favor marriage to a person of another religion; 31 per cent do not favor marriage to a person of another educational group; 16 per cent do not favor marriage with a person of another ancestry; and 13 per cent do not favor marriage to a person of a different economic level.

Dr. Gordon gives his findings in the bulk of the book then concludes with "a personal view." He expanded on the latter during a visit to New York.

Marriage out of one's faith is almost three times less likely to succeed than ordinary marriages, said Gordon. The chances for the interracial marriage are "according to my research, even less than that of an interfaith marriage.

"Interethnic has a better chance than the others."

But Gordon said that "we may expect that intermarriages will continue to increase in our society."

He listed several reasons:

The improvement of job and educational levels for all; the natural outgrowth of young people from assorted walks of life, assorted races and cultures, meeting on today's campuses; the great number of social barriers which keep tumbling down and the "honest desire for one world."

"I'm as interested in one world as everyone else," said Dr. Gordon, "but one world is less likely, less probable without religion.

"I feel that American values in religion need to be perpetuated.

"Human brotherhood cannot be assured by intermarriage.

"To create one world, shall we overthrow families?"

To Dr. Gordon, children of intermarriage often are the ones who suffer most. "Children do not know what they are, where they belong," he said. "Everyone wants a sense of identification."

But the rabbi, father of two grown children, opposes parental stonewalls against an intermarriage.

Parents who threaten their children, or who insist that they will disinherit them, or refuse to acknowledge them as their children, are guilty of the greatest of crimes," he said.

His advice to troubled parents: "Talk things out thoroughly with the children. State your case as strongly as you can. But if they are in love, very fine young people, then I suggest in matter of religious difference a conversion of one to the other's faith so there will be a united family, so they can be at home in church."

Of interracial marriages, Dr. Gordon said, civil rights legislation enacted or not, "Americans are just not ready for them."

He quoted a Negro leader in the civil rights movement—"I want you to be my brother, not my brother-in-law."

AFA Chapel Is Scene of Gordon-Canfield Nuptials

Wearing a gown of white candy floss chiffon, Miss Carol Craig Canfield became the bride of Lt. Jeffrey Blair Gordon in a 2 p.m. ceremony Sunday, July 5, at the Protestant Chapel, Air Force Academy.

The couple repeated their vows before Chaplain Harold D. Shoemaker at the altar graced with baskets of white gladioli, mums and potted palms.

Parents of the bride are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Canfield, 2215 Essex Lane. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Norman Gordon, State College, Pa.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Chantilly lace trimmed the gown's scooped neckline, elbow length sleeves and front panels of the bell - shaped skirt, which flowed into a chapel train. Her bouffant illusion veil cascaded from a pillbox of chiffon over taffeta, appliqued with lace and seed pearls. She carried white roses and stephanotis on a white Bible.

Miss Bonnie Meller was the maid of honor. Her candy floss chiffon gown of deep copen blue was fashioned with a scoop neckline and street length bell shaped skirt. A matching chiffon cabbage rose held her veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of blue carnations.

Bridesmaids were Gretchen Canfield, sister of the bride, and Lindsey Gordon, sister of the bridegroom. Junior bridesmaids were Elizabeth Canfield, another sister of the bride, and Donna Canfield, cousin of the bride. All wore gowns similar to the maid of honor and carried cascade bouquets of white carnations.

Lt. James B. Pierce attended the bridegroom as best man, and groomsmen were Cadets Merril C. Hiscock and Dennis P. Bagwell. Cadets who formed the sabre arch were John Love, Norman Komnick, Robert Holder and Ken Waterman.

The bride's mother, wearing a blue lace gown of peau charm, received the guests at the reception held at the Ent Officer's Club. The bridegroom's mother chose a pink nylon jersey dress.

Mrs. Edwin Hammond, the bride's great aunt from Topeka, Kan., attended the guest gook.

The couple will reside at Webb Air Force Base, Big Springs, Tex., where the bridegroom will receive pilot training, after a wedding trip to Denver and Carlsbad Caverns. The bride's traveling ensemble was a light blue and green linen suit with matching blue accessories.

The bride attended schools in Colorado and Canada and the bridegroom is a recent graduate of the Air Force Academy.

Guests from other cities were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Canfield from Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Canfield from St. Joseph, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Featherston from Atoka, Okla.; Mrs. E. B. Hammond from Topeka, Kan.

John Harold McCullough Weds Cheryl Lee Keller

The marriage of Miss Cheryl Lee Keller and John Harold McCullough took place recently at an 11 o'clock nuptial mass in St. Mary's Catholic Church. The Rev. John Jepson performed the ceremony in a setting of candelabra, baskets of pink, yellow and white carnations and mums. Frank Hammer, at the organ, played traditional wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland W. Keller, 2303 Marlborough Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCullough, Philadelphia, Pa.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie styled with cap sleeves. The fitted bodice was fashioned with an overlay of Chantilly lace and she wore short wrist length gloves. A crown of teardrop crystals and pearls held her shoulder length veil and she carried a colonial bouquet of white tea roses.

Miss Trudy Mamino of West Palm Beach, Fla., was the maid of honor, and Miss Nancy McCullough, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Both wore street length sheaths of aqua peau de soie. Daisy appliques with seed pearls trimmed the bodices, and their flowers were pink, white and yellow carnations.

Robert Keller, brother of the bride, served as best man, and Jerome Laumann was groomsman.

The bride's mother, wearing a sheath of pastel pink chiffon crepe with matching accessories, received the guests at the reception held at the home of the bride's parents. The bridegroom's mother wore a light blue linen sheath with matching accessories.

For a wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park, the bride chose a white summer wool two piece suit with red patent leather accessories. The couple will reside at 10 Deerpath Rd., Apt. 2, upon their return.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCullough and Nancy, the bridegroom's parents and sister; Mr. and Mrs. Leland W. Keller, Sr., of Tarpon Springs, Fla., paternal grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. John Gilmore and daughter Melissa, Mr. and Mrs. John Scotten and Mrs. Jay Scotten, all of Denver.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID FRANKLIN SICKS

* * *

Linda Gayle Campbell Is Bride of Lt. David Sicks

Miss Linda Gayle Campbell and Lt. David Franklin Sicks were married recently in the Protestant Chapel at the Air Force Academy. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Harold D. Shoemaker performed the double ring ceremony against a background of white tapers and arrangements of white chrysanthemums and gladioli. Music included traditional nuptial selections.

The bride is the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Jack Owen Campbell, 2134 Afton Way. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sicks, Independence, Kan.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of silk taffeta fashioned with a sabrina neckline, fitted bodice enhanced with Alencon lace, seed pearls and long pointed sleeves. An illusion overskirt terminated in a chapel train and her bouffant veil was caught to a lace and taffeta rose, trimmed with seed pearls. Her cascade bouquet was of white orchids and gardenias.

Miss Pat Rael was maid of honor. Her apricot pebble crepe sheath gown was floor length, designed with a slight train. She carried a cascade bouquet of white mums and white carnations.

Miss Carol Leming and Miss Rosemary Sicks, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Both wore gowns identically to the maid of honor. Their crescent bouquets were of tropicana carnations.

Alan Sicks attended his brother as best man. Ushers were Lt. Alan Samuel, and Cadets Tim Graves and Jack Edison. Sword bearers were Cadets Robert Dunbar, R. Brzenk, Richard Reiner, Jon Longworth and John Childress.

A reception was held at the Skyline Club, Ent Air Force Base. Miss Mary Lister attended the guest book; Miss Barbara Jones and Mrs. Stanley McGill, the bride's aunt, assisted.

The bride's mother chose a daffodil yellow silk sheath with jeweled collar, matching shoes and purse. The bridegroom's mother selected a green lace sheath, with bone accessories. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

For a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride's ensemble was a yellow linen suit, with bone shoes and purse. Her orchid corsage was taken from the bridal bouquet.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Ethel Stafford, Jackson, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McGill, Indianapolis, Ind.; Alan McGill, and Lt. Col. Zacarias Rael, Germany.

The bride attended Yuba College, Marysville, Calif., and is also a graduate of Blair Business College. The bridegroom recently graduated from the Air Force Academy.

The couple will reside at 1926 E. Mosher St., Enid, Okla., while the bridegroom is stationed at Vance Air Force Base.

Mincemeat Peaches

- 1 package (9 ounces) mincemeat
- 1¼ cups water
- 3 tablespoons light brown sugar
- 1½ cups coarsely grated pared baking-type apples
- 3 teaspoons brandy
- Peach halves (canned or brandied)

Turn mincemeat (in small pieces) into a medium saucepan with water and sugar. Stir over high heat until lumps are completly broken up; boil briskly for 1 minute. Add apple; simmer, stirring often, until very thick-about 10 minutes. Cool and stir in brandy. Makes about 2½ cups. Store, tightly covered, in refrigerator. At serving time, fill cavities of drained peaches with a generous amount of the mincemeat mixture — about 1-3 cup for each. Bake in a shallow pan in a hot (400 degrees) oven until thoroughly hot—about 10 minutes. Serve with vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

Vanilla ice cream is a traditional accompaniment to cantaloupe, but fruit sherbet is a good choice for weight - watchers! Lemon, lime, orange or raspberry flavored sherbet are all compatible with melon.

African Children Booked for Advances

CONAKRY (UPI) — A bell jingles at four in the afternoon and hundreds of boys and girls pour out of the schoolhouse into the street, the girls balancing their books on their heads like budding ballerinas.

Some boys are bare - chested and bare - footed, and some girls wrap their worn skirts around their waists like bath towels. All have books and satchels, and they go to school.

This is the greatest spectacle in Africa today.

Over at the National Assembly, you find this picture raised to the highest honor. On the wall next to the Assembly President hangs a blown-up photograph of three schoolboys in native booboos, sitting on a classroom bench and grinning, black eyes sparkling, white teeth shining.

No other country in Africa has sacrificed so much in material comfort as Ghana has. And no other African country has achieved so much in education.

Out of sacrifice emerges this simple table of statistics:

Guinea, a country of four million inhabitants, had 45,000 students in 1958, "the year of independence." Four years later, 1962, the figure had risen to 172,000.

On an average, in every year of independence, Guinea has sent to school as many students as foreign rule had done in 60 years.

Education in Guinea is free for every boy and girl during 12 years of pre-university studies, as well as university scholarships abroad.

Guinea plans, and the plan is forging ahead, that by 1966 every boy and girl aged seven will enter school. That would mean that the new generation, born immediately after independence, would be 100 per cent literate.

Behind this national effort stands President Ahmed Sekou Toure.

"I never had a chance to go to school beyond primary education," he told a national youth conference. "I taught myself, and I still do.

"I wore a loin-cloth when I was a schoolboy." "When school reopened I walked from my village to town. It took me one or two weeks to get there."

BRIDE ELECT — Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kester of Houston, Tex., announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis Ann, to Edward Albert Ritchie, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William A. Ritchie, formerly of Colorado Springs, now of Washington D. C. The wedding is planned for Aug. 15 at the First Christian Church in Houston. Miss Kester is a graduate of Greeley High School where she was a member of Pep Club, Junior Philharmonic, Latin Club and Job's Daughters. She is a '64 graduate of Phillips University where she received her B. A. degree in Home Economics. She was a member of Comet Club, University Chorus and First Mile, and will teach at Morrison, Okla. in the fall. Mr. Ritchie, a graduate of Alamogordo High School, is a three-year baseball letterman and a senior in Industrial Engineering at Oklahoma State. He is a first lieutenant in the Air Force ROTC at OSU.

MADAME - AT - THE - WHEEL

PARIS, France (AP) — A driver-education school limited to women only and called "Madame au Volant" (Madame at the Wheel) attracts an average of 30 pupils a day for its organizer, Henri Duboin.

Mr. Duboin says he finds women easier to teach than men because they are more willing "to acknowledge their inexperience. Their main fault as drivers, he adds, is that they talk too much. Incidentally, he uses only men as instructors.

Fortener-Martin Vows Read In Community Church of Go

The marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Martin and Albert W. Fortener was solemnized recently at the Community Church of God. Rev. V. Ray Foster performed the double ring ceremony by candlelight.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Martin formerly of Colorado Springs, now of LaJunta. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Fortener of Detroit, Mich.

Palms, and baskets of white gladioli and stock tied with white ribbon, and white candelabra formed the setting for the ceremony.

Martin L. Shuck accompanied by Mrs. Rose Williams at the organ sang "I'll Walk Beside You;" and "The Wedding Prayer," as the couple knelt at the alter.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin, trimmed with iridescents and pearls on the bodice with long fitted sleeves. The fingertip veil of illusion flowed from a satin dutch rose. The bell skirt terminated in a chapel train. Her bouquet was of white roses and ivy.

Sharon Clark was maid of honor, with Karen Culp and Karen Nielsen as bridesmaids. Their dresses were of mint green peau de soie styled with round necklines, sleeveless, and bell skirts. Their veils of illusion were attached to a single dutch rose in mint green like that of the bride. They wore gold slippers and carried three single tropicana roses.

Linda Martin and Kathy Porter were candlelighters. Their dresses were like those of the attendants with scalloped overskirts. They wore matching veils.

Corina Hofer and Pam Michaels as flowergirls wore dresses like the candlelighters, with matching veils. They carried white baskets with rose petals.

Niel Hudson, as ring bearer, wore a black suit and carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Frank A. Pardun acted as best man, and John Daday, Russell Martin and Bill Martin as groomsmen. They all wore black dinner jackets.

The bride's mother, wearing a dress of lace over blue organza, received the guests at the reception which was held at the Moors. She wore beige accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a rose lace suit, with matching shoes and accessories. Their corsages were of white orchids.

Assisting at the reception were Miss Bonnie Martin, who presided at the guest book; Mrs. Jan Michaels and Mrs. Carol Shuck, in charge of the gift table.

After a brief honeymoon, the couple will live in Alpena, Mich. The bride's traveling ensemble was a pink crepe dress with black patent accessories, and her corsage was of white roses.

Guests from other cities were: Miss Sharon Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Culp, the Misses Trudy and Karen Culp, Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Curtis, and Mr. John Daday, all of Denver; Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Paul Robert Radler Weds Virginia Alice Kochis

Virginia Alice Kochis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Kochis Jr., of Matheson, and Paul Robert Radler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Radler, 1729 N. 56 St., Milwaukee, Wis., received the Sacrament of Holy Matrimony on June 20. The double ring ceremony was performed at 11 a.m. at Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church, Limon, with Father Patrick J. Kennedy officiating at the Nuptial Mass. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Andrew Kochis.

The bride was attired in a long white sheath gown of satapeau with a cowl neckline pointed finger tip sleeves, and accented with Swiss lace trimming at the mid-driff and a flowing shoulder train. The outfit was made complete with a shoulder length pill box veil, trimmed in the Swiss lace and a bouquet of white roses.

Thelma Kochis, sister of the bride, served as maid-of-honor and John Radler, brother of the groom was best man. Other members of the wedding party were: Gladys Kochis, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, George Radler, brother of the groom, as an attendant. Ushers were, Virgil and Darrell Kochis, brothers of the bride. Flower girl was Marilyn Kochis, sister of the bride and Daniel Radler, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Organist was Ann Mohan of Limon, and the alter boys were Scott Lewis and Chris Stone, also of Limon.

The bridesmaid, maid-of-honor and flower girl wore long pink silk linen gowns with scooped necklines, short sleeves, and a bell skirt with two bows as accents at the back waistline. Headpieces were pink circle bands with short veils. The outfits were completed with white accessories and a pearl necklace. The bridesmaid and maid-of-honor carried nosegays of white carnations and the flower girl carried a white flower basket with pink rose petals, which she scattered before the bride.

The mother of the bride chose a silk rayon flower print sheath dress with a beige skirt length jacket and white accessories. The groom's mother wore a light blue silk linen cape dress with blue and white accessories. Both mothers had white carnation corsages.

All male members of the wedding party wore dark suits, with white carnation boutonnieres. The groom had a white rose boutonniere.

The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the church with white gladioli and pink carnations as altar bouquets.

The bride presented a white carnation arm bouquet to the Blessed Virgin Mary.

A buffet luncheon followed the ceremony at the Cozy Annex, Limon, Colorado.

An eight-tier wedding cake had a 'marriage in Christ cross' on the top, and was surrounded by white gladioli and pink carnations as the centerpiece for the head table.

Miss Betty Cirbo, cousin of the bride was guest book attendant and Mrs. Paul Wingard, Ramah, and Mrs. Arthur Roberts, Denver, aunts to the bride, attended to the gift table.

Following the luncheon the wedding party and the guests danced to the music of a three piece Western band.

The couple spent their honeymoon in the Colorado Rocky Mountains and the Black Hills of South Dakota. As a going-away outfit, the bride chose an olive green plaid suit of cotton with olive green shoes and white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses, taken from the bridal bouquet.

Virginia graduated from Simla High School, 1959 and received her B.S. Degree in General Home Economics from Mount Mary College, Milwaukee, Wis. She has been emplyed as a 4-H Home Economics Agent in Green County, Monroe, Wis.

FASTEN THAT SEAT BELT!

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — New studies show that drivers and passengers do not use seat belts — even when available in the car — more than one third of the time, according to the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory. The Laboratory adds that 5,500 persons who died in automobile crashes last year might have lived if they had used available seat belts.

The Automotive Crash Injury Research Project study discovered from examining 54,000 accidents that the driver used his seat belt only one-third of the time. The passenger in the right front seat used his belt less often, and persons in the back seat strapped on available belts less than one in six times.

Female Voices Heard In Mexican Politics

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (UPI)—The most rapidly growing force in Mexican politics is a feminine one.

And one of the distaff's most audible voices belongs to Julia Gracia Soto, 27, director of Women's Action of the Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI), the dominant political party in Mexico.

Voter registration for the Mexican elections in July has shattered all records in Nuevo Laredo and the state of Tamaulipas. The feminine total is almost equal that of the men.

In the Nuevo Laredo voting district there are 51,257 registered voters. The figure represents an increase of 21,000 votes over the last presidential election year of 1958.

Of these voters 25,058 are women and 26,199 are men.

Miss Garcia Soto is also the alternate nominee with a Nuevo Laredoan who is running for Congress. He is Mariano Gonzalez Gutierrez, a lawyer, who has the PRI party blessing.

As alternate nominee, Miss Garcia Soto has no real hopes of taking office, but she could campaign no harder if she were the candidate herself.

She has been the key influence in getting women in Neuvo Laredo to register. She also has campaigned long and hard and helped give a reception for presidential candidate Gustavo Diaz Ordaz when he visited Nuevo Laredo a few weeks ago.

Miss Garcia Soto originally is from Ciudad Victoria. She was graduated from the University of Tamaulipas and became a teacher in Nuevo Laredo public schools and a social worker, directing the Social Security Educational Center. The center trains workers and the families covered by social security. More than 800 persons are now enroled in the night school.

Courses include reading and writing, cooking and budgeting, maternal and child care, sewing, history, civics, music, hygiene and physical education.

Oysters in 'R' Months?

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Isn't it true that we should never eat oysters in months that don t have an "R" in them? My mother always warned us not to.

A—The belief that oysters are good to eat only during months with an "R" in them is a myth. As a matter of fact, oysters usually reach their peak, are fatter and taste better in May and June, months with no "R" in them, according to Dr. J. L. McHugh, Bureau of Commerical Fisheries of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

"Some of the origins of the 'R' month myth may have been lost in history," adds Dr. McHugh, who is assistant director for biological research.

"The oyster harvest is begun in early fall because the demand is seasonal and the prices are highest at that time. The seasonal demand may have been caused by the 'R' month myth. Another reason is that most oysters are marketed in the raw shucked state. In the early days (before improved refrigeration) storage life of oysters probably was longer in cooler weather."

The tradition of the fall harvest is unlikely to change, however, he believes, until enough oyster consumers become aware that the "R" month rule is a myth. So tell your mother and then serve up a wonderful May oyster stew.

Q—Is it okay to cook frozen meats dithout thawing?

A — Yes. Most frozen meats may be cooked either with or without previous thawing. But be sure to allow extra cooking time for meats not thawed first. Large frozen roasts, for example, may take as much as 1½ times as long to cook as unfrozen cuts of the same weight and shape. To thaw frozen meat, put the meat in the refrigerator and leave the meat in its original wrapping while it thaws. This will prevent drying. For best quality, cook thawed meat immediately.

SPECIAL ANCESTOR

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New England is full of people who claim to have had ancestors who came over on The Mayflower. But William "Winkie" Upton III, a 9-year-old genealogy buff, has discovered an ancestor with an even better claim to fame: one John Howland, who not only came over on The Mayflower, but fell off it.

According to the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, "John Howland was almost drowned during a violent storm on November 5, 1620, when a mountainous wave swept him overboard. Grasping a halyard that was trailing astern water, he finally managed to haul himself to the surface. He was then rescued by means of a boathook and rope."

On November 11, 1620, Howland became the thirteenth signer of the Mayflower Pact.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

Ever clean out your closet and end up with a big batch of those black wire coat hangers? The kind that just hang there.

Well, some darling named Bobbie wrote and told me that she painted all her wire hangers different colors and hung each person's clothes on different colored hangers as she did her ironing! It gave her a lift, besides her ironed clothes were easier to sort.

She hangs her son's clothes on blue hangers, her daughter's on silver (and, gals, be careful when using silver paint . . . sometimes it backfires with synthetic clothes), and hangs her own clothes on the black hangers, etc.

This is a great idea and we experimented with it.

Here's the best way we found to paint hangers:

Spend your "time," "paint" and "energy" on the "heaviest" of the hangers. Some hangers are made of thinner wire and are cheap. And "Don't" use rusted hangers.

Remove all the tissue paper and cardboard from each hanger. Put them all in a big, cardboard box, leaving them slightly apart. Then take your can of spray paint and spray away . . . We did about 18 at one time. And I used "Enamel", not flat paint.

When using this method the paint doesn't get all over everything. Most of it will whizz like a tornado inside the box and land "Back" on your hangers. Paint saved.

Wonderful.

Don't try to spray all your hangers completely in one minute.

Shoot a few sprays, leave them a while, come back and turn the hangers over and give that can a few more spurts. Leave them alone "again" and ten minutes later come back, pick up the can and spurt a few more times . . . eventually they will be beautiful.

"After" you have finished painting from any type of fizz can, don't allow the remainder of the paint to go dead and let the fizz hole plug up! All you have to do is turn the can upside down, (be sure to hold it against a piece of paper as it will spray more paint) and press on the fizz button a few seconds. Spray until "No More Paint Comes Out." Then put the can away.

Next time you get ready to paint, the fizz should (?) work! Mine always has since I found this out.

Now, go get those coat hangers sprayed. And in the meantime, if you have anything else that needs painting, do it at the same time. I love you. —Heloise

If you have screens that are easily removed . . .

When cleaning them, if you will wash them, let them dry, then wax with a bug - killing self - polishing wax, they stay clean longer and the wax helps to keep out some of the summer bugs. — Mrs. H. I. Buck, Jr.

I don't know about "Waxing" screens. But it does seem as if the bug stuff is a wonderful idea. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I never miss your column. But I don't believe I have ever seen where anyone ironed plastic. I do.

Sometimes our favorite tablecloth or shower curtain gets stiff as a board when the cool air hits it after washing.

I put the plastic items across the ironing board, cover them with a tea towel—an old sheet is excellent—turn the iron on low, and iron them. They are as soft as silk then.

You must be sure the sheet or covering is completely over the plastic article as the iron will make a hole in the plastic if it comes in direct contact. — Mrs. Wilson

Dear Heloise:

My family likes layer cake with lots of frosting.

Here is what I do:

I put frosting on the plate before putting the cake on it. This keeps the cake moist longer and sure makes for better eating. It also keeps the cake from sliding.

Try it. —Ruth

"I did!" It works — thanks, Ruth. —Heloise

Talented Trio to Present Concert Wednesday Night

Verda Lawrie, who has just completed her twentieth year as organist at the First Methodist Church will present an organ concert, Wednesday evening, July 15, in the sanctuary of the church. The concert which will begin at 8 o'clock is open to the public without charge. A free will offering will be taken for the benefit of the television fund.

The organ, a three manual, fifty-eight rank Reuter is well-known locally and has gained a reputation as one of the most outstanding in the Rocky Mountain area. It is well qualified, not only for the many purposes required for the church services, but for concerts as well with its great variety in registration.

Mrs. Lawrie has chosen a program of varied numbers of interest to everyone. She will be assisted by two outstanding soloists, Eugene McCleary, bass, and Richard Maag, violoncelist.

Mr. McCleary, who is a brother of Mrs. Lawrie, is well-known to local audiences not only as a musician but as a civic leader and business man. He is at present a member of the City Council and owner of the Motor Parts and Supply Company. The major part of his voice training was received from Karl Jarn, former Metropolitan opera star. For many years he has produced and directed the Lion's Minstrel Shows and has been a soloist in local churches.

Mr. Maag, who received his B M degree from Kansas University and his M M from the University of Texas, played for two years in the San Antonio Symphony before coming to Colorado Springs where he has been first cellist with the Colorado Springs Symphony. He has taught in School District 11 for the past five years but will be leaving soon to accept the position of assistant professor of music at Furnam University in Greenville, S. C. He will also play in the Greenville Symphony.

It will be of interest to many people planning an evening of enjoyment that the Pilot Club will have a smorgasbord in the banquet room of the church preceding the concert.

Donald E. Strauch Weds Miss Linda Williams

Baskets of white gladioli formed the setting for the wedding of Miss Linda Williams and Donald E. Strauch at 11 a.m. June 20, in the Divine Redeemer Catholic Church, the Rev. John Molitor officiating.

Mrs. Evelyn Crandall at the organ played nuptial selections and Richard McPoyle sang.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Williams of 1320 Sunset Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Strauch of 204 N. 33rd St.

Mr. Williams escorted his daughter to the altar and gave her in marriage. Her sheath gown of white organza over taffeta was styled with detachable train, and was made with kabuchi sleeves trimmed with rococo Venice lace. A wide band of lace trimmed the skirt above the hemline. Her veil of silk illusion was held in place by a small pillbox trimmed with Venice lace and accented with pearls. Her flowers were white gladioli bells centered with a detachable white orchid corsage.

Miss Judy Williams, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Williams, also a sister, Miss Nancy Hull and Miss Juanita del Regato. All wore dresses of yellow chromespun acetate, styled with elbow sleeves and bell skirts, with matching shoes and hats.

Gerald Bromstead was best man and ushers were Robert Strauch, brother of the bridegroom, Joseph Babich, and Richard Elliot.

The bride's mother wore a sheath of pink chiffon over lace, and the bridegroom's mother wore a sheath of embroidered blue silk linen. Their corsages were orchids.

Mrs. Kathy Bromstead presided at the guest book during the reception which was held at the Elks Club. Mrs. Ida Barrett cut the cake, and presiding at the punch bowl were Susan Grindinger and Mrs. Leonard Schulte.

After a honeymoon at Grand Lake and Estes Park, the couple will live in Denver. The bride's going-away costume was a yellow silk suit with white accessories.

Both young people attended Colorado State University.

Guests from other cities were Mrs. Bill Smith, Mrs. Ida Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kimberlin and Joyce, all of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Burrus and family of Moberly, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schulte and family of Columbia, Mo., Mr. George Strauch, grandfather of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Weis, Mrs. Vic Huss and Sandra, all of Perham Minn., and Claude Strauch of Dent, Minn.

FAMILY CUTUP

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Her husband's name Isn't Samson, but Mrs. Bob Norris has been nicknamed "Delilah" as far as her family is concerned. She is the lady barber for her husband and children, Ricky and Raelene.

Bob Norris is a Baptist preacher, pastor of an Oklahoma church, but he and his wife attend Southwestern Seminary. The children are in the nursery there.

Before the family moved to Fort Worth, Mrs. Norris' father, a barber in Slaton, Texas for 40 years, decided his daughter might need some money - saving hints. He taught her some of his trade secrets, and supplied her with professional barber tools. She has everything but a red, white and blue barber pole.

Mrs. Norris has been operating ehr non-union, non-license, Saturday afternoon shop for a year. Her three satisfied customers wouldn't think of complaining. Their Delilah is much nicer than her Biblical counterpart.

For a last-minute cake filling mash ripe bananas with a little lemon juice and grated orange rind, frost the cake with sweetened whipped cream. To gild the lily, strew with slivered toasted blanched almonds.

Stevens-Baylis Vows Read In Scarsdale, N.Y. Church

The Hitchcock Presbyterian Church, of Scarsdale, N. Y., was the setting July 11 for the marriage of Miss Bonnie Alayne Baylis to Derwin Hubbard Stevens. The Rev. Dr. James S. Stewart performed the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Scarsdale Golf Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eugene Baylis of Scarsdale, N. Y., formerly of Colorado Springs and Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Stevens, Jr., of Concord and Annisquam, Mass., are the couple's parents.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white peau deo soie with a chapel train, and an heirloom rosepoint alencon lace veil. She carried a bouquet of eucharist lilies and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. F. Gibbs LaMotte was matron of honor. The other bridal attendants were Miss Margaret M. Brockbank, Miss C. Jean Floyd, and Mrs. Derek L. Tattersall. Their dresses were fashioned of white organdy with all-over embroidery of yellow flowers. Their picture hats were trimmed with shirred yellow velvet to match the sashes of their dresses.

The bridegroom's father, Brook Stevens, Jr., served as best man. The ushers included Brooks Stevens, III, the groom's brother, Kenneth R. H. Read, brother-in-law of the groom, and Joseph E. Lovejoy, Stuart G. Tucker, Alfred L. Donovan, and Richard L. Colten.

Mrs. Stevens is a 1963 graduate of Vassar College, and has done graduate work during the past year at Cornell University. She was presented at the Holly Ball there in 1959. She is the granddaughter of R. Arthur Baylis, a longtime resident of Colorado Springs, and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Lyons of this city.

Mr. Stevens is an alumnus of the Brooks School, North Andover, Mass. He graduated as a member of the class of 1957 from Harvard College where he belonged to Spee Club and the Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Report Him!

DEAR ABBY: My mother became ill, so I called the doctor. He examined her and said coldly, "She's sick." (I knew that or I wouldn't have called him.) He prescribed some medicine and told me to keep her in bed. After two weeks in bed she just grew weaker and she wasn't eating enough to keep a bird alive. I called the doctor again and told him my mother seemed to be slipping. He said, "There is nothing I can do. What do you expect from a 73-year-old woman?" Two days later she was just lying there like a wax statue and I honestly didn't know if she had gone into a coma or if the life had gone out of her, so I called the doctor and asked him to come right over. He calmly said, "If she is gone, you don't need ME. Call the undertaker of your choice and have him contact me to sign a death certificate." After all, Abby, I am NOT a registered nurse so how am I supposed to know if my mother is dead or in a coma? She died the next morning. I thought doctors were supposed to be dedicated? If I want to report this to the American Medical Association, how do I go about it? We live in a very small town. —DISAPPOINTED IN DRS.

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Write to the State Board of Medical Examiners, care of your State capital. They will investigate the case and the doctor will have to answer for his unprofessional and inhumane conduct.

DEAR ABBY: Will you join a campaign to legalize polygamy? Particularly for men who have career wives? I speak from experience. In spite of her beautiful home, a car of her own, no money worries and three wonderful children, my wife decided that being a homemaker was not "creative" enough for her, so she took a job. And now when this "creative" being comes home she is tired, irritable, and has no creative energy for her home, children or husband. What do you say? —FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: A mother with school-age children who seeks a career outside her home for any reason other than because she just plain NEEDS THE MONEY, deserves a good boot in the bustle. And a husband who would let her get away with it deserves two.

DEAR ABBY: My father was a taxidermist and as a boy I learned the trade from him. I use it only as a hobby, however, as I am in the insurance business. The young woman I am presently going with is a devout lover of animals and she can't stand to be around stuffed animals or birds. My apartment is filled with beautiful stuffed owls, pheasants and the heads of deer and elk. She says it gives her the creeps. I like this girl a lot, Abby, and don't want to give her up. But I find taxidermy a most relaxing hobby. Any suggestions? —AVOCATION TAXIDERMY

DEAR AV: Yes, forget the girl. If she really cared for you she'd abide the glass-eyed creatures. And if you really cared for her, you wouldn't be asking me for suggestions. You would store your zoo in the attic and marry the girl.

DEAR ABBY: What would you think if, after you received an invitation to the wedding of your friend's 18-year-old daughter, her mother called and said, "If you are going to send our daughter a wedding gift, please don't give her anything with a monogram or an initial because you know how young folks are nowadays—you never know how long the marriage will last." —ABSOLUTELY SPEECHLESS

DEAR ABSOLUTELY: I would think the same thoughts you undoubtedly thought. And I would heed the advice. P. S. Let's hope the daughter has better sense than her mother.

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT GREENE —Nee Mary Jo Van Dyke

* * *

Mary Jo Van Dyke Becomes Bride of Robert Greene

The marriage of Miss Mary Jo Van Dyke and Robert Greene was solemnized recently in Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The Rev. George Julian, O.M.I., officiated at the Nuptial Mass. Baskets of pink, blue and white carnations were arranged at the altar and organist Margaret Enwisle accompanied James Greene as he sang "Ave Maria," and "Panis Angelicus".

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Dyke, 110 N. 28th St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P.J. Greene, 2712 N. Circle Dr.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white lace over satin. The slim bodice was detailed with a sabrina neckline and long sleeves ending in scallops at the wrists. The full skirt was fashioned with a detachable chapel train of matching lace over satin and her fingertip tulle veil was caught to a crown of seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Patricia Sayers was the matron of honor. She wore a dark pink taffeta brocade gown with matching headband. Her nosegay was of pink roses and white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Sherri Greene and Veronica Conley. Both wore light pink taffeta brocade gowns with matching headbands, and carried nosegays of pink roses and white carnations.

Kathy Van Dyke, sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore a short pink frock and white headband. Mark Greene, cousin of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer.

Lawrence Greene attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Tom and Paul Greene, brothers of the bridegroom, Daniel Van Dyke the bride's brother, and Barry Karper were ushers.

A reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents followed the ceremony. Decorations included arrangements of pink, blue and white carnations. Assisting were Mrs. Jo Foster, Linda Erickson, Mrs. Olive Erickson and Mrs. Lillian Conley.

The bride's traveling costume was a green dress with matching accessories. The couple will reside at 1721 Woodburn St. after a honeymoon trip to Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Guests from other cities were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Greene and family, Mrs. V. A. Greene, Dave Van Dyke, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Enwisle, Mrs. Conley and Veronica, John O'Mailia, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foster and family, Miss Bobby Fairchild, Mike Foster, Mary Kay Ryan, Ann Ryan and Connie Green.

The bride is a graduate of Palmer High School, Class of '63, and is employed at Walter Drake and Sons. The bridegroom is employed at Sperry and Mock.

Royal Neighbors Meet

Golden Rod Camp, Royal Neighbors of America, will meet in regular session at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the IOOF Hall.

A social hour and refreshments will follow. Visiting members are welcome.

In tournament play, where each hand constitutes a match, the dogfights for part scores are at times quite vigorously waged and unnatural methods are frequently employed to push the enemy up to a contract they may not be able to fulfill. An interesting case is here recorded from a recent championship tournament.

West in third position had an indicated opening, but why he chose to bid one heart rather than a spade I do not know. At the conclusion of the deal his humor was such that I did not consider it tactful to inquire. The take-out double by North was more or less routine and East decided to make it difficult by bidding two hearts. South felt that if he took no action his partner would be unable to carry on the contest in the face of his previous pass, in which he was quite right.

If he could manage to get the opposition up to a nine trick contract he might be able to inflict some damage upon them. He, therefore, made the daring bid of two spades, hoping (as was not unlikely) that partner held four of the suit. West was satisfied with the bid, but did not feel inclined to double, since partner had shown no particular strength. North passed and East decided not to give up the fight. He went on to one more heart.

We do not admire his judgment in the matter, and his bid is all the more reprehensible for his lack of four trumps. His reasoning was that he did not feel that his side held the necessary defense against the spade contract, (he never dreamed that his partner held four spades) and he hoped to get by undoubled in the heart contract.

South promptly doubled, for two reasons. First, because he felt that the holding of two kings and four trumps, opposite a partner who was able to make a take-out double, gave him a reasonable assurance that the adverse contract would be defeated, and secondly, to make quite sure that partner would not be tempted to compete any further in spades.

The contract was defeated for a score of 100 points, which proved to be the best score attained with the North and South cards.

Real Time-Saver!

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Looking for an easy dinner that will please the family and not cost very much? Most people are a great deal of the time. Try these zippy franks. We think you will be grateful for the recipe.

The bean and vegetable salad makes a substantial main course luncheon dish. You may want that recipe also.

Zippy Frank Kabobs

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed beef broth
1-3 cup chili sauce
¼ cup minced onion
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon horseradish
1 medium clove garlic, minced

In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Bring to boil, stirring until thickened. Cover; cook over low heat 10 minutes. Stir now and then.

Kabobs

On 4 skewers, alternate 1 pound frankfurters (cut into 3 pieces), 8 partially cooked 1-inch squares green pepper, 8 cooked small white onions, and 8 mushrooms. Place on broiler rack; baste with sauce. Broil 3 to 4 inches from heat 5 minutes. Turn and baste. Broil about 5 minutes longer. Serve with remaining sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Barbecue Bean and Vegetable Salad

1 can (1 pound) barbecue beans
¼ cup carrot strips (about 1-inch)
¼ cup shredded cabbage
2 tablespoons diagonally sliced green onion
Crisp cabbage leaves

In bowl, combine beans, cabbage, carrot and green onion. Chill. Serve on cabbage leaves. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Always wrap melons before putting them in the refrigerator so that they won't flavor other foods.

Judith Roetzel Becomes Bride of John E. Conley

The marriage of Miss Judith Elizabeth Roetzel and John Edward Conley was solemnized at high noon July 3, in Pauline Chapel, Broadmoor. The Rev. Robert Greenslade of Denver officiated, against a background of summer flowers arranged in baskets.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peter Roetzel of 1523 Culebra Place, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bradford Conley of 12 Broadmoor Rd.

The bride wore a street length dress of white pique trimmed with white insertions and embroidery. Her shoes were white linen and lace and her white pillbox was trimmed with seed pearls, white flowers and veil. Her flowers were white carnations and stephanotis with ivy.

Sally Ann Roetzel, wearing a street length dress of mint-green silk shantung, was maid of honor for her sister. She wore matching shoes and mint-green pillbox with short veil. Her flowers were yellow roses.

Richard Paul Conley attended his brother as best man.

The bride's mother, wearing a yellow linen sheath, received the guests at the reception held at the Garden of the Gods Club. Her dress was trimmed with white Irish lace, and her hat was also of white Irish lace. Mrs. Conley chose a pink linen sheath with lace trim, and lavender and pink flowered hat.

Assisting at the reception were Jan Marie Hanna, sister of the bride, who wore a street length dress of mint-green silk shantung with matching shoes, and pillbox with short veil. Mrs. Peter T. Kirkland, sister of the bridegroom, who presided at the guest book, wore a multi-colored dress with blue coat.

After a honeymoon at the Broadmoor Hotel, the couple left for Boulder, where the bridegroom is a student at the University of Colorado. He also attended the U. S. Air Force Academy.

The bride's going-away ensemble was a blue raw silk sheath with matching jacket, and her corsage was an orchid. She attended both Colorado University and Colorado College.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Roetzel of Tucson, Ariz., Mrs. Dell Van Kilden, Mrs. Gordon Williams, Miss Virginia Crain, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bona, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Kimsey, Mr. and Mrs. Albert List and son, Mrs. Margaret Owens, all of Denver; the Rev. and Mrs. Patterson and sons, and Miss Wendy Williams of Boulder.

VISIT CAPITOL—Miss Debbie Elton, left, and Miss Elaine Stanton are pictured on the steps of the capitol in Washington, D.C. with Congressman J. Edgar Chenoweth. The young ladies spent several days in Washington for briefings prior to traveling in Europe on the University People-to-People program, where they were given the chance to make personal contacts with Europeans. They were briefed again on arrival in Belgium where they were met in Brussels by a Belgian family who entertained them at dinner and took them to a hotel. They met Douglas MacArthur, U.S. Ambassador to Belgium. Gen. Eisenhower heads the program and members of the board are James Farley, Joyce C. Hall, Walt Disney and Gen. A. Gruenther. Before returning home Miss Elton will visit the Scandinavian countries and Miss Stanton will spend most of the summer in Germany. Both attended Colorado State University and Miss Stanton, a social science major, will attend Colorado University for her senior year. Miss Elton, a junior humanities major, is undecided where she will go to school this fall. Miss Elton is the daughter of Mrs. Elanor Elton and Miss Stanton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stanton.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Henningsen of 142 El Paso Blvd., Manitou Springs, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ardis Arlea Velasquez, to the Rev. Herbert Lockyer Jr., of Whittier, Calif. Mrs. Valasquez is secretary-manager of the Manitou Springs Chamber of Commerce. The wedding will be held in the First Presbyterian Church. (King Photo)

Pilot Club Announces Ninth Annual Smorgasbord

The ninth annual Smorgasbord of the Pilot Club will be held from 5 to 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, July 15, in the dining rooms of the First Methodist Church.

This is an event which is anticipated with pleasure each year by the many people who have enjoyed the delicious food which the Pilots prepare and serve, with the help of their Co-Pilots. The tables are always beautifully appointed with flowers and the Pilots' own serving dishes, which form a background for the colorful foods. First to attract attention and to whet the appetites of Smorgasbord goers is the huge watermelon boat containing fresh fruits for the fruit cocktail. As they procede down the table, they will find sliced turkey and ham, whole baked Alaska salmon, Swedish meat balls, macaroni and cheese, baked beans and a wide variety of relishes, molded and crisp green salads. Home made pie and cake may be chosen for dessert.

The Smorgasbord is the one big money-raising project which the Pilot Club sponsors each year and every Pilot and Co-Pilot spends many hours in its preparation and serving. Proceeds from this event are used for the civic and welfare activities of the club. Many deserving girls have graduated as registered nurses because of the club's scholarship fund, and the club now sponsors a grant-in-aid program at Penrose Hospital through which Miss Mary Rodenkirk was graduated in June.

In addition to work with the aged, Pilots are most interested in children and during 1963 sponsored a Bicycle Safety Taping Program in which they applied safety tape to over 3,000 bicycles at the city's schools. For this program, they were awarded fourth place in Pilot International's Safety Contest. Among other civic projects have been the installation of the Doctors' Call System at Memorial Hospital and the playground equipment in Bott Park.

An additional attraction of the evening for those who attend the Smorgasbord will be an organ concert in the church sanctuary at 8 o'clock for which there will be no admission charge. Mrs. Verda Lawrie, one of the most talented musicians of the city will be organist.

Mrs. Gladys Fester is chairman of this year's Smorgasbord and other chairmen are: Mrs. Evelyn McBurney for the dining room, Mrs. Maxine Cech for the buffet tables, Mrs. Marie Cole, desserts, Mrs. Dorothy Bowser, coordinating of orders, and Mrs. Mary Heller, tickets. Tickets may be obtained from all members of the club, at Pikes Peak Floral Co., Peak Clinical Laboratory or at the door.

Pilot International, of which the local club is a member, is one of the five classified International Service Clubs for executive business and professional women, consisting of over 400 clubs in the United States, Bermuda, Canada, England and Japan, with a membership of more than 16,000 women.

Gary Orin Loo Weds Miss Jane Elenore Huenink

Miss Jane Elenore Huenink became the bride of Gary Orin Loo at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 11, in Grace Episcopal Church, Sheboygan, Wis. The Rev. Robert Sweetser performed the ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, stock, carnations and four nine-branch gold candelabra. The pews were decorated with greens, bows and candles, and nuptial music included the Wedding March, recessional and solos, "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar William Huenink, Sheboygan, Wis. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Orin Loo, 7th St. and Polo Dr.

Mr. Huenink escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore a full length gown of ivory peau de soie, designed with a fitted bodice enhanced with Venice lace and fleurettes of seed pearls and crystals, portrait neckline, and long tapering sleeves. The bell - shaped skirt was appliqued with Venice lace and jewels, with a full pleated back flowing gracefully into chapel length. Her multi-tiered illusion veil cascaded from a Medici cap of Alencon lace petals. She carried a colonette of white roses, stephanotis and unusual foliage.

Miss Julie Huenink was maid of honor. Her full length gown of seafoam and French blue chiffon was styled with panels falling softly to the hemline. She wore a matching chiffon hat and carried an arm bouquet of shades of blue delphinium.

Miss Anne Huenink, Mrs. Dirk Huenink, Mrs. Lester Loo, and Mrs. Andrew Evans, both of Colorado Springs, and Miss Diane Welling, were bridesmaids. All wore gowns and carried bouquets similar to that of the maid of honor.

Lester Loo, Colorado Springs, was the best man. Groomsmen were Roger Loo, Colorado Springs, Dirk Huenink, David Garton, Danforth Killips, and Douglas McLaughlin, Boulder.

A reception was held at the Pine Hills Country Club in Sheboygan. The bride's mother wore a full length midnight blue chiffon gown, trimmed with beads and designed with back flowing panels, and a matching hat. The bridegroom's mother selected a full length pink re - embroidered cotton lace overblouse and sheath crepe skirt with matching pillbox hat.

After a wedding trip to Minnesota, the couple will reside at 515 Ridgeway St., Colorado Springs. The bride's traveling costume was a beige linen suit complemented with a burnt orange blouse.

Guests in attendance were from Michigan, Colorado, Illinois, California, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin where she was affiliated with Delta Gamma.

The bridegroom graduated from Colorado State College where he was a member of Tau-Kappa Epsilon. He also attended the University of Colorado.

Homemakers To Be Guests of Mrs. C. H. Reed

The Handy Homemakers Extension Club will meet at noon Thursday with Mrs. H. W. Osborne, 914 S. Cascade Ave. Cohostess is Mrs. G. H. Reed.

A report on the international luncheon held in Black Forest will be presented by Mrs. D. L. Maloy.

Members are asked to bring Gold Bond certificates and cookies for WhoSoEver Will Mission.

Yunker-Metzler Ceremony Held in Broadmoor Church

The Broadmoor Community Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Margo Ann Metzler and Donald Allen Yunker at 7 p.m. July 11, the Rev. George Wesley Otto officiating. Dewey Layton at the organ played traditional selections.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Metzler of 625 W. Cheyenne Rd., was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chester F. Yunker of Long Beach, Calif.

White mums with gypsophelia and yellow gladioli were arranged on the altar which was lighted by candelabra, and the center aisle was decorated with Queen Cardones and yellow streamers.

The bride's formal gown of white silk organza over taffeta was styled with fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves pointed over the wrists. The dress was bustled at the back and sides, and a front panel was highlighted with lace appliques sprinkled with pearls. The skirt flowed into a chapel train and her veil of silk illusion was caught to a rose headdress. Her flowers were white roses arranged with English Ivy Streamers.

Miss Bette Hoebel was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie Bloom, Miss Sandra Pinello, Miss Karen Andrews, Miss Jerry Burnside and Miss Wendy Rogers. All wore sheaths of multi-colored flower print taffeta in shades of gold, green and rose, with overlays of sunny-gold sheer nylon with fly-away back panels to match. Their flowers were large yellow mums with tangerine roses.

Flower girls here Barbara Brenner, Cindy Bettison and Bonnie Bettison, who wore frocks of yellow silk organza. Jimmie Love was ring bearer.

David E. Combs was best man and ushers were Wesley Metzler, brother of the bride, Robert Yunker, brother of the bridegroom, Robert Brenner, a cousin, William Bettison Jr., Gary Drollinger and Bill Organ.

The bride's mother, receiving the guests at the recption in the church parlor, wore a two piece dress of citrus yellow imported Swiss linen trimmed in chalk white beads, and white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of beige silk peau de soie trimmed with lace and beads, and matching accessories.

Mrs. William Bettison Jr., sister of the bridegroom, presided at the guest book, and assisting in serving were Miss Marybeth Hamel, Miss Dianne Barrett, Mrs. David Combs, Mrs. B. A. Brenner and Mrs. Vern Andrews.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will live at Taft, Calif., where the bridegroom will be associated with the Standard Oil Co. The bride's traveling costume was a three piece ensemble of blue and white silk shantung, with white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bride attended Colorado Woman's College, Denver, and graduated with a B. S. degree in Elementary Education from the University of Southern California in June. Her sorority is Gamma Phi Beta.

The bridegroom was graduated from the Colorado School of Mines, class of '62, with a degree in Petroleum Engineering, and received his M.A. in Business Administration at USC in June. His fraternity is Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Guests from other cities were, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Heusel of Long Beach, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Yunker, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. David Combs of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. William Pattison Jr. of Chesterfield, Mo., Mrs. Charles Gregory, Falls City, Neb., Mr. and Mrs. Neal Williams, Denver; Mrs. Vern Andrews, and Karen, Mt. Zip Sends Letters At New Record Speed

CHICAGO (AP)—The zip in the mails these days has letters circling the globe at record breaking speeds.

Take the 57 days it took Harry S. Albin's letter to get across the street.

When John Segal finally received it, he found not just Albin's 5-cent stamp, but four other strange locking stamps besides.

On the back of the envelope was a note: "This letter arrived in Brazil by mistake. Am forwarding it." The stamps were Brazilian.

Albin's printing office are at 1223 S. Wabash. Segal, also a printer, has offices at 1139 S. Wabash. Albin had included the new ZIP code in the address.

WORLD'S COSTLIEST ORCHID?

GLOSTRUP, Denmark (AP)—Billed as the world's costliest, an orchid almost as tall as an adult man is back home. Carrying 60 delicate apple green flowers, developed after several years experimenting by the local firm of Brodrene Mohr, it was displayed at the recent Flower and Garden Exhibition in Hamburg, Germany.

After the exhibition, the plant was returned to Glostrup where its growers plan to use it as a mother plant for breeding the new variety, none of which will be seen in local florist shops in less than 8 years. Brodrene Mohr says he has refused an offer of 100,000 kroner ($145,000) for the plant.

Keep Cool With a Key Lime Pie!

By GAYNOR MADDOX

The cooling flavor of fresh limes is hard to beat when the thermometer goes sky high. But limes are not always in the market or else cost a little too much. That's why it is good news that there's a new Key lime pie filling on the market that turns out desserts not quite but almost as delightful as fresh limes.

This Key Lime Meringue Pie recipe is a modern version of a famous pie originated in the Florida Keys centuries ago. The original pie, food historians say, was a custard filling in a pastry shell with a lightly browned, baked meringue topping.

Key Lime Meringue Pie
(1 9-inch pie)

1 package Key lime flavor pie filling
½ cup sugar
2½ cups water
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
1 9-inch pie shell, baked and cooled

Combine Key lime flavor pie filling and ½ cup sugar in a saucepan. Gradually add water and egg yolks, stirring to keep mixture smooth. Cook over medium high heat stirring constantly, until mixture begins to boil. If undissolved, break flavor capsule and stir into filling. Cool slightly. Pour into baked and cooled pie shell. Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add and beat in the ¼ cup sugar. Beat until peaks hold. Spread meringue over filling and seal well to crust. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) about 5 minutes.

Endearing 'Celestial Fruit' Returns!

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Nectarines, the "celestial fruit," are coming to our markets. Their particular flavor delights lovers of fresh fruit and their perfume endears them to connoisseurs.

As an adventure in eating, try this unusual nectarine, short ribs recipe.

Saucy Nectarine Short Ribs
(6 Servings)

- ½ cup red wine vinegar
- ½ cup canned fruit syrup (cling peach, pineapple, apricot) or ½ cup water
- 1 bay leaf
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper
- 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
- 3 pounds beef short ribs, cut into serving pieces
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- ½ cup brown sugar, packed
- 2 cups sliced fresh nectarines
- 1 cup tomato wedges
- ½ cup green pepper strips
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- Hot cooked noodles

Combine vinegar, fruit syrup, bay leaf, salt, mustard, seasoned pepper and onion. Pour over short ribs; marinate 3 or 4 hours, turning occasionally. Drain ribs, saving all marinade. Heat salad oil in large skillet or Dutch oven. Add ribs and brown over medium-heat, turning to brown on all sides. Pour marinade over meat; cover and simmer 1 hour and 15 minutes. (Add water if necessary during latter part of cooking time to keep from boiling dry.) Remove ribs and keep warm. Skim or pour fat from drippings in skillet. Add brown sugar; heat until sugar is dissolved. Add nectarines, tomatoes and green pepper; heat only a few minutes—pepper should be tender-crisp. Thicken sauce with cornstarch mixed with a little water. Pour sauce over ribs. Serve with noodles.

Have fun out-of-doors with Gaynor Maddox's new, 64-page "Cook Out." To order, send name, address and $1 to "Cook Out," care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 489, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York 19, N.Y.

Woman Says She Will Use Police Whistle

NEW YORK (AP) —Arlene Del Fava says she will use a police whistle to attract men.

She bought a whistle Thursday to summon help if a mugger attacks her, as one did last Sunday. She stabbed the man with a switchblade knife and was charged with violated anti-weapons laws.

"Perhaps the boys won't be so eager to propose, now that I have a police record," the 27-year-old secretary said.

Police said she'd have been in the clear if she'd used an ordinary knife or a hat pin. Switchblades are outlawed.

To vary that can of cream of potato soup, add whole - kernel corn or mushrooms. If you have leftover cooked corn on the cob just cut off the kernels and use them. If the mushrooms are fresh, they may be cooked lightly in butter or margarine before adding to the soup.

Boy Recovering From Injuries In 200-Foot Fall

DENVER (AP) — A 15-year-old Skokie, Ill., boy is recovering today in a Denver hospital after he was injured in a 200-foot fall down a glacier course and a night lying injured in the wilderness.

Mitchell Mizock was brought to Colorado General Hospital Thursday by helicopter.

Physicians said he suffered a brain concussion, fractured left thigh bone, deep gash in the back of his head, cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Mitchell had been attending the Young Men's Christian Association's Camp Ouray about four miles northeast of Granby in the Colorado Rockies.

He, a camp counselor and four other boys were hiking along the side of 11,920-foot Lone Eagle Peak, Mitchell slipped and rolled 200 feet down the course of Peck's Glacier, above timberline.

Three of the group went for help. Mitchell lay injured overnight with his two companions by his side.

After U.S. Forest Service personnel decided the boy's injuries might be worsened if they attempted to bring him out of the rugged country by pack horse or litter, a helicopter was summoned.

Mitchell was evacuated to the Roaring Fork Campground by helicopter. There, Dr. A. B. Later of Longmont worked over him for about three hours.

The boy was then taken by helicopter to the parking lot of the Denver hospital — a 45 minute ride.

ANIMALS ON DIET

MANILA (AP) — Acting Mayor Hermnio Astorga charged that the animals at the city zoo were underfed but their keepers overfed.

Thomas J. Armstrong Weds Mary Elizabeth Foshee

In a setting of candelabra and vases of white daisies and pompons, Miss Elizabeth Foshee and Thomas James Armstrong were united in marriage at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 2, in the Ent Air Force Base Chapel. Chaplain Woodruff officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Foshee, 6 Anita Rd. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter I. Armstrong, Des Moines, Ia.

Nuptial music included "Because", "I Love You Truly," "Oh Promise Me".

The bride's street length gown was of white silk organza over satin with a high scalloped neckline appliqued with five white roses, lowered waistline and long pointed sleeves. Her tulle veil was attached to an organza blossom and she carried a bouquet of white bridal roses and green leaves.

Mrs. Shirley Boudonck was the matron of honor. She wore a mint green sleeveless sheath, draped in vertical folds from scoop neckline to waist. A matching green circle hat held her short tulle veil, and her boquet was of pink and white crescent-shaped carnations.

Edward Boudonek was best man, and Robert Wiltshire was the candle-lighter and usher.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barksdale, 314 N. Farragut St. Kay Gilbert and Mary Alice Clayton assisted at the bride's table.

The couple wiil reside at 410 E. Washington St. following a short wedding trip.

The bridegroom attended Grand View College, De Moines, Ia.

Koreans Sentenced For Demonstrations

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—An army court sentenced South Korea's top paratroop officer and three others to prison terms today for breaking into a judge's home and a newspaper office in connection with the antigovernment student demonstrations in May.

Col. Choi Moon-yung, 36, commander of the special paratroop unit, was given five years. Capt. Hwang Kil-soo and ex-Lt. Cols. Yoon Kook-joon and Kim Sang-mook got three years.

Another paratrooper, 1st Lt. Kimchong-suk, was sentenced to three years but the sentence was suspended because of his military record. Six other officers and seven noncoms were acquitted because they had acted on Col. Choi's orders.

"In 1960," says Kansas City manager Ed Lopat, "Yogi moaned and groaned when he did the same exercises. Casey Stengel had the club. It was his last year. 'Do what you want to do,' he told me. So I had the pitchers and catchers doing calisthenics before workouts. We did them all spring. All of a sudden the Yog gets a bright idea. But look how long those exercises kept him around. I think I helped get him the job as manager."

COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, JULY 12, 1964 SECTION F

Planners Will Consider 16 Business Items

Sixteen items of business will be considered by the Colorado Springs City Planning Commission when it meets at 4 p.m. next Monday in the City Council chambers at City Hall. These will consist of the following:

Request by Ray Dial et al. to change a block bounded by Washington Street, Interstate Highway 25, Fontanero and Chestnut Streets from the R-2 (single family residential) to the C-4 (neighborhood business) zone.

Request by John C. Cooper to change both sides of the 1200 through the 1800 blocks of North Tejon Street from the R-3 (two-family residential) to the R-2 (single family residential) zone.

Request by William R. Aman and Byron L. Akers Jr. to change the west side of the 1200 block of North Academy Boulevard from the R-2 to the C-5 (intermediate business) zone.

Proposal by the Planning Commission to change the west side of the 1000 and 1100 blocks of North Academy Boulevard from the C-4 (neighborhood business) to the PBC-1 (planned business center) zone.

Request by Jay E. Helton to change the south side of the 900 block of West Cucharras Street from R-3 to the M-1 (light industrial) zone.

Request by Coltor, Ltd., to change both sides of North Chestnut Street between a point about 140 feet south of Hoorne Avenue and a point about 650 feet north of Holland Park Boulevard from the R-2 to the R-5 (multi-family residential) zone.

Preliminary plat of Prospect Park Subdivision No. 2 by Roy Pring, which involves 30.62 acres south of Eastlake Subdivision No. 4 about one quarter mile south of Airport Road and west of South Circle Drive.

Preliminary plat on Fontmore Subdivision by Dan Howells, which involves 14 acres lying about 500 feet northeast of the intersection of Fontanero Street and N. 30th St.

Petition by Joe Perlmutter requesting annexation of 45 acres bounded by U. S. Highway 24 on the north, Chelton Road on the east, a line about 125 north of the north line of East Bijou Street on the south and the east line of Arrawanna Street on the west.

Petition by Roy Pring requesting annexation of 860 acres lying east of South Circle Drive and south of Airport Road; it will be titled Pikes Peak Park Addition No. 6.

Request by Dean Chausse for a variance in the form of waiver of sidewalks on Holiday Lane as platted in the final plat of Country Club Subdivision No. 3, filing No. 3

Request by Godwin Beavers Company for an amendment to the development plan of Smartt's Shopping Center located north of Airport Road and east of South Circle Drive and now to be called Circle Fair Shopping Center.

Request by Smartt Construction Co. for a conditional use at about 3923 E. Marion Drive to permit construction of a building to house the offices of KSSS broadcasting station.

Request by O. W. Noble for the vacation of the east 10 feet of Alexander Highway adjacent to lots 1 through 16, block 40, Grandview Addition, which is the east side of the 1200 block of Alexander Highway.

Request by Max Mintz for consideration of an amended development plan from the use of property restrictions at 715 N. Weber St. The amendment is for location of building and entrance.

Request by Mountain States Telephone Company for a special permit to house a 2,000 square foot building to house an electronic switching office on the northwest corner of Galley and Babcock Roads.

In addition to these regular items, there are also several pending completion by the commission. These proposals by the commission are as follows:

To amend the provisions of the subdivision regulations by changing present right-of-way and road way specifications.

To amend the zoning ordinance by addition of a planned industrial park zone.

To amend the provisions of the freeway sign ordinance by changing the size of business signs in zones 1, 2, 3 and 4.

To adopt a future land use plan for the area in the vicinity of the east-west expressway.

To adopt by resolution a policy governing the subdivision and development of lands known to be undermined.

Behavior Type Linked to Heart Disease

A relationship between coronary heart disease and a competitive personality is reported in a recent Journal of the American Medical Association.

Of 113 men, aged 39 to 59, with coronary heart disease 70 per cent were classified as competitive with excessive drive and an enhanced sense of time urgency.

Investigators were not aware of the presence of disease in these men when they were so classified by means of personal interviews and tests.

The 113 men were among 3,524 presumably well men who are participating in a long-range study to determine what characteristics might be used to predict the later occurrence of coronary heart disease. The study, begun in 1960, is still in progress. Subjects were drawn from 11 businesses in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Data on the 113 men were included in initial findings from the so-called Western Collaborative Group Study reported by Ray H. Rosenman, M. D., and Meyer Friedman, M. D., San Francisco; Reuben Straus, M. D., Moses Wurm, M. D., and Robert Kositchek, M. D., Burbank, Calif., and Wilfrid Hahn, Ph.D., and Nicholas T. Werthessen, Ph.D., San Antonio, Texas.

The findings do not substantiate the possible predictive value of the competitive behavior pattern, the researchers said. Nevertheless, they said, it is believed important that a highly significant proportion of the 113 men with already-present disease were predictively classified as coronary-prone on the sole basis of their behavior pattern.

Although some relationship is believed to exist between the disease and the behavior pattern, only future studies can elucidate the all-important matters of sequence and possible casual relationships, the authors added.

If the behavior pattern does have a causative relationship, then a higher incidence of new coronary heart disease should occur over the years in the remaining men who exhibit this behavior than in those who do not, they explained.

Inspection of the initial data on the remaining 3,411 men indicates wide individual differences in most of the factors under study, a dispersion which suggests that the present comprehensive approach may permit eventual formulation of a profile of the candidate for future coronary heart disaese, they concluded.

Building Permits In Florence Total $7,300

Building permit valuation for Florence during the month of June was estimated at $7,300 by City Building Inspector Carl Meyers, it was noted this week in his monthly report to the city council.

A total of 35 permits were issued in June including one for a new home, 11 for remodeling.

Meyers made 40 inspections in June, and reported the arrest of a contractor who violated the license requirements of the city. The violator was fined $35 plus $36 for permits valued at $6 each.

The inspector noted that he has signed up six more property owners on a paving petition, attended a regional planning commission meeting, and completed an inventory of property and land owned by the city of Florence.

Columbia Pediatric Care Reported Good in Cities

By The
Colorado Medical Society

Typhoid in Scotland or Switzerland ... Smallpox in India or Sweden ... Influenza in Hong Kong ... Kwashiorkor in the Congo or Columbia.

With an increasingly mobile world population — paced by affluent and far - traveling Americans and Europeans — and with rapid air transport, the world today becomes more and more a single community in health. Infections know no boundaries, and the economic want and low educational levels which spawn malnutrition and disease have become the concern of men of good will in every land.

How fares the health of the children of Columbia as members of this world health community?

Pretty good — if they live in a city. Columbia has been quick to seize upon the advances of modern medicine. The "new" polio vaccine has been fully utilized in the last few years, and polio is a disease of the past in Columbia as well as U.S. cities. Vaccination has eliminated smallpox in Columbian cities.

Municipal sanitation is good. Water supplies are protected, and typhoid fever no longer is a threat to the city-dweller. Anti - malarial measures are effective in the urban districts. Good maternal care is available in the cities, and between 80 and 90 per cent of Columbian city babies are born in hospitals, a rate which compares favorably with that of the United States as a whole.

But only about 50 per cent of the Columbia population of 16 million lives in the modern cities, and close to half of the people, most of them living in rural areas, still are illiterate despite free public educa- Columbia occupies the northwest corner of South America and is about one - eighth the size of the United States — approximately the size of Texas and California combined. The country lies in tropical latitudes, and the coastal lowlands are jungle country. Most of the cities, however, are at high altitudes and enjoy temperate climates; the capital, Bogota, is at 8661 feet.

The lower areas of the country and the eastern plains streatching toward Brazil still are primitive. It is estimated Columbia still has more than 100,000 Indians living in an entirely savage state.

In the rural and primitive areas, health protection is poor in every sense. Although most city mothers and babies receive modern hospital care, only about 15 per cent of rural mothers receive obstetrical care of any kind, even though the Columbian government is pushing hard on an expanding rural health program.

Columbia has both a high birth rate and a high child mortality rate, especially under the age of 5 and principally influenced by the rural areas.

In rural Columbia, average income is less than $300 a year with accompanying malnutrition, deficiency diseases, lowered resistance to infection, low educational levels and poor sanitation. The most important cause of death is severe diarrhea, or dysentery, resulting from a high level of infections of the gastrointestinal tract.

Columbian rural children are subject to kwashiorkor — an African word meaning "red boy" because of their poor diet. Kwashiorkor is a particularly malignant and extreme form of malnutrition resulting from low protein diets.

Many rural Columbian children live on a diet which is almost exclusively carbohydrate — a diluted native brown sugar solution known as "panella" and corn ground and baked into a cake something like a Mexican tortilla.

Without meat and milk, these children develop kwashiorkor: anemia, pot - belly, swollen limbs, skin sores and discolorations, dry skin and accompanying infections, enlarged liver, and eventually an inability to absorb nutrition from the food they do eat.

The hair turns red or striped red, hence then the African name. Close to four months of treatment on a good diet is necessary to arrest a case of kwashiorkor.

There is a high incidence of tuberculosis in rural Columbia, and in the tropical areas malaria and yellow fever are problems.

Many parasitic diseases are present, notably hookworm, whipworm and various amoebas which often infest the undernourished children. Sanitation is lacking in the more primitive areas, and there is little understanding among the people of its necessity.

Strong efforts are being made by Columbia to raise the standards of its rural health to those of its urban health. There are massive campaigns against malarial mosquitoes and yellow fever, and a system of rural district health officers is being built up to promote sanitation, preventive medicine, nutrition and health education.

Columbia, which has had university education since its Spanish colonial days, now has seven medical schools which graduate close to 100 new doctors each year. Each graduate is obligated to spend one year of rural service in a small community hospital or a district health organization. About 30 per cent of Columbian doctors then go on to specialty studies, and some three - fourths of these come to U.S. medical schools for their postgraduate work.

Death Rate Unaffected by State Altitude

Altitude was found to be unrelated to the death rate from heart disease caused by hardening of the arteries or high blood pressure in Colorado, three Denver researchers reported today.

Because of the apparent rarity of fatal cases of coronary thrombosis and hypertension at higher elevations observed by practicing physicians in Colorado and Peru, Colorado mortality statistics for these causes for the years 1949-1951 and 1959-1961 were analyzed for variation by altitude, William E. Morton, M. D., Donald J. Davis, M.P.H., and John A. Lichty, M. D., reported.

The age-adjusted mortality rate for arteriosclerotic heart disease shows no consistent variation by altitude, the authors wrote in the current (July) Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association. Neither did the age - adjusted mortality rate for hypertension and hypertensive heart disease show any consistent variation related to altitude, they said.

The data do not substantiate the belief that fatal arteriosclerotic heart disease or hypertension are less apt to occur among residents at higher elevations, they concluded.

City Employes To Receive Service Pins

Service pins will be presented to 125 city employes at special ceremonies starting at 4 p.m. July 21 in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium.

Service time will range from 5 to 20 years.

Those who have reached the 20-year mark and will receive an appropriate award for their work with the city are R. F. Bloom, street department; Paul Cimino, park department; Darrell Atkinson, fire department; Mark Weese, meter reader; and Kathy Butler, office worker.

The 15-year service pins will go to the following: Robert Hathaway and Robert J. Parvin, airport; Thelma Fraser, city clerk; George Posinak, Pikes Peak Highway; O. T. Lancaster, traffic engineering; Walter Banks, William Disnuke, Charles Johnson, Harold D. Manley, Joseph Morgan and Harold Williams, all of the street department; Everett Tucker, cemetery.

George Day and Arthur Luque, park department; Helen Thomas, recreation department; Robert Mathis and Clyde Norman, fire department; Elmer Clay, radio technician; Jim Beedle, John Disantis and John Knapp, gas division; Jack Haynes, south steam plant; Mansel Alldredge, north steam plant; Albert Mantz and Houston Sullivan, both of south steam plant; Harold Treat, Roy Treat and Luther McCumber, electric division.

Verlin Quinn, sewer division; Leslie Coleman and Vernie Flaxbeard, garage; J. S. Pinkerton, electric division; George White and Robert Ulwelling, gas division; Fermin Garcia, garage; Forest Liester, machine shop; Alfred Stanberry, service center; Luther Tevebaugh, meter reader; Henry Conklin, electric division; and Wayne Finch, street department.

The 10-year awards will go to L. J. Peterson, airport; G. E. Davison, Roy Helton, Robert Milosvich, Amanuel Pinello and George J. Yurich, all of the street department; Neo Craft, Harry P. Sievers, and E. L. Williams, fire department; George D. Barnes, building department; Andrew Horvat, Carroll Roy and Henry Tiedtke, all of the water division; Bobby Carter, gas division.

Marshall Johnson and Richard Webber, both of the south steam plant; Ray Haley, electric division; Florence McFarlin and Peggy Yowell, office workers; Jim Harris, meter reader; C. J. Blasing, electric division; Louis Johnson, assistant city attorney; and Pauline Knopp, city manager's office.

Fifty eight persons are scheduled to get 5-year service pins from City Manager John M. Biery, according to C. L. Hietman Jr., personnel director.

NEW CLOCK — United Air Lines stewardess, Marcia Moran, compares her wristwatch with one of Hewlett-Packard's new Atomic Clocks. Two of the instruments, first of their kind light enough for air transport, occupied passenger seats in flights across the U. S. by United Air Lines, and across the Atlantic by Swissair, to compare the two continent's time standards.

Youths Receive Training Awards For Top Essays

Top essays brouht selection to Marihelen Vento and Ronald Duke for Red Cross leadership training at the Horn Creek ranch near Westcliffe.

At the time school closed youngsters were competing in essay writing for the privilege of enjoying this training along with outstanding recreation advantages at Horn Creek ranch. And along with successful writing as a requisite, certain qualifications for leadership and fine character were included in the selection, which was made by the Florence schools.

Both will join other winners from Canon City and Colorado Springs for their trip which will extend from Thursday through Monday.

This is the first opportunity for Canon City and Florence youngsters to participate in this event, as it is sponsored by the Colorado Springs Red Cross chapter and until this year was conducted solely from there.

Flying Atomic Clock Feat Aids Science Exchange

An improvement of more than fifty times was made in the accuracy with which exact time is known between Europe and the U.S. when scientists of Hewlett - Packard Company, with the cooperation of United Air Lines and Swissair, few a new lightweight atomic clock between observatories of the two continents.

In recent years, nuclear science has made it possible to build large atomic clocks of unprecedented steadiness, so stable that will not wander apart from one another or disagree by as much as one second in 500 years, once they are set in exact agreement. Establishing time correlation between widely separated points has not been possible, however, with any such accuracy.

Radio comparisons are made regularly, but radio transmission time changes unpredictably over intercontinental distances because of atmospheric conditions. So establishing time agreement by this means is always somewhat uncertain.

By setting one of the new and extremely steady atomic clocks at one observatory, and then physically transporting it to another, thousands of miles away, the time at one observatory could be brought effectively to the other for comparison, with next to no margin of error. Of course the atomic clock would have to be kept under power all the way.

The size, weight, and power requirements of previous atomic clocks made the experiment generally impractical. This year Hewlett - Packard Company, manufacturers of primary time standards, introduced an atomic clock which was so small and light that the experiment could be performed.

Using the new instrument, time agreement has been established between the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington, D.C., and the Swiss Observatory at Neuchatel, Switzerland, to an accuracy of better than one - millionth of a second, an improvement of more than fifty times over the precision of previous measurements.

Alan S. Bagley, manager of Hewlett - Packard's Frequency and Time Division, and Leonard S. Cutler, physicist of the company's Advanced Research & Development staff, carried out the experiment in connection with displaying two of the new Hewlett - Packard instruments to the International Conference on Chronometry, which is held every five years at Lausanne, Switzerland.

The atomic clocks travelled as passengers, each on its own reserved seat in the jet aircraft. Most important were the special arrangements made by United Air Lines and Swissair for electrical power from their airplanes, to sustain continuous operation. The atomic clocks had self - contained batteries for power between moves.

Heart of the atomic clock is a new lightweight atomic standard frequency generator, introduced only this year by Hewlett - Packard Company. The unit uses atomic resonance control, based on an unvarying physical characteristic of cesium atoms, to control the frequency of an electronic oscillator.

Such an atomic - controlled clock may be used not only to mark time but also for such purposes as providing extremely accurate navigational information. So steady is the instrument that, in a two and one - half day trip to the moon, for example, the elapsed error would be less than thirteen - millionths of a second.

If the space ship could maintain speed that accurately, the total accumulated error attributable to the instrument would be less than one inch out of 238,000 miles!

RESCUE CREW — Four of the 5th Divisions's newest OH138 reconnaissance helicopters were airborne early Monday within an hour after a request from the Trinidad area was received. Their mission was to search for a missing three-year-old boy lost since 11 a.m. on Sunday, July 5. From left, second row, pilots are CWO Clarence T. Jones, Company A, 5th Aviation Battalion; Capt. James E. Ganze, 5th Division Artillery; CWO Ambrose E. Hill and WO Thomas E. Dutton, both of the 4th Squadron 12th Cavalry. Enlisted observers, kneeling from left, are Pfc. Richard Kelley and Spec. 5 W. E. McEwen both of the cavalry. Although the boy was found before they reached Trinidad, the flight supplied training opportunities for the personnel taking part. Processionary Caterpillars Teach Lesson

By The
Colorado Chiropractic Society

Fear of the unknown has stopped progress in its tracks many times in history, but plain habit has been just as devestating.

One author, L. E. Frailey, compares some people with the "processionary caterpillars" who play follow-the-leader with dedication.

In his book, "This Way Up," Frailey tells how a French naturalist got a group of these caterpillars going around the rim of a flower pot, one right after the other in a circle. The naturalist thought that they would soon get hungry and quit playing their game, but they didn't. Through force of habit, "the living, creeping circle kept moving around the rim of the pot — around and around, keeping the same relentless pace for seven days and seven nights — and doubtless would have continued longer had it not been for sheer exhaustion and ultimate starvation."

There was an ample supply of food close at hand in the flower pot and plainly visible, but it was outside the range of the circle so they continued along the beaten path.

Frailey makes the point that they were following instinct, habit, custom, tradition, standard practice . . . "they mistook activity for accomplishment. They meant well — but they got no place."

It was somewhat the same when the first of the curious scientists began wondering what went on inside the human body, and dug into a few graves for purposes of autopsy. The nervous system and other secrets of the body were ultimately discovered, but not without violent repercussions from a fearing public which was so superstitious that it could not see where the great discoveries might lead.

The doctor of chriopractic wonders if this is somewhat the case today. Do people cling to old ideas because they are mired in habit of thought? It seems so, perhaps, because many who need chiropractic care do not seek it.

Out of history comes this rough but true illustration as to how the nervous system can fail, but only partially.

The making of this great nation had more than a few western hangings, and the point here is that a broken neck causes complete collapse of the nervous system. So it is not unreasonable to conclude that, if nerves in the neck or back are only partially pinched, there would be partial nerve failure.

The nerves between the brain and the rest of the body must not be disconnected — or even squeezed a little by misplaced vertebrae — because if they are the body will tend to fail, maybe the stomach as with ulcers, the joints as with arthritis, the lungs as with tuberculosis, and the heart as with heart disease. Many of today's most trecherous diseases are not caused by germs, which leads surely to the conclusion that they are diseases resulting from a lack of normal nerve supply.

The doctor of chiropractic says the major cause has to be nerve pressure. He wonders, sometimes, if plain habit of thought is not keeping Americans from cure.

Civil Service Names Machine Job Openings

Examinations for supervisory electric accounting machine operator, GS 5, 6 and 7 and electric accounting machine operator, GS 3 and 4, are announced by the Board of Civil Service Examiners at Ft. Carson.

The registers compiled as a result of these examinations will be used for filling vacancies in federal agencies in Colorado Springs and its vicinity.

Information regarding qualification and the applications forms are available from the Board of Civil Service Examiners at Carson Bldg. 807 or from the Director of the Denver Region, U. S. Civil Service Commission, Bldg. 41, Denver Federal Center.

Any postoffice will have forms or information as to where they can be obtained as well as information regarding qualifications.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color, national origin or sex.

PEWTER

Pewter is a metal alloy whose principal element is tin. Chief metals used with the tin for pewter are copper, antimony, lead and, occasionally, bismuth.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED — Lt. Col. C. H. Price, president of the German-American Cultural Society, visits with four Colorado College summer students who received scholarships to German House from the society. The four (from left) are Walter Novak of Colorado Springs, Sue Hurst of Portland, Ore., Joyce Eaton of Claremont, Calif., and Leslie Otto of Colorado Springs. German House is a project at what was formerly Lennox House to help students improve their knowledge of the German language. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

WASHINGTON — (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) — Within the next few months some of the Marine Corps aviation now at Atsugi, Japan, will shift to new base at Kadena, Okinawa. This proposed move has been long under study at the highest Department of Defense levels and it is now understood that the move has been approved and will get under way without loss of time.

Confidential information uncovered by supporters of the retention of the commissaries disclosed the fact that approximately 47 per cent of enlisted men are married and that more than 300,000 or 23.3 per cent of enlisted men in pay grades E-1, 2, 3 and 4 with 4 or more years of service, are married or drawing dependents allowances, and use the commissaries. The Survey made by the Air Force shows that loss of the commissaries could mean loss of 30 per cent of junior officers and 55 per cent of enlisted men who would leave the service. Top level Pentagon officials and members of Congress are greatly worried over the developing situation.

Col. Arthur H. Adams, a veteran of aerial combat in World War II and Korea, and currently serving as Director of Information at headquarters of the Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Wallace Greene. Midshipman Frederick A. Adams made a special trip to Washington to see his dad move up the promotional ladder.

Relocation of Army units now at Fort Chaffee, Ark. will begin in July. More than 2,000 troops will move to Ft. Bliss; more than 2,500 to Ft. Sill; and approximately 1600 to Ft. Huachuca. One Military Police Platoon will be moved to Ft. Hood. The complete shift will be completed as of April 1965.

Army 4-star Gen. Hugh P. Harris has resumed command of the Continental Army Command at Ft. Monroe.

Army retired Brig. Gen. Andrew T. McAnsh, who began his military service as an enlisted man in the Marines and is now serving as Deputy Assistant Administrator of the Veterans Administration, has been nominated for promotion to AUS Major General and recall to active duty. Interested Washington sources are wondering if this move will have any relationship to studies on military retirement. Specifically the possible transfer of retirees from the Department of Defense budget to that of the Veterans Administration.

The Latest Pentagon directive stipulates that Air Force men who have received advance transportation pay, or travel allowances must make an adjustment on their settlement voucher if space available travel is used and the money not spent for the travel.

A House committee is hopeful of early action on ROTC pay increase. The Proposal has the approval of the House Armed Services Committee. Enactment into law would mean an increase to $50 monthly for cadets in the ROTC program. It would also provide for a scholarship system for selected Army and Air Force cadets.

Support for a permanent pay study group at the Department of Defense staff level is gaining among officials of the various services. The setup, if approved, would take over when the present ad hoc committee completes its present study or review of the existing pay compensation complex. The permanent committee approach would eliminate the creation of a special pay study group every time the Pentagon starts work on a new pay increase.

Field medical treatment facilities, designed to replace existing units, are expected to be ready for troop testing by the Army Medical Service field units before the coming Fall.

Morale is very low among members of the advanced party of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment due to unexpected lack of family housing in the vicinity of Ft. Meade. The 11th is coming from Germany to replace the famed 3d Cavalry. Somehow or other the post housing officers did not receive the information as to the families coming to the Maryland post until a few weeks ago. Press interviews with some of the senior noncommissioned career officers indicate that the situation is very serious.

Congress will lose no time in approving the proposal for a five per cent increase in social security pensions, according to "Hill" sources. At the same time the pending bill is expected to increase the monthly social security tax. For example, as noted by Governmental sources, a person making $5,400 a year will find his taxes increased by $31.20 a year in 1965. A certain segment of the military retirees will benefit by the five per cent increase and all active duty personnel will be called upon to pay the social security tax increase next year.

The Association of American Railroads reminds service personnel that the special low rates to service men traveling by rail while on leave in uniform remain effective through December 31, 1964. In the past these rates have been set on a six-month basis, but this year the railroads decided on the year-long arrangements.

Marine Corps Reserve Policy Board recommendation that staff Noncommissioned officers in the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve be assigend to the Marine organized Reserve units and drill for pay and earn additional Reserve retirement credits has been rejected.

Fleet Reserve Association, comprising reported 56,000 members, will hold its annual convention September 21 in Indianapolis. George C. Bernatz, residing in Washington D. C., is unopposed for election as president of the association.

The supercarrier Kitty Hawk and three destroyers now in the Far East will not return to home port for an additional month or two. This will mean a two months' delay in the homecoming of the ships. The ships are based on the West Coast.

Dunbar Rules Home Calls in New Medical Plan

DENVER (AP) — Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar ruled Friday that home and office call benefits are included under Colorado's Medical Assistance for the Aged Law effective last July 1.

Dunbar issued the opinion at the request of the State Welfare Board.

A limited program of physicians' home and office calls had been previously available to recipients of old age pensions, although it had been discontinued in recent months.

The board had asked the attorney general to rule if the program was reinstated for pensioners would it be necessary to provide the same program to MAA recipients.

Dunbar said in order for a state to be eligible to receive federal aid in medical assistance for the aged plan must provide noninstitutional care and services.

"Under our statute," he said, "Physicians' services in the home and office are the only noninstitutional services which must be provided and thus form the basis for eligibility in this respect."

RED ROCK VALLEY ESTATES

Build a home on an acreage amidst unexcelled scenic splendor

This is foothill country, as primitive as when Arapaho warriors tread on it with moccasined feet. Here are impressive, towering red rock formations similar to the famous "GARDEN OF THE GODS." Wild life abounds the area of Ponderosa pine, scrub oak and gramma grass. — A wonderful world of your own, less than 15 minutes drive from Colorado Springs.

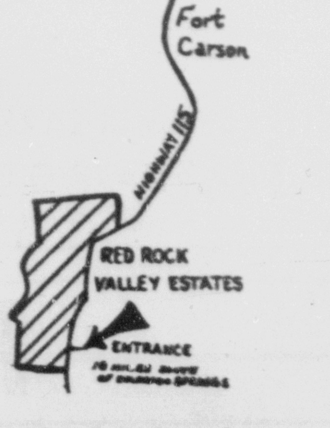
☆ Homes of any styling fit into the interesting contour of the land.

☆ Minimum 1400 sq. ft. homes of new construction, offering 1 vote per tract in the home owners association.

☆ Only 10 minutes from Colorado Springs. Yet secluded in all its natural beauty.

SEE THIS BEAUTIFUL HIGHLY RESTRICTED SUBDIVISION & YOU'LL BE SATISFIED WITH NOTHING ELSE!



Drive 10 miles south of Colorado Springs on Highway 115 turn at entrance sign of . . .
